Mass Meeting Over New Highway Set For Wednesday

HIGH SCHOOL IS SELECTED FOR MEETING

Announcement of Plans Is Made By Secretary Raymer of C. of C. Today

BOTH SIDES INVITED

Councilmen and Others Hope to Reach Agreement During Conference

A MASS MEETING of citizens for public discussion of the proposal of the city council to open Santa Ana boulevard paralleling on the east side the Southern Pacific tracks from near the hospital to Main street at Santa Clara avenue will be held at the Auditorium of the Santa Ana high school Wednesday, at 7:30 p. m., it was announced today by George Raymer, secretary of the chamber of commerce, which organization is sponsoring the open meeting.

Raymer said that the program committee would attempt to arrange a program that would give proponents and opponents an equal opportunity to present arguments.

The committee on program is composed of Richard Emison, chairman, C. C. Downing, Nat Neff, Sam Hurwitz, Bruce Switzler, O. A. Haley, Wm. Iverson, Charles Aubrey and Wm. DeWolfe.

The secretary said that the high school auditorium had been selected for the debate in anticipation of a large attendance. He pointed out that the project is one which every resident of the city is directly interested, and it is upon this fact that the secretary basis prediction that the auditorium will be crowded.

It is expected that Clyde Jenken, city engineer, will present the set-up for the highway building project and that he also will give data concerning costs and other information on the program. Charles D. Swanner, city attorney, probably will be asked to present the legal side of the controversy, and it was indicated that the committee would ask T. G. Gowdy and Wayne Goble, president and secretary, respectively, of the Citizens League, which is sponsoring the protest and recall petitions now in circulation, to tell their side of the story. Others on each side of the controversy may be requested to speak.

HEAVY DAMAGE IS CAUSED BY FRENCH STORM

Wind, Rain, Snow Strike At Several Places in France and England

LONDON, Nov. 18.—(UP)—Gales, rains and snow swept the British isles and the coasts of France over the week end, taking a toll of heavy property damage. Three fliers were thought to have been killed in the storms.

The Marseilles radio station intercepted a message from a speedboat searching for the missing Marseilles-Tunis mail plane which said the French destroyer Ajaccio had found the plane's tires, a canoe oar and pieces of the plane's fuselage. No trace was found of the ship's crew, Marcel Decugnac, pilot, Radio Operator Hostier and Navigator Cantel. They left Marseilles for Tunis at 7 a. m. yesterday and three hours later reported they were in distress. It was the tenth accident this month to the Marseilles-Tunis air line, service was suspended yesterday because no planes were available.

The Atlantic lashed the French coast severely, causing the serious injury of several sailors when the torpedo boat Valmy was racked by heavy waves near Brest, a sloop was sunk and a fishing boat was thrown up on the beach and beaten to pieces by the rough seas. Another was grounded although no deaths were reported.

Damages everywhere were heavy. In Great Britain snow storms forced abandonment of most of the sports events scheduled for the week end and caused the postponement of the scheduled flight of the dirigible R-101 with a party of members of parliament. Many basements in London and Brighton were flooded. The river Severn overflowed its banks and drove scores of families from their homes in Poolquay, Llandrinio to a depth of 10 feet.

Channel steamers and London-Paris air liners maintained services but they were buffeted severely by gales.

Rain, wind and snow struck at several places in France, including the suburbs of Paris, Alsace, Aix Les Bines and Marseilles. Parts of Cherbourg were flooded by high waves and dikes were reported broken in some places.

Pollock tomorrow.

Because ofthe fact that the trial will probably last three or more weeks, Judge Pollock today intimated he would inaugurate a new procedure by holding court at night in addition to Saturday and Monday.

SECY. GOOD IS NOT EXPECTED TO FINISH DAY

Cabinet Head Sinking Fast and Physicians Say He Can't Live Long

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—(UP)—Secretary of War James W. Good, suffering from complications after an operation Wednesday for appendicitis, fought valiantly for a few more hours of life today after physicians had abandoned hope for his recovery.

With members of his family at his bedside at Walter Reed hospital, the war secretary continued to draw on his splendid vitality and was alive at 12:30 p. m. although his physicians early today had expressed the opinion he could not live throughout the morning.

Acting Secretary of War Hurley, Assistant Secretary Davidson and General Charles P. Summerall, chief of staff, left the war department for the sick room shortly after noon.

T. P. O'CONNOR, IRISH LEADER, ANSWERS CALL

Father of House of Commons Dies After 50 Years in Parliament

LONDON, Nov. 18.—(UP)—Death has cheated by a year the hope of Thomas Power O'Connor, "father of the house of commons," of attaining a record of a half century's continuous service in parliament.

Eased by the last good wishes of his king and Pope Pius, the 81-year-old veteran of politics and journalism succumbed at 3:10 a. m., today, to a septic condition of one leg, from which he had suffered for two years.

"Tay Pay," as he was affectionately known, became seriously ill 10 days ago. King George's physician, Lord Dawson of Penn, was called to O'Connor's bachelor apartment Saturday night. He brought a message of sympathy from the king. Pope Pius sent his final good wishes and blessing by Cardinal Bourne.

O'Connor entered parliament from Galway in 1880. He was returned from both Galway and Liverpool in 1886, and thereafter represented the Scotland division of Liverpool until his death. He was the only candidate to be re-elected to the house of commons last May without opposition.

He had risen to fame in parliament as the champion of Irish nationalism, a cause to which the greater part of his career was dedicated.

With "Tay Pay's" death," the veteran Lloyd George, former prime minister and leader of the Liberal party, succeeds to the title of "father" of the house of commons. He has attained a record of 39 years of continuous service.

O'Connor was prevented by ill health from taking an active part in politics during the last years of his life.

A striking tribute was paid "Tay Pay" on his 80th birthday when he was the guest of honor at a dinner in London. He was carried to the chair of honor and when called upon to speak insisted that two men help him stand. Tears rolled down his cheeks as he thanked his friends for honoring him. His natural Irish wit shone through the tears to the last.

"I have received the congratulations of the king today," he said "A great crowd has gathered to honor me. But I can remember

President To Hold Meeting With Leaders

High Executives From All Branches of Industry To Give Advice

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—(UP)—Machinery set up by President Hoover to assure the continued orderly march of business will be put into motion tomorrow.

Modeled on the principle which made Mr. Hoover's food administration during the war notable for its success without government compulsion, the President's plan of dealing with the current economic situation is that of voluntary co-operation with the government.

Railway executives representing most of the large eastern lines will meet with the President tomorrow, chamber of commerce officials and leaders in the manufacturing and distribution trades will confer at the White House Wednesday, and Thursday a round table conference of the nation's farming interests is scheduled.

From these conferences will develop the measures to be taken by each branch of trade co-operating with government agencies to restore public confidence shaken by the stock market decline.

Further conferences of the more specialized groups will be called later it was intimated at the White House today.

EDITORS PLAN TRIP TO MEXICO JAN. 11

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 18.—(UP)—Friend W. Richardson, former governor of California, today was conducting a survey of Los Angeles and nearly newspapers in connection with an excursion of the California Press association to Mexico City, January 11.

Richardson said the trip will be confined solely to editors and will last 18 days. A special train has been chartered and will go down the west coast of Mexico to the capital, returning by way of the east coast.

Richardson, who had nothing to say today regarding the political situation, will remain in Los Angeles for several days.

PASCUAL ORTIZ RUBIO CHOSEN PRESIDENT OF MEXICO DURING ELECTION MARKED BY RIOTING

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 18.—(UP)—In an election marked by nationwide rioting, bloodshed and charges of fraud, Pascual Ortiz Rubio, national revolutionary and administration candidate, has obtained a triumphant majority for the presidency of Mexico.

An accurate check of the dead was impossible. Many deaths were confirmed and those together with semi official reports indicated the number of killed throughout the states would reach 18 with scores injured. Unconfirmed reports placed the dead at 26.

While no figures were available for an approximate count of yesterday's vote, reports indicated that the Ortiz Rubio party had triumphed in nearly all of the state of the Republic. Leaders of the anti-re-electionist party, supporting the only other candidate, Jose Vasconcelos, conceded victory to the administration candidate but only with claims that the Ortiz Rubio victory was a "fiasco" and accomplished by preventing the Vasconcelos supporters from voting.

In view of the prevalence of disorders yesterday, the possibility arose of an armed movement to win the presidency for Vasconcelos. It was pointed out, however, that even should the re-electionists in the north attempt such a movement that it probably would be short lived because of scattered support and because Vasconcelos himself would refrain from authorizing such tactics.

Advices to the department of the interior stated that one person was killed at Cecilia in the state of Tamaulipas and six wounded. Reports to La Prensa from Toluca in Mexico state, said five police were killed when a patrol truck was overturned. Police headquarters in the capital announced the city's death toll was five and that 16 were wounded seriously in addition to scores who were bruised and cut.

One was killed and four wounded in a riot in front of the anti-re-electionists headquarters. Police reports received here from Vera Cruz said that up to noon yesterday four men had been slain there, one at Cordoba in the same state and another at Lahuca, Vera Cruz state, who allegedly was launched by Vasconcelos followers.

Many Killed

Private advices from Vera Cruz reported that from nine to 14 were killed there, including a baby killed by a stray bullet. Many were wounded. Similar dispatch described deaths in riots at Cordoba, San Andres and Tuxtla.

Thousands of troops were on guard throughout the day but apparently were powerless to prevent a minimum of disorder. Both candidates remained out of the city, Ortiz Rubio staying in Uruapan, state of Michoacan.

The polls opened at 9 a. m., and the disorders began early, centering mainly about attempts of both factions to gain the advantage of the election board. Under the Mexican law, the first nine persons arriving at the polls constitute themselves an election board. Both parties had guards and the re-electionists were constantly filing protests against alleged fraud. In some instances, they established separate polling places.

As the polls closed at 2 p. m., it

"Jerry" Overshiner Dies In His Hotel Apartment Here on Saturday

FUNERAL services will be held at the Winbigler Funeral home tomorrow, at 2 p. m., for Clifton J. Overshiner, who passed away Saturday, it was announced today. Mr. Overshiner was 60 years of age. The Rev. Moffett Rhodes of Spurgeon Memorial church will officiate.

The death of Mr. Overshiner, who was known to his scores of friends as "Jerry," closes the life career of a man who has been prominent in banking and building and loan association activities in this vicinity for 41 years.

Born in Hopkinsville, Ky., August 31, 1869, Mr. Overshiner came to Santa Ana in 1888, and a few years later located at Orange when he entered the employ of the First National bank there as bookkeeper. Later he was advanced to teller and at the time of severing his connection with that financial institution was assistant cashier, a position he held for 14 years. Mr. Overshiner also was identified with the Orange Building and Loan association having been a director and the appraiser for the organization for many years.

Failing health forced him to give up all business activities eight years ago, when he moved back to Santa Ana. Since returning to the city he had made his home at the Rossmore hotel, at which place he died late Saturday afternoon.

He was a veteran of the Spanish-American war, being a member of old Company L, of this city, when it was called to service. He was a member of Camp Calumpit and of the Orange Masonic lodge. The latter organization will have charge of the funeral.

Mr. Overshiner is survived by one brother, C. D. Overshiner, former postmaster of this city; one sister, Miss Elizabeth Overshiner, Santa Ana; three nephews, William H Overshiner of Santa Ana, Charles Qualls of Los Angeles, Clifton Overshiner, Hopkinsville, Ky.; and two nieces, Mrs. Frederick Eley of Santa Ana and Miss Catherine Overshiner of Hopkinsville, Ky.

FIRE SWEEPS CALIFORNIA UNI PLANT

MANY HEROISM ACTS

Every Patient Is Carried To Safety and Returned After Fire Is Put Out

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 18.—(UP)—Heroism on the part of 120 nurses who quieted frantic patients and carried them to safety prevented a horrible disaster here today after a fire swept through the University of California hospital.

The flames started as a result of an explosion in an X-Ray room and for a time it looked as though many of the sick and injured would lose their lives.

Rescue workers concentrated on clearing patients from the hospital while firemen strove to extinguish the flames.

In the gray hours of early morning success finally greeted the efforts of both nurses and firemen. Every patient was carried to a hill to the rear of the building and shortly thereafter the flames were controlled.

Damage is estimated at $250,000. No one was seriously injured.

But before the flames were controlled there were many terror-filled moments with the nurses striving earnestly to prevent a panic and in this they were successful.

That no one was burned to death is because of the excellent work of the nurses, directed by Miss Kathleen Fores, superintendent of nurses, Charles Frehnan, fire chief, told the United Press.

The hospital building is five stories high with the X-ray room on the third floor. After the explosion the flames swept up, reaching the fifth floor, burning past the windows of bedridden patients.

Miss Juanita Cosenborder, telephone operator, discovered the flames and it was she who started the day of heroism for women.

With remarkable presence of mind Miss Cosenborder turned in the alarm and leap... to the ground floor where she summoned nurses.

Miss Cosenborder struck a sand pile in her jump. She wrenched an ankle but not seriously.

Sheets of flame were shooting from the windows of the X-ray room when firemen arrived. Fearing a repetition of the Cleveland hospital disaster, which killed 127 persons this year, Fire Chief Brennan immediately sounded a call for his helmet squad and that group, wearing gas masks dared to enter the flaming X-ray room. The room and adjoining rooms were flooded with water.

After the hospital was cleared of patients firemen battled stubbornly for an hour before the flames were extinguished.

Within two hours after the fire had been discovered, the patients were returned to their beds and the usual routine of the place was resumed. By 7:15 a. m., P. S. T., all was quiet and orderly again.

Damage was confined to the third and fifth floors, the third

Meanwhile, soldiers of the federal army searched all trains and carriers for the defeated candidate. The soldiers held a warrant charging Vasconcelos with inciting rebellion against the government

INSTRUCTED TO FIND IF 1928 ORDERS OBEYED

In addition to the regular statutory instructions given to the personnel of the grand jury, Judge James L. Allen added a duty that has not been included in the past when he swore in the 1929 edition of the jury today.

In instructing the member of the jury as to their duties, Judge Allen included the following, which has not heretofore been a part of such instructions, but which the presiding judge felt would be of value in the work of investigation and would co-ordinate the work of the body each year so that the maximum results could be attained:

"The grand jury last year made certain investigations and recommendations relative to the conduct of the business of the county and the court believes that such recommendations should be of some avail. I, therefore, charge you that it is your duty to investigate into the recommendations as made by the former grand jury and ascertain whether, in your opinion, they were warranted and, if warranted, whether or not they have been complied with. If you find that such recommendations were warranted and have not been complied with, then it would be your duty to investigate and call before you any and all persons which you may deem advisable for the purpose of ascertaining why such recommendations have not been complied with. You also are to make any further recommendations with respect to such report as you may deem fit and proper."

Otto R. Haan, prominent Santa Ana business man, was named foreman of the jury and was sworn in as such. The other 18 persons chosen from the panel of 30 sworn in for service on the 1929 grand jury are Sam Newnes, Charles Bowman, Lotus H. Loudon, Laura B. Leonard, H. B. Van Dien, L. F. Pomeroy, Gilbert Kraemer, Carl Mock, Paul Ellsworth, W. R. McClintock, O. J. Guilbert, Harold Lagerstrom, Roy L. Howell, George Maxwell, Dale King, Donald Jones, Fred Struck and Nora Flagg.

CLEAN HATS

Many meticulous folks clean their coats, frocks, shoes and gloves and do not think of their hats. If they cannot go to the cleaners weekly, at least they can have their linings turned wrong side out and aired daily. With a little brush dipped in reliable cleansing fluid, one can thoroughly clean both the inside and the out. Brush with dry bush when dry.

being gutted by the flames. Little damage was done on the lower floors by fire but the flooding of the X-ray room with water caused some property loss below.

The heat was terrific and this handicapped the firefighters and rescuers. All elevators went out of commission soon after the flames started and that handicapped the workers as some patients were on the fifth floor and were carried to the ground floor.

The nurses gave way to womanlike tears and other manifestations of excitement after the fire was out. There were no tears or hysterics while patients were to be saved but there was a considerable let down in emotions after all patients were saved and the blaze extinguished.

Court Notes

Irwin H. Larson filed suit today in superior court for annulment of his marriage to Audrey McClellan. In the complaint he sets forth that at the time of the marriage he now is seeking to have annulled he was legally married to Alice Johnson Larson. The second marriage took place in May, 1928, in Texas.

The case of Victoria Branch and the administrator of the estate of A. W. Branch vs. The Western Cordage company, et al., for recision of contract is being tried today by Judge H. G. Ames. The plaintiffs claim that through fraud and deceit they were induced to sell securities of the Southern California Edison company and invest the money realized in stock of the Orange manufacturing concern and that the latter stock was not of the market value represented nor has it paid dividends promised.

Judge G. K. Scovel is trying the case of Thomas E. Wilson vs. W. S. Sparr, today. The plaintiff is asking the recision of a contract for the purchase of certain real estate.

Three men, arrested by sheriff's officers over the week end, were sentenced to serve 31 days each in the county jail on drunk charges in Justice Kenneth Morrison's court this morning. They were D. Meriga, 55, Talbert; Al Costa, 49, Talbert, and Roy Gonzales, 44, barber, of Delhi.

The case of Cruz Garcia, charged with reckless driving, was set in Justice Kenneth Morrison's court this morning for 10 a. m., Nov. 21. It will be a jury trial.

CHEST DRIVE TO CONTINUE UNTIL ALL PROSPECTS HAVE BEEN CONTACTED BY TEAMS

Following the careful check up and analysis made over the week end by Chest officials of pledges turned in thus far by Chest workers, it was announced today by Clyde Downing, campaign chairman, that the final report dinner had been indefinitely postponed and the campaign would be continued until the canvass was completed.

"A careful study of the situation and analysis of the subscriptions reported to date were made Saturday and Sunday," R. R. Miller, secretary-manager of the Chest reported. "The subscriptions were checked against those of last year and reveal that 3260 actual pledges in the last campaign rolled up a total of $46,000. So far this year we had only 1632 pledges reported, but these account for over $37,000. We were amazed at the number of new names turned in this year that did not appear on the records of the previous year and were more than gratified at the increased amount of the pledges of a very definite percentage of those who gave both last year and this year. Many of the subscriptions were increased materially to meet the request of the Chest for complete success this year. Then we found that there were many who made pledges last year who have not yet turned in cards indicating the assistance they will give in the campaign that we are now conducting."

For some reason that has not yet been definitely defined, team workers have not made contacts with persons whose cards they were assigned and as a result many persons have volunteered their subscriptions and have phoned Chest headquarters inquiring why the solicitors have not called to see them. Fourteen such calls were received at headquarters Saturday.

In announcing the postponement of the final report dinner, Downing issued the following statement:

"We feel that it is manifestly unfair to those public spirited citizens of the community who have responded to our pleas for larger gifts this year to insure the success of the campaign to stop our efforts before all persons who gave last year have been seen and given an opportunity to do their part again this year. Consequently the workers are going on with the task until victory is attained."

A group of workers gathered in Chest headquarters this morning and started on the cleanup campaign. The date of the victory dinner will be announced by Chest officials as soon as the visitations are completed.

PASCUAL ORTIZ RUBIO CHOSEN PRESIDENT OF MEXICO DURING ELECTION MARKED BY RIOTING

was reported that four persons were killed when Ortiz Rubio supporters attempted to attack the anti-re-electionists near one of the latter's headquarters in the capital. There were at least a half dozen riots in progress at that hour.

Six were wounded when the national revolutionaries drove a group of Vasconcelistas from a polling place on the outskirts of the city. It was charged the national revolutionaries destroyed the anti-re-electionists' ballots afetr that act and prevented their approach.

Federal Guard

Approximately 12,000 soldiers made up the federal guard. Fifty soldiers guarded the United States embassy, in front of which a group of anti-reelectionists attempted to stage a demonstration a week ago when several were wounded in a street fight.

Official tabulation of the vote probably will not be available for four days. Some estimated Ortiz Rubio's vote would total more than 1,000,000.

Manuel Perez Treviso, president of the National Revolutionary party, said Ortiz Rubio had won in 90 per cent of the nation.

The anti re-electionist headquarters, in conceding Ortiz Rubio victory, announced they were filing protests in each district court alleging that the election was illegal.

The statement, headed "Mexico had no election," said that the election was a "fiasco." It was signed by President Victorio E. Gongora and added:

"The entire judicial machinery of the country was swamped with protests because of assaults made my those who should have prevented them.

"Our members were villianously murdered throughout the republic. Jails were filled with them. Civilization is in mourning. Our enemies cannot credit themselves with a triumph which they did not obtain. They have beaten all records for immortality.

"For the Mexicans, Vasconcelos is president."

The new president succeeds provisional President Emilio Portes Gil and will take office February 5, next, serve until November 30, 1934, to fill out the unexpired term of the assassinated president, Alvaro Obregon.

FRATERNITY HOUSE MAY BE PADLOCKED

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Nov. 18.—(UP)—Twenty Gamma Eta Gamma fraternity boys went to classes at the University of Illinois today fearful that the fraternity house, three blocks from the campus, would be padlocked as an asserted collegiate bootlegging establishment before they could get back.

The padlock threat was made after Sheriff Elmer Shroaff and several deputies found 10 gallons of alcohol and numerous bottles of liquor in the fraternity house during a dead-of-night raid early yesterday.

Three fraternity members and one other student were arrested and J. D. Lewis, of Orchardsville, Ill., president of the organization, promised other members of the group would be turned over to the authorities when wanted.

when I was the least popular member of parliament. Nobody spoke to me in those days, not even my own colleagues."

O'Connor was 81 October 5. His journalistic career was carried to his aging years from an early prominence which was credited mainly to his ability to write obituaries. His stories of the dead led him from Fwet street to the house of commons and into authorship as a biographer.

He was born in Athlone in 1848 and won an M. A. degree at Queen's university. He began his newspaper work in 1867 at the age of 19 as a junior reporter on Saunfer's Newsletter, a Conservative journal in Dublin. Three year's later he began writing famous obituaries for the Daily Telegraph here.

He referred to himself as the "first grave digger of the Daily Telegraph." On one occasion, appearing late for a golf appointment, he responded to the chiding of his companion "I'm sorry to be late but I've been busy completing your obituary." He won the match easily.

During his earlier journalistic days, O'Connor often suffered despair brought on by parial employment. He quarreled with his chief at the Daily Telegraph and left to serve in the London office of the New York Herald. He returned, however, to the Daily Telegraph and in later years founded and was the first editor of the Star. He subsequently was editor of the Sun, the Sunday Sun, M. P. P., T. P.'s Weekly, T. P's Jounral and T. P.'s and Cassells Weekly. Among his best known works are "Lord Beaconfield; A Biography," "The Parnell Movement," "Some Old Live Stories" and "Napoleon."

"Tay Pay" was one of the most famous and popular bachelors of the British empire. His ready wit and cheery nature served to enliven the proceedings in the house of commons where he achieved a position rivalled in history only by the late "Uncle Joe Cannon, veteran speaker of the house of representatives in Washington.

His initials, corrupted to "Tay Pay," were as famous in Britain as the designation of "John D." in the United States. A cablegram from any part of the world to just "Tay Pay" always reached him.

MAN CHARGED WITH ATTEMPTED MURDER

Two men are being held in the county jail, one booked on a charge of attempted murder, while deputy sheriffs today are trying to get to the bottom of a shooting fray which occurred yesterday in Delhi.

No one was hit, but an unnamed woman is said to have been the target for a gun alleged to have been in the hands of S. Madrino, 45, of Delhi, one of the men in jail. The other man is Jose Arellano, 22, also of Delhi, whom police say had the gun at one time during the fracas or just afterwards.

According to the story told by Harry Carter, deputy sheriff, who is investigating, Arellano appeared in the Delhi postoffice and turned a gun over to Dr. Johnson, saying that Madrino had fired it at a woman. When Madrino was arrested he was suffering from a severe cut on the arm, which so far has not been explained, officers said.

BAND AND CHOIR WILL ASSIST IN S. A. SERVICES

Aimee Semple McPherson, world famous evangelist, of Los Angeles, tomorrow night, will conduct a meeting in the Foursquare Gospel tabernacle, at the corner of Fairview and Sycamore streets. She is to be accompanied by the Hallelujah choir of 70 voices, Silver band and several officials of Angelus temple.

The evangelist is to be met by a parade of cars at the corner of Broadway and Santa Clara avenue and will be welcomed to Santa Ana by a large group of loyalists of the Santa Ana lighthouse. Chief of Police Rogers has consented to aid in maintaining order in the expected crowd and motorcycle officers will lead the parade to the church.

Arrangements for the meeting were made today by the Rev. Wilfred C. Parham and Evangelist Alice Wilson Parham, who have just opened an evangelistic crusade in the Foursquare Gospel Lighthouse here. The revival meeting tomorrow will be staged in the interests of the Santa Ana church, which recently withstood a dissension program when a group separated from the McPherson congregation under the direction of the Rev. and Mrs. C. Franklin Brown.

Doors of the tabernacle will be opened at 8 o'clock and Mrs. McPherson will arrive in Santa Ana at 6:30 p. m. Following the sermon, a fellowship reception will be held, at which Mrs. McPherson will preside. Sandwiches and coffee will be served.

Aimee Semple McPherson is the builder of Angeles temple, Los Angeles, seating 5300 persons. Sunday nights the building is packed and overflow crowds cannot gain admittance. She also has started a Bible school, "L. I. F. E.," which now boasts 1150 students, and she has her own radio, over which she broadcasts each week. Mrs. McPherson is the founder of the Foursquare Gospel movement. She started to preach in her temple several years ago and now has several hundred Foursquare Gospel branch churches all over the United States.

PROGRAM FOR CANTANDO CLUB CONCERT TOLD

With virtually every one of the 1500 seats in the high school auditorium reserved, the Cantando club will present its first concert of the season to a crowded house tomorrow night, it was anticipated today.

It was pointed out today that the club has made for itself a place in the affections of the people of this city, with the result that this year the club has the largest list of associate members in the history of the organization.

The program will start at 8:15 and will carry features that will delight all music lovers. Lajos Shuk, violoncellist, who is to be featured, comes to the city with the reputation of being one of the outstanding players of the 'cello and he is to be accompanied at the piano by Levos Delmar, who also has a reputation as a musician.

Commenting on his appearance in a program in Santa Monica last August 14, the Santa Monica Outlook says of Shuk:

"Sincerity, technique, delicacy of expression and delightful musicianship characterized the playing of this young 'cellist and won the enthusiastic applause of the audience after every number. He was given special recognition after his playing of 'Adoration,' an exquisite composition of his own."

The program tomorrow night will be as follows:

"The Destruction of Gaza" (Laurent de Rille), "I Love the Moon" (Paul A. Rubens), "Sea Fever" (Mark Andrews) Lajos Shuk, violoncellist, (a) Andante (from Concerto in E minor) (Popper) (b) "After a Dream" (Faure), (c) "Andalusian Serenade (Kaempf), "The Highwayman" (Mark Andrews), (with solos by Sally Lee Scales, Soprano, and H. H. Bolander, tenor).

"Now let every tongue adore Thee" (Johann Sebastian Bach); "Reapers' Song" (Bohemian Folk Song) (arr. Dr. A. T. Davison) accompaniment for four hands, Miss Armstrong and Miss Ramsey; "Sumi's Song" (Franz Mair, arr. by F. M. Earl) Lajos Shuk, violoncellist, (a) "Russian Serenade" (from Folk Songs) (by Blumenfeld), (b) "Adoration" (Shuk), (c) "Polonaise de Concert" (Popper): "The Load is Heavy" (Ted Snyder) (arr. Wm. # NEWCOMERS TO S. A. STAGE IN PLAYERS' CAST

In assembling her cast for "Mrs. Bumpstead-Leigh," entertaining comedy which is to be presented on Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights of this week by the Santa Ana Community Players, Miss Edith Cornell, director, was fortunate in securing the co-operation of new members of the association and of several who have been members for a long time but never have taken active part in the dramatic work. Among the latter is Miss Dorothea K. Smith, who will make her first appearance in one of the Community plays, as "Nina," the little maid, but who has taken active part in general work connected with productions and in Barn programs.

Mrs. Harry Brackett is another who has worked in various departments of the organization and who will appear behind the footlights next week in the role of "Mrs de Salle" mother of the famous "Mrs. Bumpstead-Leigh" herself. Miss June Arnold, as "Violet de Salle," the younger daughter, will be the third newcomer to the Santa Ana stage.

In the title role, Miss Cornell will introduce the fourth new Player, Miss Kathryn Kilbourne, a talented girl whose work will be watched with interest by everyone, according to the director, who is enthusiastic over her discovery. Coming to Santa Ana only a few weeks ago, when her father, Dr. Kilbourne, arrived to practice medicine here, Miss Kilbourne immediately identified herself with the dramatic organization. The family lived in Honolulu for 14 years, prior to coming here, and the talented young daughter was a member of the Footlight club a dramatic organization similar to Santa Ana's Community Players.

She also worked with Pasadena Community Players in their production of "Martha" and for several months had the valuable experience of professional work interrupted only by the opportunity to go to Paris for violin study in the "Institut Modern de Violon." There she specialized under Joachim-Chaigneau, devoting some time also to the study of theory, harmony and voice. At present she is continuing her work in music and is a member of a popular Los Angeles string quartet.

Others who will take part in the play, to be presented in the Yost Spurgeon theater, include Mrs. Fannie M. Reeves, Mildred Lucas Snyder, Harry Brackett, J. Wylie Carlyle, Lawrence Phillips, Blythe McCausland, Valmer Clark and Charles Haas. Tickets now are on sale in the Santa Ana Book store.

BUENA PARK

BUENA PARK, Nov. 18.—W. D. Cannon, proprietor of the Sparton store at Artesia and Grand avenues, has leased the room adjoining his store to care for his increasing business. He will add a complete line of feeds to his establishment.

The Buena Park laundry, operated by O. Ross, has been sold to M. Schnair and M. Settleman, of Los Angeles, who have taken possession and have changed the name to the Old Way laundry. The establishment was started two years ago by B. A. Galloway, who later sold to Ross.

Ray Riley To Be Guest Of Lions Council Tonight

Indications today pointed to a large attendance at the meeting, in Fullerton, tonight, of the Orange County Council of Lions Clubs, when Ray Riley, state controller and president of Lions International, will be the guest of honor. Riley recently announced his candidacy for the governorship of California in the 1930 election. Riley will not discuss politics tonight, but will confine his address to Lionism. The meeting is to be held in Odd Fellows hall, with dinner being served at 7 o'clock.

Taxpayers' Meet Called Tonight

Taxpayers who want to correct certain conditions that have prevailed in Orange county for some time, are urged to come to the Emmanuel Baptist church building, Sixth and French, Santa Ana, at 7:30 tonight. An investigation that has been conducted by private citizens, reveals that undoubtedly a grand jury investigation is needed at this time. Certain statements made by a county citizen are sufficient to justify this action, in the opinion of Charles F. Havens, who has called the meeting.

Shall The People Rule?

By WAYNE GOBLE
Secretary of the Citizens' League

America is supposed to have a government "of the people, for the people, and by the people." In other words, the MAJORITY rules, and we have never countenanced a czaristic form of government where there is rule by the small group, "regardless" of the people. Our governing bodies are supposed to reflect the majority sentiment of the people they represent.

That principle of rule by the people, for the welfare of the majority, has been so important to America that thousands upon thousands of our patriots have gone to war and been killed that this American principle might endure. "Eternal viligance is the price of safety," and we must be eternally vigilant to maintain and preserve the rights and privileges that our forefathers fought for.

In early days, those who objected to an autocratic form of government and were men enough to fight it, shouldered their muskets and were called "revolutionists." Today we use the ballot, petitions, and protests, and are called "disgruntled voters," "petty oppositionists," and "obstructors of progress."

The Santa Ana Boulevard may be needed, but we of the Citizens League do not think so. The cost of $375,000 or so may not hurt Santa Ana, but we believe it could be much better spent for parks, schools, library, and other civic needs. It may not be a "spite" road, but we think it seems to savor too much of that element, inasmuch as the public statement is made that some of our citizens because "incensed over the repeated annexations of the city of Orange to the west."

The new road might not even damage established business values down Main street, our belief to the contrary notwithstanding. The road might even be the most wonderful thing Orange county ever saw!

But the fact remains that in a city of 35,000 population, in America, five men, comprising the board of city trustees, are attempting to vote bonds against every piece of real estate in the city, to the amount of $375,000 or more, without even submitting the question to a vote of the people. And the further fact remains that because a vicious state law gives them the power to do so, they have made a solemn pledge to a few voters at West Orange that if they would vote to annex the desired needle-point strip to the city of Santa Ana, those five men would see that the bonds were issued and the road built "regardless of protests."

No matter how they became embroiled in such a situation, our city trustees are attempting an autocratic form of government without a vote of the people they were chosen to represent, and such action is either right or wrong. It is American in principle or else it is against the American principle of majority rule.

We of the Citizens League are forced to oppose the new road and the way it is proposed to carry it out, because we honestly and sincerely believe the principle of allowing any five men to vote bonds against the entire city for any purpose short of a grave public emergency does not conform to our American ideal. We are opposing the city trustees, not as individuals, but because of the autocratic program to which they have pledged themselves.

We have undertaken a campaign to recall them from office, because that is the only avenue they left open to the public to effectively oppose their program. They have already given their promise to ignore any protest from the people of Santa Ana.

A recall election is generally regarded as a distasteful, undesirable thing for any city, and it is. A recall should be resorted to only as the last resort, and it was so in this case. A recall is not only the last resort, but the ONLY resort to stop this program to which the city trustees have so definitely committed themselves. It is a choice of recall, or sit idly and helplessly by, and let them carry it out without a word.

There are some things worse than a recall fight, and that is NOT TO FIGHT when your rights are about to be taken away from you, and you believe the procedure to be un-American and wrong. Being a "good fellow" and a "good dog" is all right, and ordinarily helps to ease the struggle of getting through life, but there are limits! Even "good fellows" don't stand idly by and see a big bully ill-treat a small child, nor are we ordinary human beings such "good fellows" as to submit tamely, and without as vigorous a protest as we know how, to having our rights encroached upon.

If two-thirds of the people of Santa Ana had voted bonds to $375,000 or any other amount to build the new road, we few on North Main street, who think we would be hurt, would take our medicine and get by as best we could, for the people would have spoken and the public good is greater than any individual or small group of individuals. Or if the abutting property owners on the new road were paying for it, then it would be their business, not ours, and we would have nothing to say.

But when we think we would be hurt, not helped, by the new road; and when we are to be assessed just as much for it, according to our values, as the abutting property owners, who pay no direct assessment for the road; and when, in addition, the bonds are to be voted by FIVE MEN and not by two-thirds of the voters of Santa Ana—then we "good fellows" of the Citizens League believe we are upright, progressive American citizens when we oppose this road program to the best of our ability.

We may be right, and we may be wrong, but we want the people of Santa Ana to be the judge; not FIVE of the people, but ALL the people.

EFFECTS ON THE HUMAN BODY

What is a stimulant?

A—"A stimulant is a substance which, when taken into the body, excites some or all of the cells of the body to greater action than is usual for them."—Bulletin E, Physiology and Hygiene, Nebraska Department of Public Instruction.

What is a narcotic?

A—"A narcotic is a substance which, when taken into the body, tends to deaden the action of all or a part of the cells of the body."—Bulletin E, Physiology and Hygiene, Nebraska Department of Public Instruction.

Is alcohol a stimulant or a narcotic?

A—"Scientific laboratory studies show that alcohol is not a stimulant to body activities, as had long been supposed, but, that it depresses the nerve centers that control them. It was proved that alcohol belongs to the class of drugs called narcotics. The characteristic action of narcotics is to check or paralyze activity. The action of alcohol is most closely allied to that of drugs like ether and chloroform."—Alcohol in Experience and Experiment, by Stoddard.

What is alcohol?

A—"Alcohol is a liquid substance that exists in a number of forms, each having a distinct composition and producing a particular effect. Quite the most common of the forms are grain alcohol and wood alcohol. Only the first of these forms is used in beverages. The latter is used as a combustible mainly. Both forms are poisonous when taken internally, but wood alcohol acts much more quickly in producing its serious effects. Indeed, it is so poisonous that the fumes from it, working on the eyes for a while, tend to produce blindness. Wood alcohol is sometimes used to 'denature' grain alcohol. Grain alcohol is given this name because much of it is made from sprouted grain. Fruit juices, when fermented with wild yeast, produce this kind of alcohol, also. This is the kind of alcohol that has been the subject of political and social controversies in many countries for many years. Whether or not it is good for mankind to drink is a question that science should settle, indeed, has already settled."—Bulletin E, Physiology and Hygiene, Nebraska Department of Public Instruction.

What is the difference between distilled and fermented liquor?

A—"Fermented liquors, such as wines, fermented cider, beer and other malt liquors, are produced by the chemical action of yeast upon the sugars of fruit juices or of sprouted grain in solution. These liquors may contain up to 12 per cent or 14 per cent of alcohol, not more, because when they contain this much alcohol, the activity of the yeast stops. Some wines contain a higher percentage of alcohol because it has been added to them. Distilled liquors are derived from fermented liquors and may contain 50 per cent, or even more, of alcohol."—Cora Frances Stoddard.

When did the use of distilled liquors begin.

A—"The first records of using the process of distillation in making beverages appear around 1200 A. D. The use of distilled liquors did not become general until about 1500 A. D. The drunkenness recorded earlier in classic literature and the scriptures was therefore caused by beverages of the wine and beer class, as there were no distilled liquors."—Cora Frances Stoddard.

What is intoxication?

A—"Intoxication is a poisoning."—Webster's Revised Unabridged Dictionary.

A—Yes.—Webster's Revised Unabridged Dictionary.

What are the different stages of intoxication?

A—"In the first stage, if the quantity of alcohol taken is small, the drinker may not be conscious of any effects. Perhaps his companions even do not notice any conspicuous ill effects. Yet delicate and careful experiments show that even at this stage self-control is somewhat impaired. Dr. Harvey W. Wiley relates that when a student in Germany he drank beer with his fellow students. He was fond of chess. After a time he discovered that when playing with an opponent of equal strength, where as a rule the results would be 50-50 over a series of games, they became 75 to 25 in favor of the opponent if Dr. Wiley drank but a single glass of beer. There was a slight degree of alcoholic poisoning which no one else saw, and which he himself would not have recognized had it not been for the test of ability in the games of chess.

"In the second stage of intoxication, signs of it may appear as unusual gaiety or readiness of speech as self-control is impaired, but with this greater fluency there may be less consideration of what one says. 'The drinker begins to show a certain clumsiness in behavior—he is liable to make ill-adjusted movement; on setting down his glass, it makes a more violent contact with the table than he had intended; on rising, he may slur a word; the fineness of his ear, of his taste, his touch, his vision, is blunted; he is apt to give way from boisterous merriment to tears, from elated boasting to despondency.' If he happens to be driving an automobile, he takes chances he would not take if he were in a normal state, ignores speed laws, and gives rein to speed mania aroused by the temporary feeling of elation due to the dulling by alcohol of certain nerve centers of control.

"The third stage of intoxication shows itself in greater impairment of control of the muscles; movements of legs and hands are uncertain.

"Many observers fail to recognize that this is a state of poisoning. They laugh at the poisoned victim's actions, looking upon them as funny. To the thoughtful observer they are tragic. No one laughs at the man who has difficulty in walking because he has injured a limb. It is worse to injure the delicate brain and nerve cells that control bodily motion, and that is what alcohol has done to the drinker who says or does foolish or absurd things under its influence.

"When this stage of poisoning is well advanced, the hasty word or misunderstanding by an alcohol-controlled brain may easily lead to an uncontrolled and serious act. The writer" (Cora Frances Stoddard, Secretary Scientific Temperance Federation) "one morning several years ago had occasion to attend a police court as a witness. While waiting, a young man was brought to the bar charged with disorderly conduct on a street car. 'Are you guilty or not guilty?' asked the judge. 'I don't know, your honor,' was the answer, 'I was under the influence of liquor.'

"The fourth stage of intoxication shows itself in dullness, sleepiness, and finally helplessness. Now the drinker may have to be helped home; or he may fall unconscious, perhaps on the street where, as the old Egyptian father wrote to his beer-drinking son, no one may be near to help. If the narcotic action of alcohol goes still farther, it may affect the nerve centers controlling respiration; breathing ceases, and that is the end."—Alcohol in Experience and Experiment, by Stoddard.

Which of these is the drunkenness stage?

A—"Through all these stages there has been alcoholic intoxication; the degree has been increasing; drunkenness was only a late stage. But it was a steady progress of narcotic intoxication from beginning to end."—Alcohol in Experience and Experiment, by Stoddard.

How is the drink habit formed?

BEGINS WITH SOCIABILITY

A—"Physicians have made many inquiries of patients whom they were treating for drunkenness or chronic alcoholic poisoning. They learned that in the majority of cases the drink habit was begun in drinking companies and for the sake of being sociable. The drinker seldom had at first any real liking for the drink or for its effects.

THE DECEPTIVE PLEASURE

"Under the pressure of social customs which leads to the repetition of drinking, after a time the drinker begins to notice a pleasant feeling following the drink. Perhaps he feels more at ease; more gay; thinks he talks more entertainingly; if he is a worker, he may think he does his work with less effort, or that after his beer he is rested—in all of which he is deceived.

"The deception comes from the dulling of the nerve centers by alcohol as has already been explained. It is both a deceptive and an alluring effect because it makes the drinker think that he feels better, when really he is being poisoned or drugged.

DRINKING FOR THE "KICK"

"Unless he knows the true nature of this deceptive feeling, he is likely to drink again to get it. Little by little he increases the amount he consumes. Why he does this will be explained in the next section. Beverages that do not produce the drug effect do not then satisfy him; he complains that they lack 'kick.' This objection shows that the drinker is in danger. It shows that what he wants is not a palatable, refreshing drink, but alcohol. He is not satisfied with a mild beer, even with such as the so-called '2.75 per cent beer,' because, he complains, it lacks 'kick.' This means that it is not beer, but the alcohol, that he wants. When any drinker reaches that stage, he is in danger of addiction to alcohol in the same sense that the opium user is addicted to opium when he is uncomfortable without it. The desire for the drug effect grows stronger as the drugged brain becomes less able to control the desire. This is the way addiction to alcohol grows in thousands of drinkers. No one knows in advance whether the drug will enslave him. He finds out only by taking a chance; and when he finds out, it is often too late to break off without a terrific struggle. Some drinkers never do succeed in stopping.

WHY DRINKING FOR EFFECT LEADS TO INCREASED DOSE

"There is a very familiar old saying credited to the Japanese, that first the man takes a drink; then the drink takes a drink; then the drink takes the man. Like many another popular observation, science now explains it. Everybody knows that the habitual opium user can take without apparent injury doses of the drug that would be fatal to a non-user. This does not mean that he is not harmed by the drug. In all probability, his digestion is disordered, and his body undernourished; but his nervous system has gradually acquired power to resist doses which at first would have overpowered it and might have proved fatal.

"In a similar way, the nervous system acquires ability to resist the narcotic effect of doses of alcohol which, taken all at once for the first time, would have overpowered it and caused drunkenness. But again this does not mean that the alcohol is not meanwhile injuring the user.

BECOMING AN ALCOHOLIC

"Here is what happens: The drinker of frequent small amounts of alcohol in alcoholic liquors, such as beer, wine, or cider, thinks they make him feel good. That feeling of 'well-being' (euphoria 's the scientific name for it) is due to the narcotic effect of the alcohol. The nervous system gradually has to take more and more alcohol to get the feeling of comfort or well-being that he desires; in fact, he is uncomfortable without it. Such a drinker imagines that his gradually increasing amounts do not harm him because they do not make him drunk. In this he is mistaken. The alcohol he is taking into his system is a poison to his cells and tissues. The body gradually changes it into less harmful substances, but the process is a slow one, and as long as any alcohol circulates in the blood, it poisons to some extent the cells to which the blood carries it.

"A regular daily drinker who takes an ordinary drink of wine, beer or whisky every few hours during the day keeps his tissues constantly in contact with the poison. He becomes a chronic alcoholic, even though he may seldom or never get drunk, and he shows to physicians who understand his case symptoms of chronic alcoholism."—Alcohol in Experience and Experiment, by Stoddard.

Want to Look Young?

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you 90 per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound as a substitute for calomel to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are gentle in their action yet always effective. They help bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c, 30c, 60c.—Adv.

VIKINGS HELPLESS BEFORE SANTA ANA'S GREAT LINE; COOKMEN NEAR GRID TITLE

By "SKY" DUNLAP

Viking blood failed to inspire the Long Beach junior college football team to any great achievements Saturday afternoon and as a result, Coach Bill Cook's Santa Ana Dons won another conference game, cinched a top position in the league calendar, pushed Long Beach down to the second division and definitely stood out as the team to beat for the flag in the Southern California Junior College circuit. The Padres had an easy time winning, 22 to 0.

Long Beach was helpless against the determined drives of the Spaniards and the local line of veterans was impregnable when touchdowns were concerned. After the first score, a safety in the first few minutes of play, it was only a question of how many points the Cookmen would roll up. Pre-game reports had it that eight Vikings were ineligible because of deficient studies but they were miraculously "fixed" before the game for only one regular, Frank Jordan, center, was on the sidelines.

Score In Hurry

The game was only six plays old when the locals took advantage of a lucky break and scored a safety. After kicking off to Van Meter, Long Beach held the Santa Anans and forced Garlock to kick, the ball rolling to the goal line where Meyer picked it up. Two tacklers hit him hard and the ball jumped out of his hands, to be covered by both Ed Adams and Captain Herald Hylton for two points.

The first touchdown came near the middle of the second quarter as the result of a poor kick by Captain Mobley of Long Beach. Garlock booted out of bounds on the five-yard line. Long Beach was offside and Mobley was forced to kick from far behind his own goal-line. Warmer and Adams broke through and hurried the punt, which came down on the 20-yard line.

Dutton reeled off five yards and Garlock ran for two more. Dutton took the ball to the 11-yard line and then made it a first down on the 10-yard stripe. Garlock went through tackle for five yards, hit center for two yards, Dutton missed scoring by inches and Garlock slithered over the line for six points. The Cookman used an old trick to get their extra point, Dutton carrying the ball over unexpectedly while Warner was smoothing out a place to dropkick.

Rimel Goes Over

Keeping up its one score a quarter tune, the men from the Santa Ana hacienda made the count 16 to 0 in the third period. This was the result of another break when the Padres took possession on the 14-yard line, after Garlock had punted out of bounds and Mobley fumbled on the first play. Rimel crashed through for three yards, Dutton chalked up five and Rimel then whacked away two times, going over on the second attempt. Wallace put a perfect kick through the crossbars for the extra point.

"Red" Manderscheid took a big jump toward all-conference honors in this game, featuring with a wild exhibition in the fourth quarter while nearly singlehanded taking the ball from his own 10-yard line to a touchdown.

Pasadena, bye.

Just the best of them were left in the quest for the Southern California junior college football championship today.

They were Santa Ana, Fullerton and Pasadena, with Pasadena a technical leader only by reason of haing played and won one more game than the others. The Pirates draw their bye this week. Santa Ana and Fullerton already have had their open date.

Everything now points to what happens Thanksgiving Day when Santa Ana engages Fullerton at Poly field and Pasadena goes to Long Beach. The Don-Yellowjacket tussle will eliminate one or the other of the old rivals from the chase, although Fullerton will have to be at its best Saturday to handle the inconsistent Chaffey Panthers who might get "hot" and dispose of Art Nunn's upcounty squad themselves.

Coach Bill Cook will send his Padres to Glendale Saturday. Fresh from a convincing triumph over Long Beach, the Don spikker now must guard against overconfidence. Glendale hasn't an impressive record but it has made most of its games close.

Santa5s Ana's win at Long Beach cost Cook the services of two of his best backs, Melvin Beatty and Jack Dutton.

Dutton injured his shoulder severely. X-ray pictures will be taken today to determine whether he suffered a broken bone. Dutton is definitely out of the Glendale contest and perhaps the Fullerton match too.

Beatty was on crutches today as the result of torn ligaments in his lewt knee. He also will be lost to the Dons Saturday.

Sell Ducats Tuesday For Grid Classic

Approximately 1000 tickets for reserved seats to the Santa Ana-San Diego high school football game at Poly field next Saturday will go on sale here tomorrow morning.

They may be obtained at the Victor Walker sporting goods store, 219 West Fourth street, or at the high school.

The largest crowd that ever saw a football game in this city is expected to overflow the Saint bleachers, and school officials urge fans to buy their pasteboards early.

More than a thousand persons will attend from San Diego alone, it is understood.

COUNTRY CLUB FAVORITES ALL SURVIVE ROUND

It was a good week for the favorites at the Santa Ana Country club. The "big guns" all survived the first round of the organization's annual golf championship.

Ed Holmes jr., two-time winner of the title, had to "bear down" to dispose of Lester Carden but won, one up. The champion next faces W. E. Chilson who took the measure of Lawrence D. Coffing, one up.

Van Pomeroy, one of the club's youngest and best golfers, had to go 22 holes to win from Hugh Smith. He meets J. L. Ainsworth in the second round. Ainsworth eliminated J. K. McDonald, 2 and 1.

L. W. Bemis beat R. E. Graves, 2 and 1, and will go against Mark Lacy who won from Dr. G. C. Ross, one up.

F. E. (Ed) Farnsworth, former club titleholder, went into the second round by disposing of B. V. Curry, one up in 19 holes. Farnsworth's next opponent will be Jack Meiss, conqueror of G. B. Shattuck, 4 and 3.

Curry Wins Medal Play Sweepstakes

Aided by a hole-in-one, B. V. Curry won Class A medal play sweepstakes at the Santa Ana Country club yesterday. He had a card of 80-8-72. B. Z. McKinney, 88-14-74, and J. L. Ainsworth, 86-12-74, tied for second.

H. B. Rapp, 89-20-69, won in Class B. M. E. Johnson, 94-24-70, was second and E. Robbins, 93-20-73, third.

B. Z. McKinney, one down, was first in Class A match play Saturday. M. B. Lacy and Ed Holmes were two down. F. W. Chapman, one down, won the Class B match play competition. H. L. Miller was two down and C. P. Patton, M. B. Wellington, W. C. Pixley and S. R. Bowen all five down.

HELPED IRISH BEAT TROJANS

Lawrence ("Moon") Mullens, former South Pasadena high school star, evacuated Troy's own district to enlist at Notre Dame. Saturday he helped Knute Rockne's Irish defeat Howard Jones' Trojans, 13 to 12, at Chicago.

CURRY MAKES HOLE-IN-ONE; NEXT GOLFER BARELY MISSES

Lightning may never strike twice in the same place but it almost did in the Santa Ana Country club yesterday.

B. V. Curry, Towner Manufacturing company official, made a hole-in-one on the 154-yard No. 17. E. T. Mateer, Santa Ana druggist, was the next player in Curry's foursome to have the honor and Mateer laid his tee shot within eight inches of the cup.

Curry used a No. 7 iron. It was a perfect ace, his drive landing on the edge of the green and rolling straight for the pin and into the cup. Mateer's pitch was almost as straight. The druggist holed out for a birdie two.

Martin Marzolf, club grounds superintendent, and George Baker, local stock salesman, were playing with Curry and Mateer and attested to the former's ace which entitles him to the National Hole-in-One club.

INTERCOLLEGIATE FOOTBALL IN STRETCH RUN NOW; NUMBER OF ELEVENS MAY GO UNDEFEATED

By DAVIS J. WALSH
(I. N. S. Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Intercollegiate football was beginning its run down the stretch today, with the wire only a few jumps ahead, and any man with a couple of eyes and the ambition to use both of them simultaneously can pick a winner at a glance.

This, as a matter of fact, seems to be the abiding problem. There are too many winners. It is a simple matter to pick the leaders. They are Notre Dame, Pittsburgh, Purdue, Tennessee, California, Tulane, Texas Christian, Utah and possibly St. Mary's, Detroit, Southern Methodist and a few others. It only begins to get difficult when you try to distinguish one from the other with the idea of arriving at some degree of relative strength.

Irish May Be Best

After its 13 to 12 victory over Southern California, nobody can claim any national titles without first consulting Notre Dame. Yet the latter isn't even undisputed champion of the state of Indiana. For Purdue was as impressive as ever before in winning the Big Ten championship by beating Iowa, 7 to 0, and if it lasts through next Saturday, its status will be beyond the eloquence of debate.

Frankly, Purdue should finish its season undefeated. So should a Pittsburgh team that was great enough to run up 21 points on an arch-rival in the first period and finally give Carnegie Tech its worst beating of recent years, 34 to 13.

It isn't likely, either, that anybody is going to stop Tennessee, Tulane, California or Utah. The Notre Dame situation isn't foolproof yet, with the Army and Northwestern coming up, and undoubtedly Texas Christian won't begin making plans for spring practice before it gets through with Southern Methodist. The rest of them may go wrong. But they probably won't.

It, therefore, seems probable that at least a half dozin teams will do what the taxi driver did on the day he didn't beat the railroad train to the crossing. They will run a dead heat, too.

Spaking of daths, two of them were died on Saturday when Cornell finished last behind Dartmouth by 18 to 1 and Texas lost to the Christians by 15 to 12. This pair of Southwest leaders went crazy early in the game but the Christians went the crazier and won. They were the first team to score on Texas this year, leaving only St. Mary's with an uncrossed goal line, so far as I know.

As for Cornell, it was eliminated from the national sweetstakes when its quarterback elected to gamble with a pass in his own territory with five minutes to play. That automatically made Cornell the worst team on the field.

Irish Victory Earned

Notre Dame's split-second victory over U. S. C. was a repetition of their 1926 game, as far as the score went. But, as far as the play went; it had no parallel. The Irish won this football game strictly on its merits, the Trojan scores coming on long-gain plays and their feared "power" attack being throttled down to nothing. Trey were out-rushed, out-passed and out-charged, according to the run of the plan. In brief, the better team won.

There wasn't any doubt that this was so in Pitt's case. Tech, in fact, did well to score. Tennessee's 13 to 0 decision over Vanderbilt was equally impressive.

Purdue had to get the benefit of two major calamities before the Big Ten title was hers, these being Northwestern's defeat by Indiana, 19 to 14, and Michigan's victory over Minnesota, 7 to 6. Both were last period victories and both were earned. But, in this, they had nothing on Purdue's win from Iowa. Twice the latter was held for downs inside the 10-yard line, while the Purdue touchdown was as legitimate as a marriage license.

It was quite a day for subsati-

Three Teams In Race For Prep Crown

Santa Ana, San Diego and Long Beach all have a chance to win the football championship of the Coast Preparatory league next Saturday when the regular season comes to a close.

The Saints and the Jackrabbits are still tied for first place with San Diego close behind, as a result of last week's games which found Santa Ana an easy winner but Long Beach having a hard time winning from Alhambra and San Diego closely pressed by Pasadena. ## BABY DEMPSEY FACES HERMAN HERE TUESDAY

Baby Jack Dempsey, knockout sensation of the Orange County Athletic club, faces the keenest competition of his spectacular career tomorrow night, an opponent that promises to make the miniature Manassa Mauler work faster than he ever has worked before.

Checkie Herman, San Bernardino featherweight, is listed as Dempsey's main event rival. Herman has maturity, experience, class and almost everything else on his side of the fence. Baby Jack has youth and punch, two great assets.

They will go eight rounds on a card that offers another eight-round main event between Joe Reece and Drewry Willis, welters; a semi-windup between Luis Echeveste and Harry Perdue, featherweights, and two four-round preliminaries.

Never Knocked Out

Herman, 23 and father of three robust children, is at the peak of his career. Within the last year he has beaten Ramon Montoya, Jimmie Piela, Jimmy Black, Alkie Alkol, Kid Avelino, Trip Limbaco and California Joe Lynch. Midget Mike O'Dowd shaded Herman in his only losing bout. Herman never has been knocked out.

Baby Jack, formerly known as Wendell Long, has fought twice in Santa Ana in the last six weeks. He kayoed Pat Duncan in the first round and stopped Knockout Brown with the first punch of the fight.

The Alhambra boy looked like a champion in those two bouts although it is admitted that neither Duncan nor Brown was the stiffest of opposition. Herman, however, is far above their class. Some think he is too good to be meeting Dempsey, too.

Willis Meets Joe Reese

Bob White, well known San Bernardino manager, will bring Herman's sparring partnerr, Drewry Willis, to meet Joe Reese in the first half of the double windup.

Willis has lost only three times in 30 starts. Clarence Elliott, Donnie Dundee, Leonard Allen and Chick Peralta are among his many victims. Reese is a Santa Ana Mexican who has improved tremendously in the last three months. He has made the climb from preliminary boy to the top flight in that time, this being his first main event.

HUNTINGTON BEACH PLAYS 7 TO 7 TIE

GAME WITH SAN DIEGO TO DECIDE CHAMPIONSHIP OF COAST PREPARATORY LOOP

Santa Ana's eight-year-old dream for a place in the gridiron sun seemed more than just a foundationless air castle today as one of its finest high school elevens, having dazzled Glendale with more football than the Dynamiters knew what to do with, rolled up its sleeves, spat on its hands and went to work for Saturday's game at Poly field with San Diego which will determine title to the 1929 Coast Preparatory league championship.

Coach "Tex" Oliver's machine bewildered Glendale here last Saturday with an assortment of offensive football that manufactured a 33 to 6 victory.

The Saints scored in every quarter, one touchdown in the first, one in the second, two in the third and one in the fourth. Harold Pangle, rugged halfback, added the extra point after three of the touchdowns.

"Blondy" Germain, a fast, smallish substitute back, scored Glendale's only points late in the second quarter when he captured a short forward pass on the Saints' 35-yard line and ran untagged to the goal-line behind some good interference.

Saints Play Conservatively

Santa Ana won, almost as it pleased, without opening its bag of tricks to the San Diego scouts at the tip of the bleachers. Coach Oliver utilized a few reverse plays and one or two spinners but for the most part was confident to employ straight power stuff that worked better anyway. The Saint mentor also had a stream of substitutes in the game part of the time although he played the gifted Al Reboin, dashing triple threat quarterback, most of the way and Pangle, his other offensive genius, the entire route.

More important, however, is the fact that the Santa Anans came out of it whole and hearty and, barring the always possible grist of injuries in practice scrimmage this week, will be able to use its strongest lineup against San Diego.

The Saints wasted no time getting the bulge on Glendale. They scored in the first five minutes.

Gain on Kick Exchange

Receiving the kickoff, Santa Ana made a first down and then "Toy" Blower kicked beautifully to Glendale's 22-yard line. Unable to gain, the Dynamiters kicked back poorly to their own 35-yard line from where the local plunged and passed to a touchdown without losing control of the ball.

Pangle hit the middle for eight yards in two attempts and Reboin circled end for a first down on the 25-yard line, Reboin contributed seven yards in two off-tackle smashes and then passed perfectly to Blower, the sophomore end, who caught the ball on Glendale's 10-yard line and ran the rest of the way for a touchdown. Pangle's dropkick for the extra point was wide.

Santa Ana soon had the Dynamiters in the hole again. Reboin intercepted a pass near midfield immediately after the kickoff and the Saints drove to the 9-yard line just as the first quarter ended. In this march they utilized among other things the age-old Statue of Liberty play on which Reboin reeled off 15 yards.

Score In Eight Plays

Santa Ana threw an incomplete pass over the goal with the first play of the second quarter and Glendale took the ball on the 20-yard stripe. Fifteen yards on a penalty gave the Dynamiters a chance to get started but they were forced to kick, the ball being grounded on Santa Ana's 44-yard line. From this point Santa Ana scored in eight plays, two triple passes with Reboin carrying the nugget making most of yardage. The second one left the ball on the 10-yard line. Reboin made four of it off tackle and circled left end behind some fine interference for the score. Pangle bucked the ball over for the extra point.

The Saints launched another determined offensive after the subsequent kickoff that took the ball well into Dynamiter territory but Germain, Glendale's outstanding player, stopped it by intercepting a pass on his own 35-yard line. Germain then caught a long pass for a first down on Santa Ana's 40-yard line and an instant later clutched a short one on the 35-yard mark and ran, unmolested, for a touchdown. The Glendale interference "ironed out" Santa Ana's secondary on this plan and Germain had nothing to do but run. Glendale tried to pass for the extra point but Stultz's throw was inaccurate.

The half ended almost as sensationally on the next play, Reboin catching the kickoff on his 5-yard line. He eluded everybody but the Dynamiter safety man.

Saints Cinch Victory

Their 13 to 6 advantage none too secure, Santa Ana assured itself of victory on the first ten minutes of the second half by scoring two touchdowns.

The Saints kicked off and Glendale, passing on almost every play, wormed the ball almost to midfield before Blower intercepted a pass. Then, with big Pangle cracking the center and Reboin slanting off tackle and end, Santa Ana "powered" to the Glendale goal in short order. An eight-yard gain by Pangle through the middle was the longest run of the drive which found Santa Ana having a first down on the 3-yard line and Pangle carrying it across in two attempts. He also bucked over for the extra point, making the count 20 to 6.

Reboin's beautiful cutback produced the fourth score. The Dynamiters received the kickoff but were held and punted to Santa Ana's 44-yard line. Pangle and Reboin made a first down in three plays and Nuzum circled left end for seven, putting the sphere on

CHATS with the Match Maker

We're going to have a pretty boxing show at O.C.A.C. tomorrow night. I'm writing that first because I do not want you to miss it and you may be too busy to read this all the way through. Here's the card:

MAIN
DEMPSEY
—vs—
HERMAN

MAIN
Joe
REESE
—vs—
Drewry
WILLIS
8 rounds

Louis Echeveste vs. Harry Perdue, 6 rounds.

Tex Stennett vs. Ernie Hunt, 4 rounds.

Louie Medina vs. Edward Rubio, 4 rounds.

Now that's a nice card—double main—both of which promise to be fast and furious all the way through. Why, already other clubs are bidding to get the winners of these two main events to appear at their club to meet the best boy obtainable.. Dick Dillard of San Diego has issued a challenge for his boy Raymond Montoya to meet Baby Jack Dempsey if he cleans up Checkie Herman—and do not forget they have a good club at San Diego too. Baby Jack has won both of his fights here via the kayoe route but it is a question as to whether he will meet with the same good fortune tomorrow night. Checkie Herman is smart and packs a mean punch and may upset the dope.

Fighting Joe Reese comes to the door to bigger things when he faces Drewry Willis tomorrow. It will be Reese's first showing in a main and he must deliver the goods. Willis comes here well-rated and promises to give Joe a busy evening.

In the special event Louis Echeveste will take on Harry Perdue. Tex Sennett meets Ernie Hunt in one of the prelims and Louie Medina and Edward Rubio will fight the curtain raiser. The whole card is good but those two eight round main events should be worth the price all by themselves. Popular prices, as usual.

Many Crops Thrive In Mesa Area Due To Fine Soils

HUNDREDS OF ACRES PLANTED TO TOMATOES

COSTA MESA, Nov. 18.—On what was but a few years ago a series of barley fields, bean fields and barren wastes is located a prosperous, thrifty and happy community.

Located as it is on a mesa near the sea, but back inland far enough to escape the cold fog laden winds that blow off the sea at certain times of the year, yet near enough the sea that hot inland seasons are tempered by the ocean breezes, Costa Mesa has a climate striking a more happy medium of perfection than is enjoyed by many places.

Beans, Barley Thrive

Beans and barley thrive here but she also has a climate that is good for the raising of all kinds of fruit from the apple, peach, pear, strawberry, persimmon, and other of the temperate zone fruits to the orange, lemon, avocado, and such fruits that flourish only in a tropical or semi-tropical climate.

The soil on the mesa varies from the light sandy loams to the heavier clays and gumbo, all of which are very fertile and only need water and the kind of crop suitable to the particular type of soil to raise a bumper crop.

Plenty of Water

Costa Mesa has an abundant supply of fine soft water. Having the advantages of a superior climate, a wonderful fertile variety of soils and plenty of water, many Costa Mesans are taking advantage of the same and in some cases are going into certain lines of fruit growing or gardening quite extensively. All of the garden truck, such as carrots, beets, beans, peas, and onions consumed here is raised here. A great deal is sent to the markets in the surrounding towns and also to the Los Angeles produce market.

Hundreds of acres of tomatoes are grown each year for the very early markets and along through the summer season to the late markets, when they are green packed and shipped to the mid-west and eastern markets.

Costa Mesa conditions are well adapted to the raising of peas and both lima and Kentucky Wonder beans, which are on the markets all the year except just a few weeks in the winter season. Among the fruits, the peach thrives exceptionally well and produces a very superior quality of fruit when properly cared for and is regularly taking many first prizes at various California fairs and fruit shows, besides being heard from very favorably even outside of California.

Citrus Fruit Popular

Citrus fruits have their place among the mesa products, some orange and lemon groves second to none being located here. Although being a sensitive fruit to propagate and produce, the avocado does very well if properly cared for, several of the extensive orchardists having quite a number of trees in their groves.

Going hand in hand with a thrifty plant life we have the animal life which is by no means neglected in Costa Mesa and on the outskirts of the more thickly populated districts. In the more thickly settled areas the hen has her place, some of the finest poultry yards of all Southern California being located here. Most of the poultry industry is given over to utility stock and the production of eggs for the market. However, most of the yards are stocked with well bred strains of fowl. The mesa also boasts of some of the best rabbit plants to be seen anywhere, the climate and food factors being almost perfect for the industry.

Silver Fox Farm

Among special lines Costa Mesa boasts a silver fox farm stocked with the best to be had. It also has one of the most beautiful and thoroughly stocked and equipped bird and pet animal establishments anywhere. At the Costa Mesa bird farm is to be seen canaries galore, parrots, parakeets, finches, pheasants, pigeons and many other tropical fowl, besides practically all the domestic types of monkeys and fishes of many styles and hues.

On the outskirts of the mesa are the dairies, there being some four major outfits, the largest of which is the Brown dairy at the west foot of Victoria street, which has a herd running well over the hundred mark, of which 80 to 100 of the stock are constantly producing.

TUESDAY NIGHT IS FIGHT NITE! IN SANTA ANA.

Growing Problems Before Residents Of Mesa District

COSTA MESA, Nov. 18.—Costa Mesa, showing a population of 3500 a year ago from a careful survey made at that time, is beginning to talk and think of a fire department, sewer and garbage disposal system, beautification programs and such. What is now a part time functioning chamber of commerce will no doubt in the near future, probably the first of the year be reorganized into a stronger and more active civic body. The coming of the new high school, launching of new business enterprises, the incoming of new families and kindred things foretell this.

HANDSOME NEW BRICK BLOCK IS COMPLETED

COSTA MESA, Nov. 18.—The latest addition to the business section of Costa Mesa is the new two-story Paterson building at the corner of Newport boulevard and Broadway, at a cost to William Paterson, one of Costa Mesa's realtors, of around $30,000.

The plans were drawn by William Sibley, who was in charge of the construction work.

The building is of brick and steel construction, extending along Broadway 100 feet with a front on Newport boulevard of 79 feet. The downstairs section of the building is divided up into four business rooms, glazed tiles and plate glass inclosing them on their Newport boulevard frontage.

Eight Office Rooms

The second floor is divided into eight office rooms and a three-room apartment in the rear on the Broadway side. The upstairs floors are all finished in oak, and the walls and woodwork of the rooms are decorated and finished in keeping with an up-to-date, first-class job. The Broadway-Newport boulevard corner room on the ground floor has been leased to the Costa Mesa pharmacy. The Safeway company is occupying the second room from the corner. Lloyd Braddy's barber shop occupies the third room. The Costa Mesa pool and billiard room has leased and is now occupying the fourth ground floor room. The rear of the building has in it a roomy garage opening out onto Broadway.

Uses Old Building

Mr. Paterson has utilized his old buildings, setting them on his property just east of the new building facing on Broadway, using one of the rooms for his office and remodeling the other into a business room. The building up of the Paterson corner is a very visible indication of the signs of the times insofar as the growth of Costa Mesa is concerned.

Greener Structure

Only a few weeks before the erection of the Paterson building, Emil Greener, Costa Mesa furniture dealer and one of its cabinet workers, realizing the need of more room for his rapidly increasing business, had finished a two-story white stucco building at the southwest corner of Eighteenth street and Newport road, using the whole of the ground floor to house his business. The Modern Woodmen have a lease on the second story of the building in which they hold their meetings. They also sublet the hall for parties, dances and dinners.

Spencer Building

Dropping on back a season, Costa Mesa saw the completion of the Carl Spencer building, now housing the C. J. Lewis market No. 1 and the Flinn electric shop and Variety store.

At the present time there are but two or three openings in the block between Eighteenth street and Broadway for buildings and the owners are justly proud of their possession for it will only be a matter of a short time until they will be needed.

P. T.-A. OF MESA PRESENTS PROGRAM

COSTA MESA, Nov. 18.—The Costa Mesa P.-T. A., under the leadership of its president, Mrs. A. P. Raines, met in the school auditorium Friday night, featuring a program in keeping with fathers' night.

C. B. Baldwin, principal of the Huntington Beach grammar schools, delivered the main address, speaking on the subject, "Lads and Dads." After the address by Mr. Baldwin and several special musical numbers, the audience retired to the outer halls, where the heads of the refreshment committee, Mrs. C. M. McClintock and Mrs. N. C. Lamberton, served the assembly with punch and dainty cakes and cookies.

SUBSTANTIAL BUSINESS BUILDINGS SHOW COSTA MESA GROWTH

CIVIC WORK IS AIDED BY MESA CLUB OF LIONS

COSTA MESA, Nov. 18.—Not to be outdone by other surrounding towns in the way of service clubs, Costa Mesa has an active Lions club. When organized in 1927, Dr. C. G. Houston was made president of the organization and served until recently, when Charles Dunn was put into the president's chair. The club meets in the Woman's club house on Newport road every Tuesday at 12:10 p. m. and many fine programs are presented. Luncheon is served by the members of the Friday Afternoon club. The last meeting of the county council of Lions clubs was held with the Mesa Lions.

Troop Sponsored

During most of their time since organization the members have sponsored either a Boy Scout or a Cub Scout troop.

In the first year of their existence they also cleaned up and prepared a playground for the Costa Mesa Girls' Athletic club. In their second year they organized an indoor baseball team and equipped the ball field with lights so that games could be scheduled for evenings. This same year they also made a substantial donation to the county health camp and contributed toward making parks in town.

New Club Planned

The club is at present reaching out for new services to do and is considering the sponsoring of a Junior Lions club for the young men of the Mesa who have no club homes and as an overflow organization for the older Boy Scouts and kindred organizations.

COSTA MESA

COSTA MESA, Nov. 18.—The president of the Community church Epworth league, Lee Belding, residing on Flower street, invited the league cabinet to his home for a conference on matters pertaining to league affairs recently. The Rev. A. F. Hasse sat in with the young people for a time.

Those present were Lee Belding and wife, Robert Fuller, Wayne Flinn, Bill Bremer and Lawrence Wright, and the Misses Juanita Seeber, Margaret Seeber and Helen Willcutt.

E. L. Hicks, living on Fairview avenue near Nineteenth street, was stricken with acute indigestion Saturday morning and was hurried back to his home by his brother, George Hicks, who was with him at the time, and a doctor was summoned. Under Dr. H. Q. Willis' care he was resuscitated and at last reports was resting and in all probability is out of danger.

Charles Taylor, of Twentieth street, an employe in the Hunting Beach oil field, having been transferred to the Long Beach fields, is making preparations to move his family to Long Beach.

J. A Pearce, of Fairview avenue, is at home with his family for a few days from his business in Los Angeles.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Ranney, former residents of Costa Mesa, but now of Huntington Beach, were in attendance at the Costa Mesa P.-T. A. fathers' night meeting Friday night in the school auditorium.

Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Ferry, of Short street, with their guests, Mrs. J. H. Copeland, of Detroit, Mich., and Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Jamison, of Los Angeles, yesterday toured the coast as far south as San Clemente.

MESA COMMUNITY CHURCH IS ENJOYING RAPID GROWTH

COSTA MESA, Nov. 18. — The Community church was formed with nine members, who erected a house of worship at the corner of Balboa street and Newport road. The building was later moved to Nineteenth street. Two years ago the congregation, having outgrown the old quarters, a new building was erected under the pastorate of the Rev. Lyman R. Bayard.

The new building is a stucco and concrete structure with tile roofing. The church tower stands some 80 feet in the air and is visible from any part of the mesa. The ultimate cost of the building was around $30,000, $1000 worth of labor having been donated by local workmen.

Fine shrubbery has been planted around the building and in the setting it is a real work of art, being visited every week by admirers from many surrounding towns. Almost simultaneously with the work of building, a fine pipe organ was installed. The interior decorations and the lighting system express the last minute in their respective places. The old church was remodeled into a social hall and Sunday school rooms. Located on the back of the lot is the builder's office room, which was donated to and is now used as Boy Scout headquarters.

WOMAN'S CLUB OF COSTA MESA PROVES ACTIVE

COSTA MESA, Nov. 18.—The women of Costa Mesa are awake to the fact that women as well as men have a work to do along civic lines. The oldest of the women's organizations here is the Friday Afternoon club, now functioning under the leadership of Mrs. A. P. Nelson. The Friday Afternoon club is part of a state-wide organization.

Many activities of vital importance to woman and the home are constantly being watched and discussed by the club, as also is the matter of woman's place in the public forum. The club meets each Friday afternoon of the week in its clubhouse on Newport road. The women have a beautiful and spacious hall there with a stage that may be used for various programs. The building has had added a very fine and well equipped kitchen and a spacious dining room. In the rear of theb uilding is the gym girls' playground and the baseball diamond. The club is sponsoring a junior auxiliary, which is growing quite nicely in numbers and interest.

OUTING ARRANGED FOR MESA SCOUTS

COSTA MESA, Nov. 18.—Boy Scouts of Troop No. 6 are back into the business again for their fall and winter activities. The Costa Mesa troop is sponsored by the Community church and the newly appointed minister, the Rev. A. F. Hasse, spoke to the troop members at their last meeting, telling them some of his experiences in scouting, having been a Scoutmaster himself for several years. After the talk by their pastor the troop arranged for an all day hike to take place during the Thanksgiving holiday, the details to be worked out at their next meeting. Instruction in hiking, cooking and merit badge work will be given on this vacation trip.

After the business and social periods a weiner bake was enjoyed by the following members of the troop and applicants seeking admission into troop No. 6: Bill Greschner, Walt Arnold, J. Daley, Robert Carter, Eldon Steele, Floyd Lewis, Bill Dunn, Jean Willcutt, Hugh Davis, Leonard Collins, Albert Ogden, and Emil Mysehn. Those seeking admission were, Fred Murich, Jack Pilkington and Marcus Daley.

Rally Planned By Costa Mesa Scout Troop For Friday

COSTA MESA, Nov. 18.—The Boy Scouts of troop No. 6 are planning a rally and reorganization meeting next Friday evening under the leadership of Scoutmaster Lloyd Willcutt and Assistant Scoutmaster Emil Myrelm sr.

Permanent Waves, $4.50, $6.50 Croq. $7.50. McCoy's, 410½ N. Main.

MANY HOUSES BEING ERECTED IN COSTA MESA

COSTA MESA, Nov. 18.—Costa Mesa never has had what is commonly termed a building boom, but has experienced a healthy, steady growth from the time its first subdivision was laid out. At the present time around 800 families have their homes here and a very large percentage of them own the home that they live in.

Contrary to the experience of many new towns, Costa Mesa has very fortunately builded up with a good class of houses, very few cheap structures and shacks having been built.

At any time, one going from one part of the Mesa to another, will see houses in some stage of construction. A drive over the town today will reveal some eight or ten homes under construction, no one part of the place holding a favored spot particularly.

F. A. Daley has just completed a beautiful six-room stucco residence on Fullerton street, at a cost of approximately $6000. Mr. H. Graham, over on Newport road, has a frame house almost completed. Eighteenth street, just recently paved by the public spirited residents between Newport boulevard and Orange avenue, has a roomy, well arranged stucco house going up and nearly enclosed. Monte Vista avenue at Newport boulevard sees the outlines of a business room, dwelling and garage, under one roof now in the rough. East Monte Vista near Santa Ana avenue has the foundation in for a residence in keeping with the size of a well built up corner there. On the semi downtown secon on Newport boulevard, Joe Overman has just completed a pretty six-room blue stucco at a cost of around $4000. Mr. Overman's nephew, L. V. Weaver, and wife will occupy the place.

'THEY STRUCK OIL' SLATED FOR FRIDAY

COSTA MESA, Nov. 18.—The drama, "They Struck Oil," by Mrs. A. R. Morrison, went over so big when presented by a cast from Mrs. Grow Brown's class of Loyal Workers that they are putting it on again Friday night in the school auditorium.

Those taking parts are Mrs. Morrison, D. J. Dodge, Ed Bennett, Roy Wheeler, Ernest Armstrong, Kieth Hicks, Robert Fuller and Oscar and Rosco Kitto, and Miss Helen Sexton, Mrs. Conwell, Mrs. Leroy Anderson and Mrs. Lew Slothower and F. A. Daley.

Big Gain Shown In Costa Mesa's Postal Receipts

COSTA MESA, Nov. 18.—The growth of the post office is always a fair check on the growth of a community. Acording to statistics produced by Postmaster W. W. Middleton he has in the past five years, increased the number of boxes inside the office by 33 1-3 per cent and now has them all occupied and has a waiting list for boxes to rent.

There is no regular city delivery in Costa Mesa but the office has one rural route, covering practically the entire mesa and Mr. Middleton reports that the number of route boxes has increased 35 per cent within the last five years.

The sales of stamps, etc., for the quarter ending September 30, 1925, was $624.67, and for the same period in 1929, it totaled $1039.10, showing an increase of $414.49 or 66 percent.

The volume of mail handled has increased over 100 percent, the postmaster states. The office has two mails per day at present, one from the south in the morning, and one from the north in the afternoon.

BIG OIL POOL BELIEVED UNDER MESA DISTRICT

COSTA MESA, Nov. 18.—The concensus of opinion among geologists of the major oil companies is that crude oil in commercial quantities is under Costa Mesa. The upper structure, being very hard, and other prolific fields having been opened up beforehand ,the mesa has been passing through a long stage of waiting for oil development.

Wells have been drilled on the mesa that penetrated the oil strata but in every case mechanical difficulties caused the abandonment of the wells.

At one time a drilling campaign was put on and several wells were drilled into the upper tar sand and the wells were put on production, but the oil was too heavy to pipeline and the wells were closed in eventually because of a lack of sale for the grade of oil they were producing. Later on the derricks were torn down and the wells abandoned.

At the present time the industry has taken on a new life and at present two companies, the Oil Well Engineering company and the Costa Mesa Petroleum company, are striving for production. The Oil Well Engineering company, after many difficulties, placed its Seventeenth street well on the beam, but as yet has been unable to exhaust the water that has accumulated in the stratas during many days of idleness. The same capital is putting in a rig foundation on the east side of town and may erect the rig soon.

The Costa Mesa Petroleum company has top water shut off with an 11-inch water string, has the hole completed with an eight-inch combination string of casing in but is now fighting bottom water.

The Western Gulf Oil company has a portable core rig on the mesa taking samples of the top few hundred feet of formation in an effort to determine where will be the most likely spot to sink a regular hole. Some land is being leased and some is changing hands on the strength of the present findings.

MEMBERSHIP GAIN FOR SCOUT TROOP

COSTA MESA, Nov. 18.—The Community church, sensing the need of some social activities outside of the Sunday school classes for boys, since February, 1928, has been sponsoring Scout troop No. 6. The Scout committee has as its members Ralph Viele, Ed Bennett and F. A. Daley.

Lloyd Willcutt was put in as scoutmaster and the troop was organized with a membership of 10 boys.

Last summer a boat was chartered at Balboa and the troop sailed to Catalina Island for a week end. Again in the early fall they went into camp in Trabuco canyon for a two-day stay, hiking to the lookout station on top of Santiago mountain while there. The boys have presented several good programs in the Community church, have done several troop good turns, and have grown in membership to 25 members to date.

540 STUDENTS ATTEND MESA GRADE SCHOOL

COSTA MESA, Nov. 18.—The big school problem here is to keep the buildings extended, added to, and supplemented by smaller buildings to take care of the rapidly growing community. At present all class rooms are filled to capacity, there being enrolled at this time over 540 pupils, with an average daily attendance of 97 per cent of the enrollment. This attendance is an increase over last year of some 40 pupils. The school employs a faculty of 19 teachers this year.

School Is Modern

The school is run on a modern and up-to-date, strictly city school plan. It has a cafeteria functioning 100 per cent, departmental work starts with grade B6 anl is carried on through to A8, and departmental grades have partial self-government. The school enjoys extra curricular activities. Weekly assemblies are enjoyed by the departmental grades. The school just recently has had a spacious auditorium added and various programs, mostly things in which the students participate, are enjoyed by the community at large.

New High School

Costa Mesa sends her high school pupils to nearby high schools at present, most of them going in to Santa Ana, but the time is near at hand when, as a part of the Costa Mesa-Newport high school district, there will be a high school at her doors. A high school board of trustees was elected November 9 to supervise the choosing of a building site and the erection of a building to house the students of high school age in the district represented by Costa Mesa, Newport Beach, Balboa, and Corona Del Mar.

The school plant is modern in every way.

MESA LIBRARY HAS BIG GAIN IN CIRCULATION

COSTA MESA, Nov. 18. — The Costa Mesa library, started here some five years ago with a few select volumes and several good magazines, now has on its shelves over 5000 volumes and is subscriber to 80 magazines.

During the month of October, 1929, 1657 books and 420 magazines were loaned. Last year, during the same period, 1318 books and 395 magazines were loaned, indicating a gain of 364 books and magazines loaned for that particular period. The week of November 17 to 23 has been set apart as Book week.

Nearly every month new books are added to the library. Among those recently received were "A Preface to Morals," by Lippman; "Life and I," by Gamaliel Bradford; "Above the Bright Blue Sky," by E. W. Springs; "These Are My Jewels," by Campbell; "Hide in the Dark," by F. N. Hart; "Dodsworth," by Sinclair Lewis; "Magic Island," by Seabrook; "Young May Moon," by Ostenso; "Martha Pedar Victorious," by O. E. Rowaag; "Cabala," by Thornton Wilder; "Bridge of San Luis Rey," by Wilder; "Major's Candlesticks," by George A. Birmingham; "All Quiet on the Western Front," by Remarque, and "Between War and Peace," by Broker.

The library has books and magazines for both adults and children and is open every day of the week from 2 until 8 p. m., except Saturdays and Sundays.

The library is located in the Apple Blossom court.

LOVE CREATES RELIGION, SAYS REV. WARMER

"The More Excellent Way" was the sermon subject as given at the First Methodist church yesterday by the Rev. George A. Warmer, pastor. The minister said in part:

"The statement of our subjects is taken verbatim from the last words of the twelfth chapter of Paul's letter to the church at Corinth In this chapter the apostle is speaking of variety of gifts concerning which there was great agitation. After detailing a statement of our subject and then tends the love chapter of the New Testament. Let us look at his suggestion for a few minutes.

"Love accepts an element of risk wherever it operates. Love is a thing of life and life is always geared to adventure, to Holy Daring. wherever the love element is to be found there is mutuality.

"Love assumes an attitude that tends to produce good character. Character not crude is at the center of the Christian religion. Jesus came not to formulate doctrines but to ennoble character. Church councils have written the involved theology of the centuries that is so easily declared as Christian fundamentals.

"The theology of Jesus was very simple. He taught first, the universal fatherhood of God; second, His ability as well as that of man to do Godlike things; third, the possibility of spiritual renewal through the forgiveness of sins; and fourth, eternal life.

Jesus is the source-power of character and the door by which we enter our proper place in the Heavenly Father's kingdom.

"Love creates in its hearer the spirit of Jesus. To carry the Spirit of Jesus is the best badge of a Christian. The spirit of Jesus is the divine made manifest.

"These days there is lots of discussion concerning the Diety of Jesus. Men discuss it from the metaphysical angle and from the standpoint of considerably involved intellectual attitudes. While it is after all a very practical fact. The argument that should be all-sufficient in our day is that Jesus can do whatever God can do here in our world. Set God any task and put Jesus to work at it and it will be done. He builds the moral inevitables wherever He is found.

In the days of His flesh when men came to him with intellectual quibbles they went away with moral problems on their hands. This is always true of Him."

Christianity Is Given Definition

J. W. Saunders, evangelist, preached in the Southside Church of Christ yesterday morning on the subject, "Why I Am a Christian?" He explained his subject as follows:

"The usual definition of a Christian is one who believes in Christ. The Bible, however, demands more than a mere belief in Him of us. To be a Christian in the Bible sense of the term involves doing what Christ says, as He says, because He says it. Everyone ought to be satisfied to be just a Christian, nothing more, nothing less.

"The Bible claims divinity for Christ. To accept Him as divine to th eextent that we are willing to be guided by Him is all that God requires of us. There is no necessity to be bound by any other creed, dogma or tradition that originated solely with man."

PRESS BLAMED FOR CRIME BY REV. HARDING

The revival meeting which opened yesterday in the Church of the Nazarene and which is to continue there until December 1, was said to be one of the most enthusiastic gatherings of the church year. The Rev. U. E. Harding, pastor, is conducting his own evangelistic campaign. He is being assisted by Earle F. Wilde, who is known as the tenor "Caruso" of sacred song. The latter favored the congregation with two solos and was assisted in a duet selection by his wife.

The Rev. Mr. Harding spoke on "Revival Fundamentals." Choosing as his text St. Mark 2:5, he said in part:

"It was noised that Jesus was in a house in Capernaum. Jesus can't be hidden. Religion is like smallpox—if you have it, it will show on you. Too many in Santa Ana haven't got it; they haven't even been exposed.

"There came four men bearing one on a cot sick of the palsey; they could not get nigh unto the house because of the press. Of course this means the crowd, but there are many who can't get to Jesus today because of the PRESS, and I mean the newspapers, the dirty yellow sheets, dripping with scandal and filth, pouring their contents into our beautiful homes. A large percentage of our crime can be laid to their charge. I don't refer to the local papers, for we have the cleanest newspapers to be found in any city in California. They co-operate with the churches and ministry of this city.

"These four men co-operated to get their friend to Jesus. Co-operation is one of the main fundamentals of a revival. I don't think these men debated over whose church the man would join for they were too anxious to get him to Jesus. We are split and splintered as fundamentalists over nonessentials, anti-this and anti-that. We never will agree on some of these minute things, but that crowd out yonder, atheistic and modernistic, is united. United to tear up the Garden of Eden, Bethlehem's cradle. To tear down the cross, and tear up the tomb.

"We can surely unite on 'Christ Our Only Hope.' I don't care what your method is, whether it is straightway down - into, or straightway up-out-of. What I want is that we go straight ever afterwards."

Tonight the pastor - evangelist will talk on "How to Kill a Revival." Tomorrow the Nazarene churches of Orange county will meet in a group meeting in the church with the Free Methodist pastors and their congregations as their guests. Services will be held at 10:30 a. m. and 2 p. m. Bishop G. W. Griffith, of the Free Methodist church, will preach in the morning and President O. J. Nease, of Pasadena college will speak in the afternoon.

Christian Science

"Mortals and Immortals" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon Sunday in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. The Golden Text consisted of Paul's inspiriting words to the Corinthians: "We that are in this tabernacle do groan, being burdened: not for that we would be unclothed, but clothed upon, that mortality might be swallowed up of life."

A Scriptural passage in the Lesson-Sermon contained John's statement: "We know that we have passed from death unto life, because we love the brethren. He that loveth not his brother abideth in death;" and another passage cited Paul's strong exhortation: "For this corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality."

A selection from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, contained these words: "Mortals must gravitate Godward, their affections and aims grow spiritual—they must near the broader interpretations of being, and gain some proper sense of the infinite—in order that sin and mortality may be put off."

Devotion To God One Of Greatest Of World's Needs

In the First United Brethren church the Rev. R. W. Harlow, pastor, spoke yesterday on the subject "The Need of the Hour." He said that one of the greatest needs of the hour is a vision of ourselves, of what we are and of our standing with God.

"Does the spirit of God bear witness with our spirit that we are the children of God? Do we know that we have passed from death unto life? Does the spirit of God dwell in, and control our life? God does not leave us in the dark concerning this all important question.

"In Romans 8:16 we have these words, 'The spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit, that we are the children of God.' We know.

"We need to ask ourselves what we are doing for God? How much of our time we are giving to Him? One-seventh of our time, and one-tenth of our money belongs to Him. Our talents all belong to Him, to be used to His glory. How many people have we personally won to God during the last 12 months? One of the greatest needs of the hour is a whole-hearted devotion to God. The Latin word for 'devoted,' means to give up one's self wholly to an object or a purpose. A spirit of devotion to God is one of the greatest blessings and the want of it, one of the greatest misfortunes which a Christian can experience."

'JESUS MASTER OF ECONOMICS,' SAYS M'PEAK

"Jesus was a Master of Economics," declared the Rev. W. H. McPeak, pastor of the United Presbyterian church, in his sermon in the church last night. "He outlined His philosophy of sound finance in those words, 'Lay not up for yourselves treasures on the earth where moth and rust consume, and where thieves break through and steal; but lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven where neither moth nor rust consume and where thieves do not break through and steal.'

"There are two depositories for the assets of life. The investor makes his choice. The one is 'on the earth.' The Master economist warns about that, for said he 'moth will eat, rust corrode and thieves will steal' investments that are made there. They used to sing 'If I had but a thousand a year, Robin Ruff; if I had but a thousand a year.' They gained it and then what will they do with it? The rich man of the parable answered, 'Soul thou hast much goods laid up for many years; take thine ease, eat drink and be merry.' It is time to retire. But his wealth was moth eaten. All the power of pleasure had gone out of it. And as for the 'rust,' well money may be rusted in the getting, holding, and the spending.

"We lift our eyes at the story of Cleopatra, ... is said to have dissolved a pearl in a goblet of wine and quaffed it. Many are doing the same thing. And the 'thief,' the greatest thief of all is death. There are no pockets in a shroud. Can't take any thing along that has been deposited on the earth.

"The other depository is in heaven. The Master said that is the place to make deposit. Treasures laid up there do not become moth eaten, rust corroded and are secure against thieves. The inscription on the marble slab that marks the resting place of 'Chinese' Gordon, the British general, who lies in St. Paul's London, 'A man who at all times and everywhere gave his strength to the work, his sympathy to the suffering, his substance to the poor and his heart to God.' He laid up his treasure in heaven, Make your choice."

Piles Go Quick

Piles are caused by congestion of blood in the lower bowel. Only an internal remedy can remove the cause. That's why salves and cutting fail. Dr. Leonardt's Hem-Roid, a harmless tablet, succeeds, because it relieves this congestion and strengthens the affected parts. Hem-Roid has given quick, safe and lasting relief to thousands of Pile sufferers. It will do the same for you or money back. Schramm-Johnson, and druggists everywhere sell Hem-Roid with this guarantee. —Adv.

ARISTOCRACY IS TO SAVE WORLD, SAYS SCHROCK

That the world is to be saved by aristocracy and not by democracy was the thesis of the Rev. Perry Frederick Schrock in his sermon in the First Congregational church yesterday morning. He stated that the suggestion for the sermon came from Lippmann's book, "A Preface To Morals." In the book the author discusses "Popular religion" and "High religion." Popular religion is defined as a religion of rewards and punishments, of outward governmental control. "High religion," on the other hand, is a religion of a converted, educated, disciplined human will. This constitutes an aristocracy of the spirit and leads the author to remark that "There is an aristocratic principle in all the religions which have attained wide acceptance."

"Is this true of the religion of Jesus?" asked the Rev. Mr. Schrock. "Democracy is our modern shibboleth and we are accustomed to think of the religion of Jesus as the fountainhead of modern democracy. There is much in the teaching of Jesus that seems to support the idea of an aristocratic principle in his religion. 'Narrow is the gate and contracted the road which leads to life and few are those who find it,' said Jesus. And when one considers some of the central teachings of Jesus it becomes evident that they are possible of application only to those of a converted, educated, disciplined will and spirit. To love one's neighbor as himself; to love your enemy; to wish, honestly, not to be ministered unto but to minister; to be willing to forgive one who injures seventy times seven—surely this is possible only to the converted, educated, disciplined spirit. This is the religion of the narrow gate and the contracted road and truly they are few who find it. Those who have found this religion belong to an aristocracy of spirit.

"Such an aristocratic religion is the best possible religion. It meets the need of the individual life of today. This is an age that has cast off authority of all kinds and especially religious authority. The authority of the church, the authority of a book, the authority of a Deity who governs through rewards and punishments is very largely gone for most people. What shall we have in place of authority? It is evident that something is greatly needed. This is also a machine age. Shall man be master or slave? What is neeeded is something that shall build up within people that which will make external authority unnecessary and something that shall make them masters and not slaves of the machines. Only a religion of the spirit can do this. And this is the religion of the narrow gate and the contracted road. It is a religion of a superior spirit."

VALUE OF BIBLE TOLD BAPTISTS BY REV. OWINGS

"The One-Inch Book Shelf" was the subject of the Sunday morning sermon delivered in the First Baptist church by the Rev. Harry Evan Owings, pastor. The minister said in part:

"The distinguished educator, the late Charles W. Eliot, gave to the world that great collection of books called the Harvard Classics but more popularly known as the 'five-foot book shelf.' In addition to that series, however, God has also given to the world an even greater collection in much briefer compass. It is that collection of pamphlets or booklets known as the Bible. It is a one-inch bookshelf.

"Three most interesting items in connection with Dr. Eliot's book shelf are the variety shown in the selection, the purpose in suggesting them, and the challenge to use them. As regards the one-inch book shelf we find those three items just as interesting. In this collection we have books of history, of drama, of poetry, of oratory, of biography, of famous letters. Each man may find the literature that best suits his taste. The avowed purpose of the one-inch shelf is for teaching, for reproof, for correction, for discipline in righteousness, the complete character equipment of men and women. Large parts of it, to be sure, are appropriate for a certain age or time-periods only, but large sections of it are timeless, appropriate and challenging for any and every age.

"The challenge of the five-foot book shelf is that the use of it from one-half hour to an hour each day will give a man a liberal education. The challenge of the one-inch book shelf is that the use of it for a similar period of time each day will give character, abundant life, salvation as it brings us into communion with its great spirits, especially the supreme one, Jesus Christ. Strong Christian living is constantly waiting for men and women who will accept this challenge and build strong life by the assimilation of the valuable foodstuff of the one-inch book shelf."

'KEEP YOUNG' IS SECRET OF SUCCESS FOR PASTOR'S WIFE, ASSERTS MRS. W. S. BUCHANAN

Just 27 years ago Mrs. Nora Kinslaer Buchanan became the wife of the Rev. Walter Scott Buchanan, pastor of the First Christian church of Santa Ana, and just one year ago yesterday the Rev. and Mrs. Buchanan came to minister in this city. The privilege of being a "minister's wife" is a constant blessing, in the opinion of the prominent church woman. Soon after her preacher husband was graduated from the University of Kentucky they were married.

"I am blessed with a husband admired and loved by many friends of our own congregation, plus the friends of the city and community, even the world through the radio. He has shared their joys, sorrows and successes in life, and through such ministering my children have received respect in the school and social life of the various cities in which we have resided. I know other children of the clergy also have received this blessing."

FINDS BLESSINGS

Mrs. Nora Kinslaer Buchanan, wife of the Rev. Walter Scott Buchanan, pastor of the First Christian church of Santa Ana, firmly believes in the "blessings" of being a minister's wife. She and her husband have ministered here since one year ago yesterday.

Continuing her explanation of the blessings of a minister's wife, Mrs. Buchanan said she is blessed with having to be kind, sympathetic, tactful, cheerful, humble and smiling to each one with whom she comes in contact, no matter how many unnecessary duties, complaints and burdens are crowding her heart.

"Responsibility is a great blessing if we are intelligent enough to admit its virtues. From experience I have learned this, for the minister's wife always is an example, not from choice, but from position. I have, through this feeling of responsibility, learned to use my life and have received much in return."

Mrs. Buchanan is willing to admit that the discipline given a minister's wife is one of her greatest blessings. The matters of discipline she refers to are those necessary to develop the qualities of leadership.

"The average minister's wife literally is thrust to the front," Mrs. Buchanan declared. "As the result of such experiences I have learned that one must keep young, dress well, keep any sensitiveness, jealousy, temper or personal desires submerged, understand people, keep an open mind, keep up with the world and youth and be sympathetic with all whom I serve. If a person could achieve such a state, then could not one be thankful for the blessing of such discipline? I do not say that I have achieved, but I have striven somewhat toward such goals."

The one thing Mrs. Buchanan

MEMBER DRIVE COMPLETED BY GOSPEL CLASS

Accompanied by a 16-year-old pianist, Lyle Prescott, Earle F. Wilde, singing evangelist, who is appearing in the Nazarene church this week, delighted members of the Men's Community Bible class yesterday morning, at their service in the Fox-West Coast theater, with two solos. His numbers were "Down Deep in My Heart" and "He Is the Rose of Sharon." Wilde is a staff artist for leading phonograph recording companies and also has broadcast over many radio stations.

The membership attendance campaign, which has occupied the attention of the class for the last two months, came to a close yesterday with Gang Three, under the leadership of Dick Cashian, out in front. Other leaders and the rank in which they finished was as follows:

T. P. Kingrey, L. Cook, J. M. Gill, S. L. Carpenter, Charles Monroe, H. L. Harding, W. S. Engel, George Hart, John Carlyle, W. R. DuBois, J. Catherman and N. E. Mayhill.

The lesson subject yesterday continued the series on the character and life of the Apostle Paul. "Neither Peter nor John could compare with Paul as a thinker or man of power," the Rev. Walter Scott Buchanan, class teacher, told his audience. "No man outside of Jesus has had as great influence

Haws Super Service Station at Anaheim Well Pleased With Performmance of the Diamond Tire

One of the principal reasons for the renewal of the contract between Herbert L. Miller, Inc., distributor of Diamond Tires, and the Haw's Super-Service Station at Anaheim, according to a statement made today by Mr. Haws, was the decided increase in his tire business due to the satisfaction of his customers using Diamond Tires, and the efficient service of Herbert L. Miller, Inc.

Another factor in the case is that Diamond Tires being made in Los Angeles retain their freshness and elasticity which, according to tire experts, is oftentimes partially lost due to cross-country transportation in over-heated or under-heated cars.

Mr. Haws is more than gratified with the repeat business from satisfied Diamond Tire users. Interviewed yesterday by a representative of The Register Mr. Haws stated that he anticipated, at a conservative estimate, at least a 50% increase in business due to the new in-line tire which includes a tailored white sidewall with a decided appeal to the fastidious car owner who demands the best in all equipment, more particularly tires.

Bride and Groom Choose Lovely New Home For Wedding

Choosing their lovely new home on Panorama Heights as the setting for their wedding, Miss Edith May Porch, of Anaheim, neice of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Waitstell Hastings of Porterville, and Roy James Lyon, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Lyon of Los Angeles, were married Saturday night by the Rev. Moffett Rhodes, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, South.

As a prelude to the service, Mrs. Elton McKamy, accompanied by Mrs. Elwin Kendricks, sang "O Promise Me" and "I Love You Truly." Mrs. Kendricks played the Lohengrin wedding march as the bridal party entered the room to take its stand before the fireplace which was banked with chrysanthemums and palms.

The bride was gowned in oyster white satin made with a snug bodice and long full skirt. Her long tulle veil was caught to her head with a bandeau of orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of brides roses and lilies of the valley.

She was attended by her sister, Miss Neva Porch who wore salmon satin with overskirt of tulle and carried rose buds and delphinium, and Mrs. Mazie Kirby who was gowned in lavender and carried roses and sweet peas.

A wedding supper was served in the dining room where the table was covered with a lovely lace cover and centered with a bowl of pink and white sweet peas. At each cover a tiny box containing a piece of the wedding cake was placed.

The bride and groom were assisted in receiving by Mrs. Hastings who wore blue chiffon with a corsage of red rose buds and Mrs. McKamy who was in black chiffon and wore a corsage of pink roses.

For a honeymoon trip to the Grand canyon and Mexico, Mrs. Lyons chose an ensemble of golden brown with harmonizing accessories. On their return they will be at home at Panorama Heights.

The bride has taught home economics in the Anaheim junior high school for the past four years and she is a graduate of the Fresno Teachers' college. She is affiliated with Delta Kappa sorority.

Mr. Lyon received his schooling in the east and has lived in this city for the past seven years. He is president and manager of the Roy J. Lyon company.

Turner-Dearth Nuptials Occur in Church Of Messiah

Beautiful in its simplicity was the wedding of Miss Louise Turner, attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Turner of 719 East Walnut street, and Don Dearth, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Dearth of 1318 North Parton street, which took place late yesterday afternoon in the Church of the Messiah.

The altar of the church was lighted by tall white candles which cast a soft glow over bouquets of great golden chrysanthemums. Graceful palm fronds and baskets of lovely autumn flowers were arranged about the church and in the vestibule where the bride and groom greeted their friends following the ceremony.

Preceding the wedding Madame De Whytmer of Los Angeles, sang "At Dawning" by Cadman, Carrie Jacobs Bond's "I Love You Truly" and "O Promise Me" from "Robin Hood." She was accompanied at the organ by Alan Revill who played the wedding march from "Lohengrin" as the bride and groom entered the church and proceeded down the aisle together.

The bride was gowned in green velvet which fell in graceful folds around her ankles and she wore a cloth of gold turban. Her flowers were yellow rosebuds.

The beautiful service of the Episcopal church was read by the Rev. W. L. H. Benton, rector of the Church of St. Luke of the Mountains at La Crescenta. The Rev. Mr. Benton was formerly rector of the Church of the Messiah.

After the wedding, relatives of the bride and groom were guests at a reception given at the home of the bride's parents which was decorated with chrysanthemums in tones of yellow. Tall white candles in golden candle sticks completed the appointments.

After the wedding cake had been cut by the bride she donned a becoming ensemble in tones of brown for a short honeymoon at the Mission Inn in Riverside. From Riverside Mr. and Mrs. Dearth will go to Los Angeles where they will be at home at 2019 Orchard street.

Both of the young people attended the Santa Ana high school and after their graduation Miss Turner attended the University of California at Berkeley. At present Mr. Dearth is in the display department of the Western Auto Supply company in Los Angeles.

Congregational Pastor Officiates at Quiet Morning Wedding

Although a quiet simplicity was observed in the wedding yesterday morning of Mrs. Mary Harless and Archie G. Nelson, it was nevertheless a very impressive and charming ceremony held in the home of the Rev. Perry Frederick Schrock, pastor of the First Congregational church, and witnessed by a little group of close friends.

Mrs. Harless had chosen a blue velvet ensemble costume especially well-suited to her blonde type. With all dress accessories to harmonize and an arm cluster of pale pink rosebuds she was a very attractive bride indeed. Attending her as honor maid was Miss Marcella Boyd whose costume in autumnal shades, was completed by a cluster of yellow roses.

Mr. Nelson was assisted by John Johnson, a Canadian friend who came to take part in the ceremony.

Guests included Joseph Harless of this city, and Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Lynes of Long Beach, son, son-in-law and daughter of the bride; her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Ryan, Mrs. Minnie Thompson and son, Leonard, and Mrs. Mary Armstrong, of this city; Mr. and Mrs. C. Y. Lynes and Mrs. Ida Kratzer of Long Beach. Mrs. Armstrong and Mrs. Kratzer are aunts of Mr Nelson and Mrs. Thompson is his sister. Mrs. Minnie Ketner, Miss Hazel Taylor, Mrs. Meta Wierner, Mr. and Mrs. Johnson, of Nipawin, Canada; Donald Stapp and Frank McClung of Longmont, Colo., completed the guest list.

Mr. Nelson and his bride left immediately after the ceremony for a short automobile honeymoon, deferring their longer trip until after the holidays when they will sail for Honolulu. They will return before Thanksgiving in order to attend the wedding of Mrs. Nelson's son, Joseph Harless, to Miss Martha Johnson of Longmont, Colo. He will leave next Saturday for Longmont.

Mr. Nelson is a ranch owner of Nipawin, Canada, but spends much of his time in Santa Ana with his sister, Mrs. Minnie Thompson, of the Parsons apartments. His bride has made her home here for the past half dozen years. They will reside at 1003 West Fifth street until their new home is completed.

Trousseau Tea at Lutz Home Charming Event

More than 100 friends of pretty Miss Adele Lutz, brunet daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Lutz of East Washington avenue, gathered at her home Saturday afternoon where they enjoyed viewing the many lovely articles which will soon find places in the new home that Miss Lutz, as the bride of Lawrence Koxk of this city, will establish soon.

Beautiful linens, shining glassware and silver, dainty trousseau articles all were admired by the guests as they arrived during the afternoon.

Miss Lutz and her mother, Mrs. John Lutz, received and the tea tables were presided over by Miss Vena Belle Bryant, Miss Mabel Pruitt, Mrs. Willard Lutz and Miss Dorothy Lutz. The hostess and her assistants wore corsages which had been presented them by Mr. Koxk.

The wedding of the two young people is to take place late this month and will be the culmination of a romance started several years ago when the two were schoolmates.

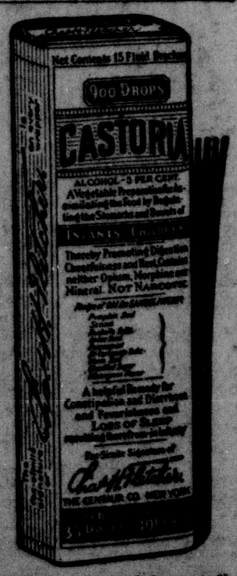
An Ailing CHILD



Are you prepared to render first aid and quick comfort the moment your youngster has an upset of any sort? Could you do the right thing—immediately—though the emergency came without warning—perhaps tonight? Castoria is a mother's standby at such times. There is nothing like it in emergencies, and nothing better for everyday use. For a sudden attack of colic, or the gentle relief of constipation; to allay a feverish condition, or to soothe a fretful baby that can't sleep. This pure vegetable preparation is always ready to ease an ailing youngster. It is just as harmless as the recipe on the wrapper reads. If you see Chas. H. Fletcher's signature, it is genuine Castoria. It is harmless to the smallest infant; doctors will tell you so.
You can tell from the recipe on the wrapper how mild it is, and how good for little systems. But continue with Castoria until a child is grown.

The WOMAN'S DAY
by ALLENE SUMNER

A happy home, according to the old standard, was one where peace and happiness reigned, where the husband and wife were one in thought and deed, and the children obeyed their parents, and company could come in any time and not have to dodge plates.

There are two slants on this kind of happy home in John Erskine's new book, "Sincerity," which I cannot resist quoting.

"If a woman feels that some of her capacities for growth are unexercised, she will resent it, even if it is her husband's love or her love for him which keeps her life sheltered and tranquil. After all, we are in this world to grow. Who has the right to say that any stage in our growth is perfect and complete?

"The husband, therefore, who provides a comfortable home for a woman, keeps from her all his worries, sees to it that she knows less than nothing of the problems which beset people less fortunate than herself, conceals from her those tragedies which result from a too adventurous thirst for experience, is perhaps, not so kind a husband as he intends to be. Why should he know more of life than she? If the thought once takes hold of her that he wishes her to remain ignorant, the canker is at the heart of their happiness."

TIES THAT BIND MEN

And here is something on the husband's side:

"Men also suffer from the unintended limitations of what we call a happy home. Of few of them it is safe to say that their lives are complete. And this frustration, like that of women, is the ironic result, more often than not, of genuine affection. They learn what their wives like, and loving their wives, they confine themselves to those habits, those ideas, those remarks.

"If they are tempted to live a little more widely, to explore at least, in thought, the mysteries of this rich span of days through which we pass too quickly, they usually keep the impulse hidden and brood in solitude over what ought to be of legitimate interest to their women as well as themselves.

"I never see a respectable, middle-aged man, head of his house and pillar of society, threatened by baldness and overweight, adored by his grateful spouse, without asking myself—in order to reach this complacent conclusion, what spirited thoughts did he refuse to think?"

I advise you not to check up on your own conduct, and see how little real sincerity you grant yourself or others.

Sincerity is a delightful ideal, but most difficult to practice.

Besides completely upsetting you and deflating your ego, you will lose what friends and contacts you have already built up. Resist that impulse.

The MIXING BOWL by ANN MEREDITH

Winter Beauty and Fragrance

Getting the garden into order for winter is no small task if you have a border full of bulbs. They should be dug immediately, dried, sorted, tagged and put away in an even cool temperature, where mice and rats cannot reach them.

Put the sorted bulbs in heavy paper sacks, tied securely and hung to the cellar ceiling, and that worry is off your hands!

Now, let's talk about flowers for winter. No home need be without lovely flowers through the winter if a little forethought is used now. Narcissi offer beauty and fragrance with the least expense of time and money.

Put the bulbs in shallow glass bowls with sand and a few small rocks, fill with water and keep in a dark, cool spot for six weeks. This allows time for fine root growth, heavy flower stalks and stocky short leaves.

Hyacinths do better when planted in earth, but the same rule for root growth in a dark, cool spot holds good with them. Water is added as needed while root growth is under way.

Don't plant all your pulbs at one time. Have sufficient well screened earth put in the cellar to allow for potting at will, then fill a few pots each week for six weeks and keep the flowers coming along until spring is with us again.

TODAY'S RECIPE

Egg Gems

2 cups chopped cooked meat
2 cups fine soft beradcrumbs
2 tablespoons melted butter
1 cup milk
Salt and pepper
6 eggs
2 crackers, rolled fine
2 tablespoons grated cheese

Scraps of left-over roast are agreeably utilized in this recipe. It calls for baking in gem pans, but this is not a good way to bake it—just try and get one out of a gem pan intact! I like to use a large pyrex plate or individual shallow ramekins of earthenware.

Put the meat through the coarse knife of the foot chopper, add a tiny bit of minced onion if you wish, then the bread crumbs, scooped from the middle of a stale loaf, salt and papper, and the milk and butter heated together.

Mix smoothly, heat in saucepan and drop loosely over the baking dish, smooth the top without packing the mixture and break the eggs over the meat. Roll the crackers fine, mix with grated cheese and sprinkle over the eggs, dot with butter. Bake in a moderate oven until the eggs are set to your liking.

There are 2550 calories in this recipe. The portions are 4 or 6, to suit the family appetite. With proteins so greatly in excess plenty of leafy cooked vegetables should be served.

'DYNAMITE' FEATURE IN FOX-WEST COAST

"Dynamite," Cecil M. DeMille's first all-talking picture, starring Kay Johnson and Conrad Nagle, opened a five-day engagement in the Fox West Coast theater today.

A picture that carries the 'De Mille touch throughout, "Dynamite" probably is the most sensational film of the year in many ways. It is the story of high society, in which a girl buys her husband from a prison death house, a short time before he is to be led to the electric chair, in order to inherit a fortune.

She is in love with another man, but he is married, and she expects to take the money she inherits to buy his freedom from his wife, who also is in love with another man, but who refuses to free her husband until the question of allmony is settled.

The strange prison wedding takes place, but soon afterward the real murderer confesses and the husband is freed. He seeks his wife and finds her in the arms of another man. The scenes then shift to the coal mines, where the husband was employed before he went to prison and where he returns. It is here that the startling scenes of the picture are shot and where the unusual climax occurs.

Charles Bickford has the part of the prisoners and Julia Faye plays the part of the wife whose husband the society girl wants to marry.

Aside from the feature, a Fox Movietone newsreel is shown.

'MARIANNE' OPENS IN FOX BROADWAY

"Marianne," Marion Davies' latest starring vehicle and the latest Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer all-talking picture, opened a four-day engagement in the Fox-Broadway theater today.

A pig plays one of the prominent parts in "Marianne," for it is around the porker that the plot is built and it is the pig that causes all the trouble Marianne finds herself in.

The story concerns a French girl, who mothers all the troops who come to her obscure hamlet. At the close of the war, American troops stop there and she falls in love with a doughboy. Her love is returned, she finds out, but they are parted when the soldier is sent home just after Marianne's old time sweetheart returns from the front blinded.

There is much good comedy in the picture and the acting of Miss Davies is better than ever.

Lawrence Gray has the leading male role in the picture, while Clifford Edwards and Benny Rubin furnish many of the laughs.

Is Southwest Still Wild?

Sometimes I Think It Is --BUT-- Sometimes I Think It Isn't

By Velva G. Darling

An inch high news item in a San Antonio paper the other morning tersely recounted the facts regarding an episode in the southwest. A well-known rancher was found still astride his horse on the desert a few miles from his home, both horse and rider wilted to the ground dead, and the only mark to be found was a small black burn on the back of the man's neck—where lightning had struck him. That's one thing that makes me think the southwest is still wild. Another is Gene Howe—the wild Texas editor who calls Mary Garden an old lady and labels every person who leaves Texas for his own home, "a quitter." Then, of course, there is the cactus and sand which you've seen plenty of examples of in the movies; and "gyp" water, which you don't see in the movies but which unsuspecting motorists drink and have a terrible time on account of! And the traffic situation in El Paso, Texas, without a signal in sight and every automobile going practically where it pleases! Dorance Roderick proved himself a bright young Texan when he quipped, "We believe in the survival of the quickest out here!" I tried to keep my knees from twitching as I replied, laughingly, "It certainly looks that way, Mr. Roderick." Even writers have to be polite to editors.

But on the other hand, nowhere in the United States have I been able to drive six hours a day and make an average of 50 miles an hour—which you have to do just in order to keep up with the other fellow in the great southwest. The roads are gorgeous—in the summertime. Also, if cities are any sign of advanced civilization, of progressiveness and modernity, Houston and San Antonio, Texas, are the ultra-ultra. Hollywood it its hey-dey never looked any newer and more intriguing than Houston does today. Stanford University is not more collegiate, its buildings more picturesque and its grounds lovelier than those of the newly created Rice Institute on the edge of Houston. San Antonio, once the home of the famous Senator Breckenridge of Texas, has 46 parks, and the smartness of its women I haven't seen excelled even in New York, which is an unparalleled combination! Skyscrapers that would make the famous ones in Los Angeles and Chicago stretch nervously for a handicap are being built in these towns as well as in Fort Worth and Dallas and in Tulsa, Oklahoma. Oklahoma's an interesting place—500 people there claim to be relatives of Will Rogers. Very prolific, Will.

Sometimes I think the southwest isn't as wild as Hollywood Blvd. —not half. Certainly it has enough pep to put Mr. Kellogg out of business. But on the other hand, when it comes to electric storms and cactus, to traffic and speed laws, the southwest is a he-man's land. No wonder Texas Guinan seems wild in New York! And she is really just acting natural!

EAT FIVE KINDS OF FOODS

Why Noted Scientist Places Sugar and Sugary Foods in the Daily Diet

A noted scientist reminds us that the many tasteful foods in which this country abounds may be classified into: (1) Vegetables and fruits. (2) Protein foods as meat, milk and eggs. (3) Cereals. (4) Sugar and sugary foods. (5) Fats and fat foods.

He reminds us that these five groups may serve as a guide in the selection of foods and the planning of meals. He points out that sugar and sugary foods have been charged from time to time with a variety of supposedly undesirable functions. Usually, on mere hearsay evidence, it has been said that sugar is fattening, or sugar harms the teeth, or sugar cloys the appetite.

As a matter of fact, however, he goes on to say, every physiologist knows that the essential principles in our food are, for the most part, devoid of taste. Sugars alone, of the carbohydrates, have a sweet and agreeable taste. With this exception, our essential foodstuffs, when pure, would soon pall on the palate.

In order that everyone may enjoy proper foods, use a dash of sugar in the cooking of vegetables to develop their freshness and flavor. Use a sprinkling of sugar to make grapefruit and other tart, fresh fruits delicious. Use sugar to enable everyone to enjoy the needed cereals. Use sugar in the making of delicious fruit and milk desserts. Most foods are more delicious and nourishing with sugar. The Sugar Institute.

Rule by Five Men
OR
Rule by the People?
Where Will It End?

The proposed Santa Ana Boulevard is an unnecessary duplication of an existing highway. But that is not the important thing about it.

It would hurt established business and rental values the whole of Main street. But that is not the most important thing.

It would be a direct, permanent affront against our neighboring city of Orange. That, too, is relatively of minor importance.

The cost would be $375,000 or more, with probably $150,000 more a few years later for new concrete bridge across the river, and meanwhile possible large damage suits against the city in case of flood. But even that is not the one big important thing about it.

The one big, vital, all-important question about the controversy is this: SHALL WE PERMIT ANY FIVE MEN TO USURP THE PEOPLE'S RIGHTS TO ISSUE BONDS AGAINST THEIR PROPERTY, WITHOUT THEIR CONSENT AND IN SPITE OF THEIR PROTESTS?

And also, if the five Santa Ana city trustees get away with it, where will it end? Will not they do it again and again? And will not the city trustees of other cities try it? And will not the county supervisors adopt the same policy if it proves successful in the cities?

If a czaristic movement like this once gets going, and the people stand for it, isn't it logical that it should grow and grow, until at last the people have nothing to say about ANY bonds? Just let the city trustees, the library trustees, the school trustees, the park trustees, and the supervisors, vote ALL the bonds!

We, the people, would be saved the bother of voting in bond elections, but who would own all the property! Surely property owners would be few and far between if all their rights as property owners are to be taken away from them.

Our opposition to the Santa Ana Boulevard program, with the recall of the present board of city trustees as the only effective procedure to stop this kind of high-handed business, is the only American thing we can do, the only patriotic thing, if we are to maintain our rights as citizens, voters, and owners of real property.

Every property owner in the state of California, and everyone who ever hopes to own property, is concerned in the outcome. Whether your land is inside or outside any city, you are interested, for other governing bodies will follow the lead of Santa Ana if they get away with it here; and will hesitate, if the people of Santa Ana put an effective to this kind of business right at the start.

So, wherever you are, we deserve your moral and financial support in this compaign to preserve the people's rights. If you are a Santa Ana voter, you can help by circulating petitions among your friends for their signatures. # THE TINYMITES

STORY BY HAL COCHRAN — PICTURES BY KNICK

REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

The Tinymites were quite surprised! They suddenly all realized that they were sailing through the air and rising very fast. They sat upon a sled of bark, and Scouty said, "My, what a lark! I wonder where we're going and how long this trip will last."

"Well, as for me," wee Clowny cried, "I only know we're on a ride. It happened all so suddenly I nearly lost my breath. Our friend the big man made this sled. He tossed us into the air and said, 'Hang on there, Tinies.' Gee, but I was almost scared to death."

"Oh, well," said Scouty. "Up we go! The big man's still way down below. I see him waving at us. He is standing on the ground. Let's wave good-bye with all our might. We'll soon be sailing out of sight. I only wish he'd told us just exactly where we're bound.

"Now, when you wave, don't lean too far or you will not stay where you are. Instead you'll lose your balance and go dropping through the air. We've had enough of scares, I guess. Don't get into another mess. As long as we can stay right here, well, none of us should care."

So, all the bunch looked cautiously until the big man they could see. And then they waved. He waved right back and cried, with all his might, "Good-bye, you Tinies, here good luck. Don't lose your nerve. Keep up your pluck. If you will all be careful, everything will be all right."

He faded then and soon the crowd looked up and saw a great big cloud. "We're going to hit it," Coppy cried. "Oh, my, what can we do?" Just then they sailed right into it and not a one was hurt a bit. 'Twas misty for a moment. Then the sled slid right on through.

(The wind upsets the sled in the next story.)

Missing Letter Links

RULES

1. In playing golf on the Missing Letter Links the object is to change one word to another in a given number of strokes which is par. For example: to go from TEE to PIN in three strokes sounds hard but isn't: TEE-TIE-PIE-PIN. It's probably more difficult on a real course.
2. Change but one letter at a time and be sure the word you have used is one in good usage.
3. The order of the letters cannot be changed.

Lawrence Tibbett To Present GMC's Program Tonight

Lawrence Tibbett, the California baritone, who was engaged by the Metropolitan Opera company after only a few years' experience as a church, concert and light opera singer and who since has become nationally famous, will be the guest artist on the General Motors Family party during the coast-to-coast NBC system broadcast from 6:30 to 7:30 tonight.

During the same program, Giuseppe Bamboschek, for 16 years an orchestral director at the Metropolitan and a noted coach of singers, will conduct a symphonic orchestra.

Tibbett was born in Bakersfield, Calif. After his father's death his mother moved the family to Los Angeles, where Lawrence attended school. His histrionic talents were discovered during his school years. Afterward, he played in stock companies and other dramatic productions and sang in church choirs and light opera. During the World war he served in the navy. Following the war he went to New York to study and to sing in concerts. Within six months he signed a contract with the Metropolitan.

This General Motors Family party will be heard through NBC system stations KGO, Oakland; KHQ, Spokane; KOMO, Seattle; KGW, Portland, and KFI, Los Angeles, on the Pacific coast.

on mankind as Paul, and no teacher except the Christ has been as successful and as forceful.

"The trouble with Paul's enemies was that they did not understand him nor what he was teaching. They did not listen to his message. Many attacked him because they felt that his teachings would ruin their business. He stirred up the Jewish nation and the Roman empire as well, and it took a really great man to do that. In all his troubles his character stood forth as a mighty power. His friends all loved him intensely. Wherever he went they flocked to him and gave expressions of their affection."

The annual Father and Son banquet of the class will be held at 6:30 tomorrow night in the First Christian church. A fine program has been prepared by the committee in charge and an evening of entertainment and fellowship is anticipated by members of the class. Dinner will be prepared by a committee of men under the direction of Lynn Crasher and T. P. Kingrey. Music will be furnished by two quartets and Ingham's orchestra. Earle Wilde, who sang at the service yesterday morning, will be in attendance and will sing.

K'S DISTRICT AUDITION TO BE HELD TONIGHT

Twenty young men and women, the pick of the amateur singers in nine western states, will compete in the Atwater-Kent western district audition between 10 and 12, Pacific standard time, tonight, during a broadcast through the NBC system stations on the Pacific coast, including KFI.

Singing in the studios of KPO, San Francisco, the score of contestants will strive to win the honor of representing the west in the national finals, which will take place in New York City next month.

The 10 men and 10 women who will participate in the district audition have been selected from among scores of entrants in local and state contests in Washington, Oregon, northern and Southern California, Nevada, Idaho, Wyoming, Montana and Arizona. The successful singers in this audition will share in the $25,000 in cash and the music scholarships which will be awarded the national winners by the Atwater Kent Foundation.

During the district audition each singer will be identified by number only. As in the state competition, the vote of the radio audience for the contestants will count 60 per cent and that of a group of official judges will count 40 per cent in deciding the winners.

PASTOR'S WIFE TELLS SECRET OF SUCCESS

considers to be the most important motto for ministers' wives is that which was given her when she became the wife of a minister, "Keep Young." She has tried always to keep that thought before her and has enjoyed the youth of their congregations. She has refused to mingle entirely with adults, especially those who are without the spirit of youth. Mrs. Buchanan has one daughter, with whom she has kept young.

"If we would have success and blessings as ministers' wives," she concluded, "we must believe in ourselves, believe in humanity, believe in the success of our undertakings, love our work, then work, hope and trust and keep in touch with today."

CARDS, BEARS MEET ON GRID SATURDAY

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 18.—California, only undefeated team in the Pacific Coast conference, kept its record clean by virtue of its hard earned 7 to 0 victory over Washington Saturday, while Stanford fell a victim to the bucks of Santa Clara's Broncos, 13 to 7.

Despite the Stanford upset, the teams from California and Stanford will start their "Big Game" next Saturday on almost even terms, for Stanford also holds a one touchdown win over Washington, while the Santa Clara game is discounted because of the Stanford second team bearing the brunt of the attack, and because the Cardinals were obviously "pointed" for California.

Los Angeles Gets Women's Tourney

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—At the request of its women's committee, the United States Golf association has awarded the 1930 women's national golf championship to Los Angeles Country club, Los Angeles, Calif.

SAINTS DEFEAT GLENDALE HIGH GRIDMEN, 33-6

Pangle Intercepts Pass

Several exchanges of kicks followed before Pangle intercepted a forward pass and carried the ball to Glendale's 15-yard line. Beboin made it a first down in two plays and Pangle smacked it over in two more. Pangle also kicked goal.

There was no more scoring, Oliver making a host of substitutions after the fifth touchdown, but there was a little excitement when Germain, hiding out along the sidelines, caught a long forward pass and took the ball to Santa Ana's 22-yard line. Two more passes to the same towheaded back gave Glendale a first down on the 3-yard line but Santa Ana's forward wall, composed almost entirely of substitutes, stiffened and turned back four successive thrusts at center. Stultz fumbled on the fourth play and Meisinger, an end, recovered for the Saints on the 4-yard line just before the game came to a close.

In some respects the Santa Ana squad looked better than it has in any game this year. Running behind a low-charging line that gave them plenty of holes, Pangle and Reboin were able to gain consistently although the two backfield aces again showed plenty of speed and power in booming through the middle or off-tackle. Vance, at center; Captain Bruce Tarver, the Saints' fine captain and running guard, and Winfield Martin at the same position were especially conspicuous in the Santa Ana line on offense.

Donahue In Starting Lineup

Bill Donahue started at tackle instead of the injured Hartman and played a strong defensive game as did the reliable Harry Clayton at the other tackle. Hartman played creditably when he got in the lineup in the second half.

Blower's pass-catching was outstanding. This big fellow can go up in the air and get 'em with any end in the conference. Meisinger and Herren both played well at end also.

Lloyd Nuzum played most of the game in the backfield. His work was well above average and Oliver may decide to use him there the rest of the season, allowing Herren, Blower, Meisinger and Higashi to take care of the flanks.

Fredericks, favoring a neck with a boil, turned in his usual hard game.

DONS ROLL UP 22-0 VICTORY AT LONG BEACH

canto, Long Beach lost the ball on downs and the Don march started. Manderscheid made four yards over tackle, five more at guard, and two over tackle for a first down. Natland careened over a pile of men for two yards after which Manderscheid picked his way first 10 yards and then 11, to put the ball on the Long Beach 48-yard line.

Redhead Runs 41 Yards

Garlock and Sweetnam made six and one yards, respectively, and then Manderscheid took the ball on the 41-yard line. Starting through center, the redhead eluded three tacklers, swept toward the sidelines, reversed his field, was tackled four times and finally emerged at full speed from a pile of players. He outdistanced all opposition and was unmolested in the last 20 yards. Warner's kick was wide, leaving the final count, 22 to 0.

Santa Ana made 301 yards from scrimmage to 110 and 13 first downs to two for Long Beach. The score might have been slightly different, for the Norsemen did make one touchdown on a forward pass but this was disallowed because three backs were in motion. This fourth quarter scare came right in the middle of a wild aerial attack, the Viking backs throwing 13 passes, 10 being knocked down, two completed and one intercepted.

Another Don tally nearly found its way to the scoreboard in the first quarter when the locals advanced to the 10-yard line, only to fumble. The drive started on the Padre 43-yard line and was helped considerably by a 22-yard jaunt around end by Garlock. Rimel, Beatty and Garlock all pushed through for gains, followed by a nice pass from Garlock to Beatty, who rambled on down to the 10-yard line before being outside. A ballup in signals cut short all scoring hopes, however, and the Scandinavians soon booted the ball back to midfield. The rest of the first canto was all Santa Ana with Captain Hylton throwing the opposition for losses every time it got hold of the ball. He was aided by Warmer and Adams, ends.

Don Kickers in Form

The whole game was filled with towering kicks from the feet of Bill Crawford, Garlock, Warmer and Manderscheid for Santa Ana and Captain Mobley and Forbes for Long Beach. Crawford and Garlock got the best results although Mobley got off some nice boots as well as some bad ones. In the third section, Warmer broke through and partially blocked one of Mobley's efforts but after taking possession of the ball, Santa Ana was unable to get very far.

Although the Santa Ana backs made vast yardage all day, it was the work of the veteran Don line, the finest in the conference, that stood out above everything. Time and again, Mobley, Meyer, Davis, Hermann, Forbes and the other Boatmen backs were thrown for losses or bumped into a stone-wall. On offense, the Vikings were taken out of plays with a vengeance, leaving wide open lanes for the backs to use. Al Kluthe, who backed up the line, was a demon on tackling and used his height to advantage in knocking down passes. His kickoffs were good, also, carrying nearly 50 yards each trip.

Linesmen Brilliant

Big Bill Crawford played a steller game at guard, effectually plugging up his side of the line. He put several punts outside at the most strategic points and always sailed 'em high, wide and handsome in the pinches. Ernie Stump and Tim Wallace, tackles, both put up a nice game while Warmer, signal-caller, and Adams, both ends, were going at a great pace. Hal Dunham, reserve end, played about half the game in fine style.

Honors were more evenly divided in the backfield, with Manderscheid, Garlock and Rimel perhaps taking a little more glory because of their ball carrying. Be that as it may, Jack Dutton, Baxter Geeting, Jack Sweetman, Franklin Van Meter, Leonard Natland, Gene Olsen and a few others were highly responsible for the local win.

Natland showed class while he was in the fray and Olsen intercepted a couple of passes and made two or three nice runs. Sweetnam, Franklin Van Meter, away from the big Viking ends on passes so frequently it was a standing joke and John Keeler, another little fellow, was right up with him in this respect. Cook used a lot of reserves at the end and gave many of his boys a chance to show their wares.

Santa Ana tackles Glendale at Glendale next Saturday in a semi-breather but takes a real assignment against the tough Fullerton Yellowjackets in a feature spot on Poly field Thanksgiving day. This will be the last game of the year.

The lineup:

Football Season Nears End; Few Teams Unbeaten

tute heroism, one McLennon of Yale, beating Princeton, 13 to 0, while it was Ross, of Indiana, who ran for the winning touchdowns, with Northwestern leading, 14 to 6, and only 10 minutes to play. Wilson, another substitute, was the lad who carried Michigan's attack through a last-period drive to beat the Gophers, too.

These latter were two of the day's great upsets. The third was Stanford's 13 to 7 defeat by Santa Clara, which repeated its victory of two years ago, even to the score. This one was earned, too, Santa Clara coming back with a successful march to the goal after the Cardinals had tied the score.

This affair seems to send California in as the probable conference champion, although the Bears looked as though they were saving up a lot of trouble for the Stanford game. They only beat Washington 7 to 0, on two passes by Lom, aggregating 64 yards. However, the Huskies are getting rapidly no worse as the season progresses.

Southern Methodist and Utah, of course, breezed with Baylor and Wyoming, respectively. Not so Tulane with Sewanee. The former was held to a scoreless first half in the mud but then marched 93 yards to its first score and ultimately won, 18 to 0.

REGISTER'S EXPEDITION TO LAND OF SANTA CLAUS IS FORCED DOWN BUT RESCUED

Captain Kleinschmidt and his party of explorers, bound for the North Pole in search of Santa Claus, were reported missing last night but today they had been found.

The first news of their recovery came from the steamer "Sea Lions," which reported to a radio station having seen two plans floating on Hudson bay, near Fort Severn.

Several more wireless messages told of receiving short flashes of SOS calls, supposedly from the missing planes.

A searching party was dispatched, led by the steamer "Sea Lion," and the two planes were found with all occupants well and in good health.

"'We shall proceed with our expedition just as planned," said Captain Kleinschimdt, after his rescue. "The kiddies of Santa Ana and community shall not be disappointed. I intend to push on and on into the frozen North until Santa Claus is discovered."

Express Great Joy

Other members of the party expressed great joy at their good fortune.

"For awhile I thought The Register and the kiddies were going to be disappointed," said "Red" Garland, aboard the steamer. "Now I'm happy that we can go ahead."

In a wireless message to The Register today, Captain Kleinschmidt expressed his confidence of success in his undertaking.

"After bucking heavy snow and rain storms, the wind died down. We ran into fog and sleet formed on our wings and we were losing altitude. Then sleet formed on the propellers when it became so heavy that the centrifugal force would throw it off one blade the vibrations became so bad that the engine was endangered until the sleet from the other blade was thrown off also. The leading edge of the wings, and the wings themselves became so coated with ice they lost their lifting capacity and we were forced to land in the water.

Send Out SOS Calls

"We sent out SOS calls which brought us the sealing schooner "Sea Lions," a Hudson Bay company boat especially built for combatting the icy waters of Hudson Bay. We were mighty glad to get into a warm cabine and get a warm meal—the second one since leaving New York.

"Though delayed somewhat by this mishap we will renew our energies towards reaching our goal. Was down about 12 hours but all escaped unharmed. This looks like Providence is on our side. We are continuing to Cape Churchill. From there we will have the most difficult part of our airplane flight to Victoria Land, a distance of 950 miles and across an uninhabited inhospitable country without any landmarks, dotted with innumerable nameless lakes. It will be instrument flying all the way until we reach Coronation gulf."

WILL REVAMP CONSERVATION RESOLUTIONS

Revamping of resolutions on a new water conservation program acceptable to the Associated Chambers of Commerce of Orange County is the problem that will face the chambers' special committee on conservation when it convenes in the farm bureau office here at 7:30 p. m., Thursday, under a call issued by E. E. Campbell, chairman.

Objection was made at the Huntington Beach meeting of the county body last month to certain wording of recommendations of the special committee and the report was referred back to the committee or a new resolution.

The committee is expected to submit a resolution recommending that the supervisors employ engineers to reinvestigate site possibilities for a dam on the Santa Ana river to prevent flood damage by that stream in years of extreme rainfall.

SANTA ANA BOULEVARD

Editor Register:—I often think of Abraham Lincoln standing in Independence Hall and speaking of the principle that brought on the Revolutionary war. It was that principle which gave hope to all mankind that in due time some of their burdens would be lifted.

The government in England had passed a law which took hope from their hearts, and the famous Boston tea party and the Revolutionary war was the result.

Now our Santa Ana city trustees propose to put through an alleged improvement under a similar act—five men usurping the right of the people of Santa Ana to decide for themselves whether they wish to bond themselves for $370,000 or more, or not. We elected them to operate the city government, but not to vote our bond issues for us.

I have been told that I am foolish to oppose this new boulevard and the way in which the city trustees are attempting to "put it over," as I would get damages more than my property was worth, and I considered such a statement an insult to my honor.

Last Monday we honored the boys who fought in France. They fought, were maimed, and many died, for a principle—for democracy. Are we in Santa Ana going to sell out on them by letting five men take away our rights, or are we going to stand up like men for the American principle that voters and property owners' rights must be preserved?

Right now we need the moral and financial support of all who believe in the American form of government BY THE PEOPLE. Either the people rule, or they don't, and this boulevard bonding plan—with a recall left as the only alternative—puts a choice up to every resident of Santa Ana.

If you are with us, please come to headquarters at 506 North Main street and enlist in this battle to save our rights and guard our honor.

(Signed)
T. G. GOWDY,
President, Citizens League.

CAPTURE YOUTH WHO ESCAPED FROM WHITTIER

A 15-year-old Santa Ana boy, who escaped from the Whittier School for Boys several days ago, was arrested by Sid Smithwick, assistant chief of police, late Saturday and returned to the school, after the boy is believed to have broken into three Santa Ana places Friday and Saturday nights.

The home of P. Adams, 615 North Parton street, was entered some time Saturday night and an automatic shotgun and $1.25 in change reported stolen. O. A. Snider, of 843 North Van Ness street, reported his home entered and ransacked early Saturday night. Nothing was reported missing from the household, but all drawers were pulled out and the house ransacked, it was reported.

In both these robberies, entrances were made through rear windows which had been opened with the aid of a screw driver, officers reported.

The Standard Auto Service store, at Fourth and Van Ness streets, was entered Friday night through a rear window and a three-tube radio set, four radio tubes and 10 sacks of smoking tobacco was stolen.

Officers said they had recovered most of the loot from the boy.

At the time of his arrest the boy was said by officers to be living in a tree in the Santa Ana river bed, west of the bridge on Seventeenth street.

After escaping from Whittier, the youth is reported to have stolen a bicycle in La Habra and ridden it into Santa Ana, peddling all the way while dressed only in a night gown. He obtained more clothes after reaching Santa Ana, it was said. He was with two other boys, hunting in the river bed, when Smithwick found him, it was said.

Gasman, of Los Alamitos, on Lincoln boulevard, three miles west of Anaheim.

The Gasman machine was said to have been parked in the road without lights. This morning, in Justice Kenneth Morrison's court, Gasman was sentenced to serve 31 days in the county jail, his operator's license was suspended and a 60-day additional jail sentence was suspended. He was charged with operating a car without a license.

Gasman was arrested at the scene of the accident by Ole Buer, member of the state highway patrol.

Nick Somers, 21, of 407 Terminal street, Santa Ana, was treated in the Orange County hospital yesterday for cuts about the face, suffered in a automobile accident near Santa Fe Springs.

Deeble, operator of a soft drink stand next to 314 West Fourth street, jumped the curbing and crashed through the front window of the Radio Den, at 313 West Fourth street. The car was said to have been in gear when Deeble cranked it.

School News

Next week the high sixth class is going to have a parade called "The Parade of Books." Each person is to dress up like some character in a book. We are then going to march around to every room and have the pupils vote for the one they think is the best illustrated. The one that is thought the best gets a prize, which is a book. Every one is going to try to win.

—Paul Echols.

Mrs. Ranney's high two class is studying about Indians and Indian symbols. In connection with this the children have made a sand-table representing Indian life. All of the articles in the sand table were brought from home. There are some most interesting ones.

—Alfred Wright.

In the geography room the low four class is studying about Alaska. It is a very interesting country. The Eskimos eat seal most of the time in the winter. In the summer they eat deer, fowl and berries. In the winter they live in snow houses, while in the summer they live in tents made of skin. They also wear suits made of skins. I should not like to live in Alaska.

—Mildren Sinsley.

In Mrs. Stark's low one class those who were not absent or tardy for a month get an all-day sucker. The class is very proud that many have not been absent or tardy.

They also have a freight and passenger train. Those who can read well are on the passenger train, while those who do not read so well have to ride on the freight train.

The latest meeting of the high sixth club was held Tuesday. The club members are now wearing orange and white hats. Some of the boys and girls have put the McKinley school sign on them. The teachers are very nice, for the first day they let us wear them most of the day. They look very nice on us.

—Cleo Belle Cameron.

In the arithmetic room the sixth grade classes have been having tests in drill books. The high sixth is trying its best to win over the low sixth. The high sixth first average was 89 and now the average has gone up to around 94. We certainly hope we win.

—Mollie Holzknecht.

In Miss Hasty's room the high fourth class is studying about the fruit products of the United States. Each person is supposed to choose a fruit and tell how and where it is grown. We also have to make books about fruit.

—Wallace Jennings.

TALBERT

TALBERT, Nov. 18.—Bob Harper, local business man, had a new water tank and tower erected Friday to take the place of the tank and tower wrecked in the windstorm last week. The tank is 3000 gallons capacity, the same as the other. It was installed at a heighth of 18 feet above the ground for the sake of added pressure.

The water system furnishes a number of houses in the vicinity with water.

An all day meeting of the missionary society of the Talbert and Greenville societies is scheduled for next Thursday and is to be held in the Greenville church. A program is planned for the morning and there will be a covered dish luncheon served at noon and another program for the afternoon. The meeting is to observe the week of prayer and praise which is an annual event with the missionary societies. Everyone is invited.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lacabanne spent the day at Huntington Beach in company with Mr. and Mrs. Herman Lemke, friends from Olive, who were their dinner guests in the evening. Mr. and Mrs. Charles George, of Garden Grove, joined them in the evening.

Two death messages were received this week in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Folkert. One came from Holland telling of the death of Mr. Folkert's brother, Claude Folkert, who died following an illness of two weeks. The other message was from Rock Rapids, Iowa., and told of the death of Mrs. Folkert's grandmother, who was ill five weeks before her death.

Mr. and Mrs. Raine of near Bolsa have moved into the Roscoe Weeks house in the Nimocks tract.

CHICAGO BD. OF TRADE

CHICAGO, Nov. 18—(UP)—A slighter decrease in thev isible supply than theb ulls had expected and a reactionary tendency in stocks brought prices down below Saturday's close on the Board of Trade here today. The early high figures brought out more wheat than the market could easily digest and prices eased more and more duirng tehd ay. Bull reports continued to come from Argnetina during the late session, but had only a slight retarding effect. Corn and oats eased with wheat.

At the close wheat was ⅞ to 1c lower, corn was ½ to ¾c lower, and oats was ⅛ to ¼c lower. Provisions were weak.

PREVENT BURN

If you put a little pan of water into the oven when you make fruit cake or pie that has to make a long time, it will keep the food from burning and from getting too hard around the edges.

SOCIALISM IN PRACTICE

Russia is passing through a tremendous experience. There are a great many things that Russia is doing, which, according to our way of thinking, are subject to condemnation. As far as we can observe, there are some points of the experience which indicate complete failure.

Socialism as carried on in Russia, greatly indicates that it cannot be put into successful operation except through the autocratic power of the majority, in a very different sense than in a democracy. Socialism must exercise force over the minority to make them conform in their economic and social action. This is the very place wherein it must differ in its operation from any economic system where individualism and private ownership are recognized. There must be a complete surrender of personal liberty of action in regard to social and business affairs to the end which the majority deems the common good.

There is one standard, however, that the Soviets are insisting upon with which we have a keen desire to agree. This is their insistence that inefficiency in official life is ground for elimination from office and even for expulsion from their organization. Their criterion in this respect is the accomplishing of the work; the delivering of the goods. This alone determines as to whether an official is making good, it is not the number of friends he makes; not his ability to shake hands; not his power of pull, but as in one particular instance, did he move the quantity of cement which he was detailed to take care of in the proper time, and at proper expense?

And a second thing which they are insisting upon is a government free from graft. This is a more serious offense than that of inefficiency, but it is practically eliminated.

The main hue and cry against socialism in theory has always been "inefficiency." In this respect, it seems, that the theorists have been wrong. Socialism as being practiced in Russia tends to deny the rights of the minority, individual freedom and initiative, and uses force in so doing.

REMOVE TEMPTATIONS

A fraternity house was raided at the University of Illinois Law School yesterday. Some fifteen gallons of liquor were seized. According to the reports of the officers who searched the premises, there was liquor in nearly every room. It appears that the bootlegging part of the "fraternity" were purchasing it at twelve dollars a gallon and selling it for thirty-two.

At a meeting of the fraternity group, it was agreed that there were a certain three men who owned the liquor. These men were arrested and jailed. The Dean of Men of the University was present at this particular fraternity meeting, and he said he had nothing to say of the affair.

At about the same time, ten men of the University of Detroit were jailed, and are facing trial on various charges relating to intoxicating liquor,—that of driving when intoxicated, the possession of liquor, and of disorderly conduct.

The reports of university heads have been general that there is less liquor drinking in the universities today than there was during the days when liquor selling and buying were legal. We believe there will be a general demand, not only by those who are emphasizing the enforcement of the prohibition law, but by parents and citizens generally, that our higher institutions of learning, to which the young people are sent, be so conducted as to reduce the temptations to men and the consequent defeat of the purposes of education. The bringing of such matters to light where they can be corrected is the first necessary step toward their correction.

SOME PROGRESS

Mexico yesterday had its national election. As was expected, Pascual Ortiz Rubio was elected president. He had the support of the present administration. There were approximately 800,000 votes cast for Rubio, while about 100,000 voters favored Vasconcelos. There were outbreaks in various sections of Mexico, and nearly a score of people were reported to have been killed.

The election, from an American point of view, indicates a condition far from being ideal, and yet it was an election that went through the forms, and there was no revolution. It bodes of better conditions. There is a great deal more granted to the opposition than there has been in years gone by. As time goes on, greater liberty will be enjoyed, and even under the present conditions, it is better than a revolution. Mexico is progressing toward order.

T. P. O'CONNOR

The death of T. P. O'Connor, member of Parliament since 1880 (and for that reason called "the father of the House of Commons") marks the passing of the last original founder of the Irish Nationalist party. He was an Irishman sitting for the Scotland Division of the English City of Liverpool.

"Tay Pay" O'Connor as he was called, witnessed many important changes in English government. He saw the broadening of the franchise, the rise of the Labor party, the establishment of the Irish Free State, the creation of South Africa and the rise to power, challenge to the world, and the collapse of the German Empire.

T. P. O'Connor was acknowledged to be the dean of journalism. His early fame was founded in the '70's on his bitter attack upon Disraeli which marked him for a political career. His fame as a journalist was accentuated by his literary productions, the most recent of which was: "Memories of an Old Parliamentarian," in two volumes published this last spring which comprises a history of the struggle of the Irish Nationalist party and the outstanding personality of its founder Charles Steward Parnell.

P. W. Wilson, reviewing these two volumes in the New York Times, said: ". . . the fact that an octogenarian should be able to offer volumes so gracefully written as these, with not a word misplaced and not a word superfluous, is indeed an evidence that the older journalism, when exhibited by the master of the pen, has something in it which compels attention and respect."

T. P. O'Connor was well-liked, even beloved by his fellow Parliamentarians. On his seventy-fifth birthday two hundred M. P's. tendered him a dinner and on every birthday since then he has been acclaimed.

He loved life; had hoped to live to be one hundred. A short time ago he said, to the youth of England: "Life is a great adventure. Live every hour of it. Don't be buried until you are dead."

He himself lived as fully, up to the end, as his increasing physical weakness permitted. In three channels he achieved renown; as a Parliamentarian, as a journalist (he was a publisher of several newspapers which he founded) and as a literary man. He was author of "Lord Beaconsfield—a Biography," "The Parnell Movement," "Gladstone's House of Commons," "Old Love Stories," "Napoleon," "The Phantom Millions," and the Memoirs already referred to.

With his death, the mantle of the "father of the House of Commons" falls upon David Lloyd George.

PASCUAL ORTIZ RUBIO ELECTED

The newly elected president of Mexico, Pascual Ortiz Rubio, it is expected, will carry out the general policies of his predecessors, General Obregon and General Calles.

He is an engineer by profession, and has combined with that the study and practice of politics and military work, which stand him in good stead in the position which he will now occupy. He will be inaugurated on February 5th.

He has been tried and tested from the standpoint of his friends, for he was arrested as a revolutionist and imprisoned for a time in the latter part of the regime of Porfirio Diaz. He has carried on his profession as engineer, particularly in the army; has held numerous political offices, such as Governor of Michochan; was Ambassador to Germany under Obregon and to Brazil under Calles.

He is an author of engineering works, and it is generally believed he will prove himself able and winning as a chief executive.

It is interesting to note that the President of the United States and the President of Mexico are both engineers, the former having specialized in the mining and the latter giving his attention to the civil divisions of the general subject. The road to preferment is not now so zealously guarded by the legal profession.

SENATOR EDGE TO FRANCE

The Senate this week will probably confirm the appointment of Senator Walter E. Edge as Ambassador to France. Senator Edge has a number of qualifications which undoubtedly made their appeal to the President causing his selection.

But incidentally we are impressed that President Hoover will be able to carry out his policies of law enforcement with a great deal more power and more definitely with Senator Edge in Paris than if he were in the Senate. We have a growing conviction that President Hoover, as an efficient executive, knows the places men are best fitted to fill.

Thirty Million In School

Riverside Daily Press

How many people go to school?

The vast service of the school will reach thirty million in the United States during 1929-30, according to the estimates of the research division of the National Education association. In round numbers 24,000,000 of these will be in elementary schools; 5,000,000 in the high schools; and more than 1,000,000 in the colleges.

The latest available figures issued by the bureau of education are for 1926. They show for 1926, 2,984,002 pupils enrolled in public, and 2,143,100 in private elementary schools including kindergartens; 3,786,071 in public, and 346,054 in private secondary schools; 252,907 in public, and 17,209 in private teacher-training institutions; 280,437 in public, and 486,704 in private colleges and universities excluding preparatory students. This made a total of 28,296,484 pupils in such schools in the United States.

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

HELPLESS IGNORANCE

I find that my trust is too often misplaced
In the blurbs of a publisher's ad;
I also discovered my personal taste
In books is decidedly bad.
Yet freely for fiction my money I spend
For I read under expert direction
And for guidance in novels always depend
On the Book of the Day Club's selection.

But it happens today that I need a new car,
And I'm plunged in a terrible plight.
No groups of mechanical pundits there are
To guide my decision aright.
Though salesmen by dozens talk loudly and long
In attempts to persuade or dissuade me,
I am perfectly sure that my choice will be wrong
With no Car of the Year Club to aid me.

Moreover at luncheon I'm often distressed,
My mind being wholly inert,
When it comes to the choosing of what would be best
To take as a spot of desert.
I can learn where to go for the movies at night
By consulting a cinema play club,
But no thick slab of pie shall my palate delight
For there isn't a Pie of the Day Club.

As for bad, lawless fellows, who sometimes imbibe
At bars back in alley ways hidden,
What mentor have they who knows how to prescribe
The nectar now sternly forbidden?
What mixture to choose from the bottle lined shelves
When the thirst for red liquor impels them
To hoist one aboard, they must learn by themselves;
No Drink of the Hour Club tells them!

Jack Dullboy's Aim In Life

By WILLIAM TRUFANT FOSTER and WADDILL CATCHINGS

Suppose Jack works forty years and saves his money—like a good boy—and then goes to his bank and says: "I'm sick of saving. I'm sick of working. I have no dependents. I have saved enough money to last me. Please let me have it all. Now I want to play."

Picture the dismay on the face behind the brass grill!

"For twenty years," says Professor Bennett in the Yale Review," "the bank might have been telling me that saving was for my children, or lacking these, for my old age; yet now, when I took it at its word, the establishment would have a collective apoplexy.

"Why?" Not merely because it would lose some money that it might have invested with profit to itself, but chiefly because to a banker the idea of spending money for enjoyment is a sort of sacrilege.

"Money, in his philosophy, is not to be spent, but to be saved. Capital is to breed interest; interest is to be added to capital, which is in turn to produce more interest, and so on, and so on.

"Far away on the horizon of progress he sees a perfect Everest of capital soaring into the inane. Sublime spectacle!

"Yes, but what will he do with it?

"The ideal of a banker is Work. Mine is Enjoyment. If I save, it is in order that I may spend; if I work, it is in order that I may enjoy the fruits of my labor."

"The ideal of work for work's sake seems to me to be stupid, inhuman, and, above all, dull."

Thanks be! Here is a professor ANY ONE can understand.

Virtue may be its own reward, but thrift isn't. What is the use of piling up savings, if it is always going to be wicked to enjoy them?

Thoughts On Modern Life

By Glenn Frank

SHORT-TIME SCHOOLING

We center so much of our attention upon what our sons and daughters bring to the business of living and making a living when they are graduated from our schools that we sometimes forget the myriad thousands who drop out of school before they are graduated.

These, too, enter into the making of the nation.

It has been estimated that the rate at which students drop out of school from grade to grade runs about as follows:

One thousand, let us say, enter the first grade.

Thirty of these will drop out between the first and second grades—970 entering the second grade.

Thirty more will drop out between the second and third grades—940 entering the third grade.

Thirty-five more will drop out between the third and fourth grades—905 entering the fourth grade.

Seventy-five more will drop out between the fourth and fifth grades—830 entering the fifth grade.

Ninety-five more will drop out between the fifth and sixth grades—735 entering the sixth grade.

One hundred and five more will drop out between the sixth and seventh grades—630 entering the seventh grade.

One hundred and forty more will drop out between the seventh and eighth grades — 490 entering the eighth grade.

Two hundred and sixty more will drop out between the eighth grade and high school—230 entering high school.

Sixty more will drop out between the beginning of the first year of high school and the end of the third year—120 finishing the third year of high school.

Twenty-five more will drop out between the end of the third and the end of the fourth year—only 95 finishing high school.

Forty-five more will drop out between the end of high school and the beginning of college—only 50 entering the first year of college.

Ten more will drop out between the beginning of the first and the end of the second year—only 40 finishing the second year of college.

Twenty more will drop out between the end of the second and the end of the third year—only 20 finishing the third year of college.

Ten more will drop out between the end of the third and the end of the fourth year—and only 10 out of the 1000 who entered the first grade will finish college.

This is by no means an entirely regrettable picture. There are multiplied thousands attending colleges and universities who could spend their time and energy and money to better advantage. There is a vast amount of blind worship of degrees that is ignorance and waste; but something of the blame for this slump from 1000 to 10 rests upon the schools; and the progressive educator is scratching his head about it.

OUR CHILDREN

By ANGELO PATRI

ORDER

The seeds of many a virtue are laid in the soul of a child before it is born. I am quite certain of that. And I believe that one of these deeply seeded virtues is order. Children love order and resent disorder.

One of the early occupations of childhood is the sorting of things into little heaps. All stones go in a little heap. All papers go in another. By and by stones of one size, of one color, of one shape, are sorted and placed and the classification, the orderly way of thinking and doing is well started. The trouble is we stop it half way.

Of course we do not mean to stop the child in his pursuit of rhythm and order in his life but he has so many things to do and to learn that the day is all too short. He is hurried from this to that before he has time to set his house in orderly array and by and by all idea of that is wiped out.

You see I believe that physical habits are the expression of a strong thought. When a child sets his toy shelf in order he has a strong thought of order. That thought colors the quality of his thinking. The more good color that goes into that thinking, the finer the quality of the thinking, the more power the child can wield.

Then let us cherish this impulse to orderly ways. Help the little child to put his things in order and in their places. As he grows increase the space he is allowed and the field he covers. By the time he goes to high school he should have imbibed this orderly idea so that it influences his daily work and play.

This means he wastes no time looking for things. He knows where they are. He loses no time in idle gestures for, being trained in orderly ways he knows where to begin, how to go on, and when to stop. There will be no left out lesson; no period skipped; no back work.

I have seen children search half an hour for a lead pencil only to find the butt end of one when it was time to go to bed. I have known children who could not find certain text books after the first week's use. They did not "turn up" until spring houseleaning time. I have known children who failed in a term's work because they skipped periods, left out lessons, attended school irregularly. Disorderly thinking, all of it.

The time to teach order is from babyhood on. Surround the child with order. Keep his day free from clutter and fuss and noise. There is no harmony in disorder and children do not thrive in discord. They grow in intelligence in a harmonious atmosphere and that is always the result of orderly planning, orderly working and orderly thinking.

The children's bureau drawers? Their book shelves? Their collections? Their note books? Their routine of work and play? Are they orderly? They can be and they ought to be.

"ATLANTA TO THE SEA"

On November 16, 1864, Major General William Tecumseh Sherman's army started on its famous march from Atlanta to the sea.

The army stretched out at times for a length of 60 miles. The country along the march was almost devastated. Sherman reached Savannah on December 11 and it was surrendered on December 21.

In February, Sherman resumed his march, turning northward through South Carolina with his army of nearly 100,000 men, and on February 17, 1865, entered Columbia.

On the same day, the Confederates evacuated Charleston, which was occupied the following day by the Federals. He then pushed on into North Carolina, repulsing various attempts by General Joseph E. Johnston to check him.

On April 18, Sherman received the surrender of Johnston at Durham's Station.

Mass Meeting Over New Highway Set For Wednesday

BOTH SIDES INVITED

Councilmen and Others Hope to Reach Agreement During Conference

A MASS MEETING of citizens for public discussion of the proposal of the city council to open Santa Ana boulevard paralleling on the east side the Southern Pacific tracks from near the hospital to Main street at Santa Clara avenue will be held at the Auditorium of the Santa Ana high school Wednesday, at 7:30 p. m., it was announced today by George Raymer, secretary of the chamber of commerce, which organization is sponsoring the open meeting.

Raymer said that the program committee would attempt to arrange a program that would give proponents and opponents an equal opportunity to present arguments.

The committee on program is composed of Richard Emison, chairman, C. C. Downing, Nat Neff, Sam Hurwitz, Bruce Switzler, O. A. Haley, Wm. Iverson, Charles Aubrey and Wm. DeWolfe.

The secretary said that the high school auditorium had been selected for the debate in anticipation of a large attendance. He pointed out that the project is one which every resident of the city is directly interested, and it is upon this fact that the secretary basis prediction that the auditorium will be crowded.

It is expected that Clyde Jenken, city engineer, will present the set-up for the highway building project and that he also will give data concerning costs and other information on the program. Charles D. Swanner, city attorney, probably will be asked to present the legal side of the controversy, and it was indicated that the committee would ask T. G. Gowdy and Wayne Goble, president and secretary, respectively, of the Citizens League, which is sponsoring the protest and recall petitions now in circulation, to tell their side of the story. Others on each side of the controversy may be requested to speak.

Wind, Rain, Snow Strike At Several Places in France and England

LONDON, Nov. 18.—(UP)—Gales, rains and snow swept the British isles and the coasts of France over the week end, taking a toll of heavy property damage. Three fliers were thought to have been killed in the storms.

The Marseilles radio station intercepted a message from a speedboat searching for the missing Marseilles-Tunis mail plane which said the French destroyer Ajaccio had found the plane's tires, a canoe oar and pieces of the plane's fuselage. No trace was found of the ship's crew, Marcel Decugnac, pilot, Radio Operator Hostier and Navigator Cantel. They left Marseilles for Tunis at 7 a. m. yesterday and three hours later reported they were in distress. It was the tenth accident this month to the Marseilles-Tunis air line, service was suspended yesterday because no planes were available.

The Atlantic lashed the French coast severely, causing the serious injury of several sailors when the torpedo boat Valmy was racked by heavy waves near Brest, a sloop was sunk and a fishing boat was thrown up on the beach and beaten to pieces by the rough seas. Another was grounded although no deaths were reported.

Damages everywhere were heavy. In Great Brita'n snow storms forced abandonment of most of the sports events scheduled for the week end and caused the postponement of the scheduled flight of the dirigible R-101 with a party of members of parliament. Many basements in London and Brighton were flooded. The river Severn overflowed its banks and drove scores of families from their homes in Poolquay, Llandrinio to a depth of 10 feet.

Channel steamers and London-Paris air liners maintained services but they were buffeted severely by gales.

Rain, wind and snow struck at several places in France including the suburbs of Paris, Alsace, Aix Les Bines and Marseilles. Parts of Cherbourg were flooded by high waves and dikes were reported broken in some places.

T. P. O'CONNOR, IRISH LEADER, ANSWERS CALL

Father of House of Commons Dies After 50 Years in Parliament

LONDON, Nov. 18.—(UP)—Death has cheated by a year the hope of Thomas Power O'Connor, "father of the house of commons," of attaining a record of a half century's continuous service in parliament.

Eased by the last good wishes of his king and Pope Pius, the 81-year-old veteran of politics and journalism succumbed at 3:10 a. m., today, to a septic condition of one leg, from which he had suffered for two years.

"Tay Pay," as he was affectionately known, became seriously ill 10 days ago. King George's physician, Lord Dawson of Penn, was called to O'Connor's bachelor apartment Saturday night. He brought a message of sympathy from the king. Pope Pius sent his final good wishes and blessing by Cardinal Bourne.

O'Connor entered parliament from Galway in 1880. He was returned from both Galway and Liverpool in 1886, and thereafter represented the Scotland division of Liverpool until his death. He was the only candidate to be re-elected to the house of commons last May without opposition.

He had risen to fame in parliament as the champion of Irish nationalism, a cause to which the greater part of his career was dedicated.

With "Tay Pay's" death," the veteran Lloyd George, former prime minister and leader of the Liberal party, succeeds to the title of "father" of the house of commons. He has attained a record of 39 years of continuous service.

O'Connor was prevented by ill health from taking an active part in politics during the last years of his life.

A striking tribute was paid "Tay Pay" on his 80th birthday when he was the guest of honor at a dinner in London. He was carried to the chair of honor and when called upon to speak insisted that two men help him stand. Tears rolled down his cheeks as he thanked his friends for honoring him. His natural Irish wit shone through the tears to the last.

"I have received the congratulations of the king today," he said "A great crowd has gathered to honor me. But I can remember

Railway executives representing most of the large eastern lines will meet with the President tomorrow, chamber of commerce officials and leaders in the manufacturing and distribution trades will confer at the White House Wednesday, and Thursday a round table conference of the nation's farming interests is scheduled.

From these conferences will develop the measures to be taken by each branch of trade co-operating with government agencies to restore public confidence shaken by the stock market decline.

Further conferences of the more specialized groups will be called later it was intimated at the White House today.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 18.—(UP)—In an election marked by nationwide rioting, bloodshed and charges of fraud, Pascual Ortiz Rubio, national revolutionary and administration candidate, has obtained a triumphant majority for the presidency of Mexico.

An accurate check of the dead was impossible. Many deaths were confirmed and those together with semi official reports indicated the number of killed throughout the states would reach 18 with scores injured. Unconfirmed reports placed the dead at 26.

While no figures were available for an approximate count of yesterday's vote, reports indicated that the Ortiz Rubio party had triumphed in nearly all of the state of the Republic. Leaders of the anti-re-electionist party, supporting the only other candidate, Jose Vasconcelos, conceded victory to the administration candidate but only with claims that the Ortiz Rubio victory was a "fiasco" and accomplished by preventing the Vasconcelos supporters from voting.

In view of the prevalence of disorders yesterday, the possibility arose of an armed movement to win the presidency for Vasconcelos. It was pointed out, however, that even should the re-electionists in the north attempt such a movement that it probably would be short lived because of scattered support and because Vasconcelos himself would refrain from authorizing such tactics.

Advices to the department of the interior stated that one person was killed at Cecilia in the state of Tamaulipas and six wounded. Reports to La Prensa from Toluca in Mexico state, said five police were killed when a patrol truck was overturned. Police headquarters in the capital announced the city's death toll was five and that 16 were wounded seriously in addition to scores who were bruised and cut.

One was killed and four wounded in a riot in front of the anti-re-electionists headquarters. Police reports received here from Vera Cruz said that up to noon yesterday four men had been slain there, one at Cordoba in the same state and another at Lahuca, Vera Cruz state, who allegedly was launched by Vasconcelos followers.

Many Killed

Private advices from Vera Cruz reported that from nine to 14 were killed there, including a baby killed by a stray bullet. Many were wounded. Similar dispatch described deaths in riots at Cordoba, San Andres and Tuxtla.

Thousands of troops were on guard throughout the day but apparently were powerless to prevent a minimum of disorder. Both candidates remained out of the city, Ortiz Rubio staying in Uruapan, state of Michoacan.

The polls opened at 9 a. m., and the disorders began early, centering mainly about attempts of both factions to gain the advantage of the election board. Under the Mexican law, the first nine persons arriving at the polls constitute themselves an election board. Both parties had guards and the re-electionists were constantly filing protests against alleged fraud. In some instances, they established separate polling places.

As the polls closed at 2 p. m., it

"Jerry" Overshiner Dies In His Hotel Apartment Here on Saturday

FUNERAL services will be held at the Winbigler Funeral home tomorrow, at 2 p. m., for Clifton J. Overshiner, who passed away Saturday, it was announced today. Mr. Overshiner was 60 years of age. The Rev. Moffett Rhodes of Spurgeon Memorial church will officiate.

The death of Mr. Overshiner, who was known to his scores of friends as "Jerry," closes the life career of a man who has been prominent in banking and building and loan association activities in this vicinity for 41 years.

Born in Hopkinsville, Ky., August 31, 1869, Mr. Overshiner came to Santa Ana in 1888, and a few years later located at Orange when he entered the employ of the First National bank there as bookkeeper. Later he was advanced to teller and at the time of severing his connection with that financial institution was assistant cashier, a position he held for 14 years. Mr. Overshiner also was identified with the Orange Building and Loan association having been a director and the appraiser for the organization for many years.

Failing health forced him to give up all business activities eight years ago, when he moved back to Santa Ana. Since returning to the city he had made his home at the Rossmore hotel, at which place he died late Saturday afternoon.

He was a veteran of the Spanish-American war, being a member of old Company L, of this city, when it was called to service. He was a member of Camp Calumpit and of the Orange Masonic lodge. The latter organization will have charge of the funeral.

Mr. Overshiner is survived by one brother, C. D. Overshiner, former postmaster of this city; one sister, Miss Elizabeth Overshiner, Santa Ana; three nephews, William H Overshiner of Santa Ana, Charles Qualls of Los Angeles, Clifton Overshiner, Hopkinsville, Ky.; and two nieces, Mrs. Frederick Eley of Santa Ana and Miss Catherine Overshiner of Hopkinsville, Ky.

FIRE SWEEPS CALIFORNIA UNI PLANT

Every Patient Is Carried To Safety and Returned After Fire Is Put Out

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 18.—(UP)—Heroism on the part of 120 nurses who quieted frantic patients and carried them to safety prevented a horrible disaster here today after a fire swept through the University of California hospital.

The flames started as a result of an explosion in an X-Ray room and for a time it looked as though many of the sick and injured would lose their lives.

Rescue workers concentrated on clearing patients from the hospital while firemen strove to extinguish the flames.

In the gray hours of early morning success finally greeted the efforts of both nurses and firemen. Every patient was carried to a hill to the rear of the building and shortly thereafter the flames were controlled.

Damage is estimated at $250,000. No one was seriously injured.

But before the flames were controlled there were many terror-filled moments with the nurses striving earnestly to prevent a panic and in this they were successful.

That no one was burned to death is because of the excellent work of the nurses, directed by Miss Kathleen Fores, superintendent of nurses, Charles Frehnan, fire chief, told the United Press.

The hospital building is five stories high with the X-ray room on the third floor. After the explosion the flames swept up, reaching the fifth floor, burning past the windows of bedridden patients.

Miss Juanita Cosenborder, telephone operator, discovered the flames and it was she who started the day of heroism for women.

With remarkable presence of mind Miss Cosenborder turned in the alarm and leap... to the ground floor where she summoned nurses.

Miss Cosenborder struck a sand pile in her jump. She wrenched an ankle but not seriously.

Sheets of flame were shooting from the windows of the X-ray room when firemen arrived. Fearing a repetition of the Cleveland hospital disaster, which killed 127 persons this year, Fire Chief Brennan immediately sounded a call for his helmet squad and that group, wearing gas masks dared to enter the flaming X-ray room. The room and adjoining rooms were flooded with water.

After the hospital was cleared of patients firemen battled stubbornly for an hour before the flames were extinguished.

Within two hours after the fire had been discovered, the patients were returned to their beds and the usual routine of the place was resumed. By 7:15 a. m., P. S. T., all was quiet and orderly again.

Damage was confined to the third and fifth floors, the third

Defeated Mexico Candidate Sought On Rebel Charges

NOGALES, Sonora, Mexico, Nov. 18.—(UP)—From an unknown hiding place today, Jose Vasconcelos, defeated anti-administration candidate for president of Mexico, issued statements declaring himself president and urging adherents to overthrow the present government in open revolution.

Meanwhile, soldiers of the federal army searched all trains and carriers for the defeated candidate. The soldiers held a warrant charging Vasconcelos with inciting rebellion against the government

INSTRUCTED TO FIND IF 1928 ORDERS OBEYED

In addition to the regular statutory instructions given to the personnel of the grand jury, Judge James L. Allen added a duty that has not been included in the past when he swore in the 1929 edition of the jury today.

In instructing the member of the jury as to their duties, Judge Allen included the following, which has not heretofore been a part of such instructions, but which the presiding judge felt would be of value in the work of investigation and would co-ordinate the work of the body each year so that the maximum results could be attained:

"The grand jury last year made certain investigations and recommendations relative to the conduct of the business of the county and the court believes that such recommendations should be of some avail. I, therefore, charge you that it is your duty to investigate into the recommendations as made by the former grand jury and ascertain whether, in your opinion, they were warranted and, if warranted, whether or not they have been complied with. If you find that such recommendations were warranted and have not been complied with, then it would be your duty to investigate and call before you any and all persons which you may deem advisable for the purpose of ascertaining why such recommendations have not been complied with. You also are to make any further recommendations with respect to such report as you may deem fit and proper."

Otto R. Haan, prominent Santa Ana business man, was named foreman of the jury and was sworn in as such. The other 18 persons chosen from the panel of 30 sworn in for service on the 1929 grand jury are Sam Newnes, Charles Bowman, Lotus H. Loudon, Laura B. Leonard, H. B. Van Dien, L. F. Pomeroy, Gilbert Kraemer, Carl Mock, Paul Ellsworth, W. R. McClintock, O. J. Guilbert, Harold Lagerstrom, Roy L. Howell, George Maxwell, Dale King, Donald Jones, Fred Struck and Nora Flagg.

CLEAN HATS

Many meticulous folks clean their coats, frocks, shoes and gloves and do not think of their hats. If they cannot go to the cleaners weekly, at least they can have their linings turned wrong side out and aired daily. With a little brush dipped in reliable cleansing fluid, one can thoroughly clean both the inside and the out. Brush with dry bush when dry.

being gutted by the flames. Little damage was done on the lower floors by fire but the flooding of the X-ray room with water caused some property loss below.

The heat was terrific and this handicapped the firefighters and rescuers. All elevators went out of commission soon after the flames started and that handicapped the workers as some patients were on the fifth floor and were carried to the ground floor.

The nurses gave way to womanlike tears and other manifestations of excitement after the fire was out. There were no tears or hysterics while patients were to be saved but there was a considerable let down in emotions after all patients were saved and the blaze extinguished.

Court Notes

Irwin H. Larson filed suit today in superior court for annulment of his marriage to Audrey McClellan. In the complaint he sets forth that at the time of the marriage he now is seeking to have annulled he was legally married to Alice Johnson Larson. The second marriage took place in May, 1928, in Texas.

The case of Victoria Branch and the administrator of the estate of A. W. Branch vs. The Western Cordage company, et al., for recision of contract is being tried today by Judge H. G. Ames. The plaintiffs claim that through fraud and deceit they were induced to sell securities of the Southern California Edison company and invest the money realized in stock of the Orange manufacturing concern and that the latter stock was not of the market value represented nor has it paid dividends promised.

Judge G. K. Scovel is trying the case of Thomas E. Wilson vs. W. S. Sparr, today. The plaintiff is asking the recision of a contract for the purchase of certain real estate.

Three men, arrested by sheriff's officers over the week end, were sentenced to serve 31 days each in the county jail on drunk charges in Justice Kenneth Morrison's court this morning. They were D. Meriga, 55, Talbert; Al Costa, 49, Talbert, and Roy Gonzales, 44, barber, of Delhi.

The case of Cruz Garcia, charged with reckless driving, was set in Justice Kenneth Morrison's court this morning for 10 a. m., Nov. 21. It will be a jury trial.

CHEST DRIVE TO CONTINUE UNTIL ALL PROSPECTS HAVE BEEN CONTACTED BY TEAMS

Following the careful check up and analysis made over the week end by Chest officials of pledges turned in thus far by Chest workers, it was announced today by Clyde Downing, campaign chairman, that the final report dinner had been indefinitely postponed and the campaign would be continued until the canvass was completed.

"A careful study of the situation and analysis of the subscriptions reported to date were made Saturday and Sunday," R. R. Miller, secretary-manager of the Chest reported. "The subscriptions were checked against those of last year and reveal that 3260 actual pledges in the last campaign rolled up a total of $46,000. So far this year we had only 1632 pledges reported, but these account for over $37,000. We were amazed at the number of new names turned in this year that did not appear on the records of the previous year and were more than gratified at the increased amount of the pledges of a very definite percentage of those who gave both last year and this year. Many of the subscriptions were increased materially to meet the request of the Chest for complete success this year. Then we found that there were many who made pledges last year who have not yet turned in cards indicating the assistance they will give in the campaign that we are now conducting."

For some reason that has not yet been definitely defined, team workers have not made contacts with persons whose cards they were assigned and as a result many persons have volunteered their subscriptions and have phoned Chest headquarters inquiring why the solicitors have not called to see them. Fourteen such calls were received at headquarters Saturday.

In announcing the postponement of the final report dinner, Downing issued the following statement:

"We feel that it is manifestly unfair to those public spirited citizens of the community who have responded to our pleas for larger gifts this year to insure the success of the campaign to stop our efforts before all persons who gave last year have been seen and given an opportunity to do their part again this year. Consequently the workers are going on with the task until victory is attained."

A group of workers gathered in Chest headquarters this morning and started on the cleanup campaign. The date of the victory dinner will be announced by Chest officials as soon as the visitations are completed.

was reported that four persons were killed when Ortiz Rubio supporters attempted to attack the anti-re-electionists near one of the latter's headquarters in the capital. There were at least a half dozen riots in progress at that hour.

Six were wounded when the national revolutionaries drove a group of Vasconcelistas from a polling place on the outskirts of the city. It was charged the national revolutionaries destroyed the anti-re-electionists' ballots afetr that act and prevented their approach.

Federal Guard

Approximately 12,000 soldiers made up the federal guard. Fifty soldiers guarded the United States embassy, in front of which a group of anti-reelectionists attempted to stage a demonstration a week ago when several were wounded in a street fight.

Official tabulation of the vote probably will not be available for four days. Some estimated Ortiz Rubio's vote would total more than 1,000,000.

Manuel Perez Treviso, president of the National Revolutionary party, said Ortiz Rubio had won in 90 per cent of the nation.

The anti re-electionist headquarters, in conceding Ortiz Rubio victory, announced they were filing protests in each district court alleging that the election was illegal.

The statement, headed "Mexico had no election," said that the election was a "fiasco." It was signed by President Victorio E. Gongora and added:

"The entire judicial machinery of the country was swamped with protests because of assaults made my those who should have prevented them.

"Our members were villianously murdered throughout the republic. Jails were filled with them. Civilization is in mourning. Our enemies cannot credit themselves with a triumph which they did not obtain. They have beaten all records for immortality.

"For the Mexicans, Vasconcelos is president."

The new president succeeds provisional President Emilio Portes Gil and will take office February 5, next, serve until November 30, 1934, to fill out the unexpired term of the assassinated president, Alvaro Obregon.

when I was the least popular member of parliament. Nobody spoke to me in those days, not even my own colleagues."

O'Connor was 81 October 5. His journalistic career was carried to his aging years from an early prominence which was credited mainly to his ability to write obituaries. His stories of the dead led him from Fwet street to the house of commons and into authorship as a biographer.

He was born in Athlone in 1848 and won an M. A. degree at Queen's university. He began his newspaper work in 1867 at the age of 19 as a junior reporter on Saunfer's Newsletter, a Conservative journal in Dublin. Three year's later he began writing famous obituaries for the Daily Telegraph here.

He referred to himself as the "first grave digger of the Daily Telegraph." On one occasion, appearing late for a golf appointment, he responded to the chiding of his companion "I'm sorry to be late but I've been busy completing your obituary." He won the match easily.

During his earlier journalistic days, O'Connor often suffered despair brought on by parial employment. He quarreled with his chief at the Daily Telegraph and left to serve in the London office of the New York Herald. He returned, however, to the Daily Telegraph and in later years founded and was the first editor of the Star. He subsequently was editor of the Sun, the Sunday Sun, M. P. P., T. P.'s Weekly, T. P's Jounral and T. P.'s and Cassells Weekly. Among his best known works are "Lord Beaconfield; A Biography," "The Parnell Movement," "Some Old Live Stories" and "Napoleon."

"Tay Pay" was one of the most famous and popular bachelors of the British empire. His ready wit and cheery nature served to enliven the proceedings in the house of commons where he achieved a position rivalled in history only by the late "Uncle Joe Cannon, veteran speaker of the house of representatives in Washington.

His initials, corrupted to "Tay Pay," were as famous in Britain as the designation of "John D." in the United States. A cablegram from any part of the world to just "Tay Pay" always reached him.

MAN CHARGED WITH ATTEMPTED MURDER

Two men are being held in the county jail, one booked on a charge of attempted murder, while deputy sheriffs today are trying to get to the bottom of a shooting fray which occurred yesterday in Delhi.

No one was hit, but an unnamed woman is said to have been the target for a gun alleged to have been in the hands of S. Madrino, 46, of Delhi, one of the men in jail. The other man is Jose Arellano, 22, also of Delhi, whom police say had the gun at one time during the fracas or just afterwards.

According to the story told by Harry Carter, deputy sheriff, who is investigating, Arellano appeared in the Delhi postoffice and turned a gun over to Dr. Johnson, saying that Madrino had fired it at a woman. When Madrino was arrested he was suffering from a severe cut on the arm, which so far has not been explained, officers said.

It was not expected to be remoored to Cardington before late this afternoon or night. Members of parliament scheduled as passengers did not make the trip because of storm conditions.

FRATERNITY HOUSE MAY BE PADLOCKED

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Nov. 18.—(UP)—Twenty Gamma Eta Gamma fraternity boys went to classes at the University of Illinois today fearful that the fraternity house, three blocks from the campus, would be padlocked as an asserted collegiate bootlegging establishment before they could get back.

The padlock threat was made after Sheriff Elmer Shroaff and several deputies found 10 gallons of alcohol and numerous bottles of liquor in the fraternity house during a search-raid early yesterday.

Three fraternity members and one other student were arrested and J. D. Lewis, of Urbanaville, Ill., president of the organization, promised other members of the group would be turned over to the authorities when wanted.

DEATHS

A WORD OF COMFORT

There is a middle ground between the blatant voicing of your individual opinion and the treading so cautiously that you seem devoid of convictions.

Common courtesy requires that you should avoid hurting other people unnecessarily and purposely bruising their ideals and even their prejudices. But you have the responsibility of living your allegiance to the God of love and of so expressing your trust in Him through your days of deepest sorrow that other man will be led to seek from Him the comfort and the strength which sustains you.

BAND AND CHOIR WILL ASSIST IN S. A. SERVICES

Aimee Semple McPherson, world famous evangelist, of Los Angeles, tomorrow night, will conduct a meeting in the Foursquare Gospel tabernacle, at the corner of Fairview and Sycamore streets. She is to be accompanied by the Hallelujah choir of 70 voices, Silver band and several officials of Angelus temple.

The evangelist is to be met by a parade of cars at the corner of Broadway and Santa Clara avenue and will be welcomed to Santa Ana by a large group of loyalists of the Santa Ana lighthouse. Chief of Police Rogers has consented to aid in maintaining order in the expected crowd and motorcycle officers will lead the parade to the church.

Arrangements for the meeting were made today by the Rev. Wilfred C. Parham and Evangelist Alice Wilson Parham, who have just opened an evangelistic crusade in the Foursquare Gospel Lighthouse here. The revival meeting tomorrow will be staged in the interests of the Santa Ana church, which recently withstood a dissension program when a group separated from the McPherson congregation under the direction of the Rev. and Mrs. C. Franklin Brown.

Doors of the tabernacle will be opened at 8 o'clock and Mrs. McPherson will arrive in Santa Ana at 6:30 p. m. Following the sermon, a fellowship reception will be held, at which Mrs. McPherson will preside. Sandwiches and coffee will be served.

Aimee Semple McPherson is the builder of Angeles temple, Los Angeles, seating 5300 persons. Sunday nights the building is packed and overflow crowds cannot gain admittance. She also has started a Bible school, "L. I. F. E.," which now boasts 1150 students, and she has her own radio, over which she broadcasts each week. Mrs. McPherson is the founder of the Foursquare Gospel movement. She started to preach in her temple several years ago and now has several hundred Foursquare Gospel branch churches all over the United States.

PROGRAM FOR CANTANDO CLUB CONCERT TOLD

With virtually every one of the 1500 seats in the high school auditorium reserved, the Cantando club will present its first concert of the season to a crowded house tomorrow night, it was anticipated today.

It was pointed out today that the club has made for itself a place in the affections of the people of this city, with the result that this year the club has the largest list of associate members in the history of the organization.

The program will start at 8:15 and will carry features that will delight all music lovers. Lajos Shuk, violoncellist, who is to be featured, comes to the city with the reputation of being one of the outstanding players of the 'cello and he is to be accompanied at the piano by Levos Delmar, who also has a reputation as a musician.

Commenting on his appearance in a program in Santa Monica last August 14, the Santa Monica Outlook says of Shuk:

"Sincerity, technique, delicacy of expression and delightful musicianship characterized the playing of this young 'cellist and won the enthusiastic applause of the audience after every number. He was given special recognition after his playing of 'Adoration,' an exquisite composition of his own."

The program tomorrow night will be as follows:

"The Destruction of Gaza" (Laurent de Rille), "I Love the Moon" (Paul A. Rubens), "Sea Fever" (Mark Andrews) Lajos Shuk, violoncellist, (a) Andante (from Concerto in E minor) (Popper) (b) "After a Dream" (Faure), (c) "Andalusian Serenade (Kaempf), "The Highwayman" (Mark Andrews), (with solos by Sally Lee Scales, Soprano, and H. H. Bolander, tenor).

"Now let every tongue adore Thee" (Johann Sebastian Bach); "Reapers' Song" (Bohemian Folk Song) (arr. Dr. A. T. Davison) accompaniment for four hands, Miss Armstrong and Miss Ramsey; "Suomi's Song" (Franz Mair, arr. by F. M. Earl) Lajos Shuk, violoncellist, (a) "Russian Serenade" (from Folk Songs) (by Blumenfeld), (b) "Adoration" (Shuk), (c) "Polonaise de Concert" (Popper); "The Load is Heavy" (Ted Snyder) (arr. Wm. Stickles) (Quartette—A. J. Garroway, H. H. Bolander, H. Runnells, W. C. Vieira), "Land of Hope and Glory" (Edward Elgar) (arr. Arthur Fagge).

PRETTY RADIATORS

You can achieve another magazine table by utilizing your radiator top. Have a board made to cover the top of the radiator and put cleats under it to hold secure. Paint the same color as your woodwork. Sometimes cottage houses can have little cretonne flounces down from the board to make a really attractive table effect.

NEWCOMERS TO S. A. STAGE IN PLAYERS' CAST

In assembling her cast for "Mrs. Bumpstead-Leigh," entertaining comedy which is to be presented on Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights of this week by the Santa Ana Community Players, Miss Edith Cornell, director, was fortunate in securing the co-operation of new members of the association and of several who have been members for a long time but never have taken active part in the dramatic work. Among the latter is Miss Dorothea K. Smith, who will make her first appearance in one of the Community plays, as "Nina," the little maid, but who has taken active part in general work connected with productions and in Barn programs.

Mrs. Harry Brackett is another who has worked in various departments of the organization and who will appear behind the footlights next week in the role of "Mrs de Salle" mother of the famous "Mrs. Bumpstead-Leigh" herself. Miss June Arnold, as "Violet de Salle," the younger daughter, will be the third newcomer to the Santa Ana stage.

In the title role, Miss Cornell will introduce the fourth new Player, Miss Kathryn Kilbourne, a talented girl whose work will be watched with interest by everyone, according to the director, who is enthusiastic over her discovery. Coming to Santa Ana only a few weeks ago, when her father, Dr. Kilbourne, arrived to practice medicine here, Miss Kilbourne immediately identified herself with the dramatic organization. The family lived in Honolulu for 14 years, prior to coming here, and the talented young daughter was a member of the Footlight club a dramatic organization similar to Santa Ana's Community Players.

She also worked with Pasadena Community Players in their production of "Martha" and for several months had the valuable experience of professional work interrupted only by the opportunity to go to Paris for violin study in the "Institut Modern de Violon." There she specialized under Joachim-Chaigneau, devoting some time also to the study of theory, harmony and voice. At present she is continuing her work in music and is a member of a popular Los Angeles string quartet.

Others who will take part in the play, to be presented in the Yost Spurgeon theater, include Mrs. Fannie M. Reeves, Mildred Lucas Snyder, Harry Brackett, J. Wylie Carlyle, Lawrence Phillips, Blythe McCausland, Valmer Clark and Charles Haas. Tickets now are on sale in the Santa Ana Book store.

The meeting is to be held in Odd Fellows hall, with dinner being served at 7 o'clock.

Taxpayers' Meet Called Tonight

Taxpayers who want to correct certain conditions that have prevailed in Orange county for some time, are urged to come to the Emmanuel Baptist church building, Sixth and French, Santa Ana, at 7:30 tonight. An investigation that has been conducted by private citizens, reveals that undoubtedly a grand jury investigation is needed at this time. Certain statements made by a county citizen are sufficient to justify this action, in the opinion of Charles F. Havens, who has called the meeting.

Shall The People Rule?

By WAYNE GOBLE
Secretary of the Citizens' League

America is supposed to have a government "of the people, for the people, and by the people." In other words, the MAJORITY rules, and we have never countenanced a czaristic form of government where there is rule by the small group, "regardless" of the people. Our governing bodies are supposed to reflect the majority sentiment of the people they represent.

That principle of rule by the people, for the welfare of the majority, has been so important to America that thousands upon thousands of our patriots have gone to war and been killed that this American principle might endure. "Eternal viligance is the price of safety," and we must be eternally vigilant to maintain and preserve the rights and privileges that our forefathers fought for.

The Santa Ana Boulevard may be needed, but we of the Citizens League do not think so. The cost of $375,000 or so may not hurt Santa Ana, but we believe it could be much better spent for parks, schools, library, and other civic needs. It may not be a "spite" road, but we think it seems to savor too much of that element, inasmuch as the public statement is made that some of our citizens because "incensed over the repeated annexations of the city of Orange to the west."

The new road might not even damage established business values down Main street, our belief to the contrary notwithstanding. The road might even be the most wonderful thing Orange county ever saw!

But the fact remains that in a city of 35,000 population, in America, five men, comprising the board of city trustees, are attempting to vote bonds against every piece of real estate in the city, to the amount of $375,000 or more, without even submitting the question to a vote of the people. And the further fact remains that because a vicious state law gives them the power to do so, they have made a solemn pledge to a few voters at West Orange that if they would vote to annex the desired needle-point strip to the city of Santa Ana, those five men would see that the bonds were issued and the road built "regardless of protests."

No matter how they became embroiled in such a situation, our city trustees are attempting an autocratic form of government without a vote of the people they were chosen to represent, and such action is either right or wrong. It is American in principle or else it is against the American principle of majority rule.

We of the Citizens League are forced to oppose the new road and the way it is proposed to carry it out, because we honestly and sincerely believe the principle of allowing any five men to vote bonds against the entire city for any purpose short of a grave public emergency does not conform to our American ideal. We are opposing the city trustees, not as individuals, but because of the autocratic program to which they have pledged themselves.

We have undertaken a campaign to recall them from office, because that is the only avenue they left open to the public to effectively oppose their program. They have already given their promise to ignore any protest from the people of Santa Ana.

A recall election is generally regarded as a distasteful, undesirable thing for any city, and it is. A recall should be resorted to only as the last resort, and it was so in this case. A recall is not only the last resort, but the ONLY resort to stop this program to which the city trustees have so definitely committed themselves. It is a choice of recall, or sit idly and helplessly by, and let them carry it out without a word.

There are some things worse than a recall fight, and that is NOT TO FIGHT when your rights are about to be taken away from you, and you believe the procedure to be un-American and wrong. Being a "good fellow" and a "good dog" is all right, and ordinarily helps to ease the struggle of getting through life, but there are limits! Even "good fellows" don't stand idly by and see a big bully ill-treat a small child, nor are we ordinary human beings such "good fellows" as to submit tamely, and without as vigorous a protest as we know how, to having our rights encroached upon.

If two-thirds of the people of Santa Ana had voted bonds to $375,000 or any other amount to build the new road, we few on North Main street, who think we would be hurt, would take our medicine and get by as best we could, for the people would have spoken and the public good is greater than any individual or small group of individuals. Or if the abutting property owners on the new road were paying for it, then it would be their business, not ours, and we would have nothing to say.

But when we think we would be hurt, not helped, by the new road; and when we are to be assessed just as much for it, according to our values, as the abutting property owners, who pay no direct assessment for the road; and when, in addition, the bonds are to be voted by FIVE MEN and not by two-thirds of the voters of Santa Ana—then we "good fellows" of the Citizens League believe we are upright, progressive American citizens when we oppose this road program to the best of our ability.

We may be right, and we may be wrong, but we want the people of Santa Ana to be the judge; not FIVE of the people, but ALL the people.

EFFECTS ON THE HUMAN BODY

What is a stimulant?

A—"A stimulant is a substance which, when taken into the body, excites some or all of the cells of the body to greater action than is usual for them."—Bulletin E, Physiology and Hygiene, Nebraska Department of Public Instruction.

What is a narcotic?

A—"A narcotic is a substance which, when taken into the body, tends to deaden the action of all or a part of the cells of the body."—Bulletin E, Physiology and Hygiene, Nebraska Department of Public Instruction.

Is alcohol a stimulant or a narcotic?

A—"Scientific laboratory studies show that alcohol is not a stimulant to body activities, as had long been supposed, but, that it depresses the nerve centers that control them. It was proved that alcohol belongs to the class of drugs called narcotics. The characteristic action of narcotics is to check or paralyze activity. The action of alcohol is most closely allied to that of drugs like ether and chloroform."—Alcohol in Experience and Experiment, by Stoddard.

What is alcohol?

A—"Alcohol is a liquid substance that exists in a number of forms, each having a distinct composition and producing a particular effect. Quite the most common of the forms are grain alcohol and wood alcohol. Only the first of these forms is used in beverages. The latter is used as a combustible mainly. Both forms are poisonous when taken internally, but wood alcohol acts much more quickly in producing its serious effects. Indeed, it is so poisonous that the fumes from it, working on the eyes for a while, tend to produce blindness. Wood alcohol is sometimes used to 'denature' grain alcohol. Grain alcohol is given this name because much of it is made from sprouted grain. Fruit juices, when fermented with wild yeast, produce this kind of alcohol, also. This is the kind of alcohol that has been the subject of political and social controversies in many countries for many years. Whether or not it is good for mankind to drink is a question that science should settle, indeed, has already settled."—Bulletin E, Physiology and Hygiene, Nebraska Department of Public Instruction.

What is the difference between distilled and fermented liquor?

A—"Fermented liquors, such as wines, fermented cider, beer and other malt liquors, are produced by the chemical action of yeast upon the sugars of fruit juices or of sprouted grain in solution. These liquors may contain up to 12 per cent or 14 per cent of alcohol, not more, because when they contain this much alcohol, the activity of the yeast stops. Some wines contain a higher percentage of alcohol because it has been added to them. Distilled liquors are derived from fermented liquors and may contain 50 per cent, or even more, of alcohol."—Cora Frances Stoddard.

When did the use of distilled liquors begin.

A—"The first records of using the process of distillation in making beverages appear around 1200 A. D. The use of distilled liquors did not become general until about 1500 A. D. The drunkenness recorded earlier in classic literature and the scriptures was therefore caused by beverages of the wine and beer class, as there were no distilled liquors."—Cora Frances Stoddard.

What is intoxication?

A—"Intoxication is a poisoning."—Webster's Revised Unabridged Dictionary.

A—Yes.—Webster's Revised Unabridged Dictionary.

What are the different stages of intoxication?

A—"In the first stage, if the quantity of alcohol taken is small, the drinker may not be conscious of any effects. Perhaps his companions even do not notice any conspicuous ill effects. Yet delicate and careful experiments show that even at this stage self-control is somewhat impaired. Dr. Harvey W. Wiley relates that when a student in Germany he drank beer with his fellow students. He was fond of chess. After a time he discovered that when playing with an opponent of equal strength, where as a rule the results would be 50-50 over a series of games, they became 75 to 25 in favor of the opponent if Dr. Wiley drank but a single glass of beer. There was a slight degree of alcoholic poisoning which no one else saw, and which he himself would not have recognized had it not been for the test of ability in the games of chess.

"In the second stage of intoxication, signs of it may appear as unusual gaiety or readiness of speech as self-control is impaired, but with this greater fluency there may be less consideration of what one says. The drinker begins to show a certain clumsiness in behavior—he is liable to make ill-adjusted movement; on setting down his glass, it makes a more violent contact with the table than he had intended; on rising, he may slur a word; the fineness of his ear, of his taste, his touch, his vision, is blunted; he is apt to give way from boisterous merriment to tears, from elated boasting to despondency.' If he happens to be driving an automobile, he takes chances he would not take if he were in a normal state, ignores speed laws, and gives rein to speed mania aroused by the temporary feeling of elation due to the dulling by alcohol of certain nerve centers of control.

"The third stage of intoxication shows itself in greater impairment of control of the muscles; movements of legs and hands are uncertain.

"Many observers fail to recognize that this is a state of poisoning. They laugh at the poisoned victim's actions, looking upon them as funny. To the thoughtful observer they are tragic. No one laughs at the man who has difficulty in walking because he has injured a limb. It is worse to injure the delicate brain and nerve cells that control bodily motion, and that is what alcohol has done to the drinker who says or does foolish or absurd things under its influence.

"When this stage of poisoning is well advanced, the hasty word or misunderstanding by an alcohol-controlled brain may easily lead to an uncontrolled and serious act. The writer" (Cora Frances Stoddard, Secretary Scientific Temperance Federation) "one morning several years ago had occasion to attend a police court as a witness. While waiting, a young man was brought to the bar charged with disorderly conduct on a street car. 'Are you guilty or not guilty?' asked the judge. 'I don't know, your honor,' was the answer, 'I was under the influence of liquor.'

"The fourth stage of intoxication shows itself in dullness, sleepiness, and finally helplessness. Now the drinker may have to be helped home; or he may fall unconscious, perhaps on the street where, as the old Egyptian father wrote to his beer-drinking son, no one may be near to help. If the narcotic action of alcohol goes still farther, it may affect the nerve centers controlling respiration; breathing ceases, and that is the end."—Alcohol in Experience and Experiment, by Stoddard.

Which of these is the drunkenness stage?

A—"Through all these stages there has been alcoholic intoxication; the degree has been increasing; drunkenness was only a late stage. But it was a steady progress of narcotic intoxication from beginning to end."—Alcohol in Experience and Experiment, by Stoddard.

BEGINS WITH SOCIABILITY

A—"Physicians have made many inquiries of patients whom they were treating for drunkenness or chronic alcoholic poisoning. They learned that in the majority of cases the drink habit was begun in drinking companies and for the sake of being sociable. The drinker seldom had at first any real liking for the drink or for its effects.

THE DECEPTIVE PLEASURE

"Under the pressure of social customs which leads to the repetition of drinking, after a time the drinker begins to notice a pleasant feeling following the drink. Perhaps he feels more at ease; more gay; thinks he talks more entertainingly; if he is a worker, he may think he does his work with less effort, or that after his beer he is rested—in all of which he is deceived.

"The deception comes from the dulling of the nerve centers by alcohol as has already been explained. It is both a deceptive and an alluring effect because it makes the drinker think that he feels better, when really he is being poisoned or drugged.

DRINKING FOR THE "KICK"

"Unless he knows the true nature of this deceptive feeling, he is likely to drink again to get it. Little by little he increases the amount he consumes. Why he does this will be explained in the next section. Beverages that do not produce the drug effect do not then satisfy him; he complains that they lack 'kick.' This objection shows that the drinker is in danger. It shows that what he wants is not a palatable, refreshing drink, but alcohol. He is not satisfied with a mild beer, even with such as the so-called '2.75 per cent beer,' because, he complains, it lacks 'kick.' This means that it is not beer, but the alcohol, that he wants. When any drinker reaches that stage, he is in danger of addiction to alcohol in the same sense that the opium user is addicted to opium when he is uncomfortable without it. The desire for the drug effect grows stronger as the drugged brain becomes less able to control the desire. This is the way addiction to alcohol grows in thousands of drinkers. No one knows in advance whether the drug will enslave him. He finds out only by taking a chance; and when he finds out, it is often too late to break off without a terrific struggle. Some drinkers never do succeed in stopping.

WHY DRINKING FOR EFFECT LEADS TO INCREASED DOSE

"There is a very familiar old saying credited to the Japanese, that first the man takes a drink; then the drink takes a drink; then the drink takes the man. Like many another popular observation, science now explains it. Everybody knows that the habitual opium user can take without apparent injury doses of the drug that would be fatal to a non-user. This does not mean that he is not harmed by the drug. In all probability, his digestion is disordered, and his body undernourished; but his nervous system has gradually acquired power to resist doses which at first would have overpowered it and might have proved fatal.

"In a similar way, the nervous system acquires ability to resist the narcotic effect of doses of alcohol which, taken all at once for the first time, would have overpowered it and caused drunkenness. But again this does not mean that the alcohol is not meanwhile injuring the user.

BECOMING AN ALCOHOLIC

"Here is what happens: The drinker of frequent small amounts of alcohol in alcoholic liquors, such as beer, wine, or cider, thinks they make him feel good. That feeling of 'well-being' (euphoria 's the scientific name for it) is due to the narcotic effect of the alcohol. The nervous system gradually has to take more and more alcohol to get the feeling of comfort or well-being that he desires; in fact, he is uncomfortable without it. Such a drinker imagines that his gradually increasing amounts do not harm him because they do not make him drunk. In this he is mistaken. The alcohol he is taking into his system is a poison to his cells and tissues. The body gradually changes it into less harmful substances, but the process is a slow one, and as long as any alcohol circulates in the blood, it poisons to some extent the cells to which the blood carries it.

"A regular daily drinker who takes an ordinary drink of wine, beer or whisky every few hours during the day keeps his tissues constantly in contact with the poison. He becomes a chronic alcoholic, even though he may seldom or never get drunk, and he shows to physicians who understand his case symptoms of chronic alcoholism."—Alcohol in Experience and Experiment, by Stoddard.

Want to Look Young?

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you 90 per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowls and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound as a substitute for calomel to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are gentle in their action yet always effective. They help bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c, 30c, 60c.—Adv.

By "SKY" DUNLAP

Viking blood failed to inspire the Long Beach junior college football team to any great achievements Saturday afternoon and as a result, Coach Bill Cook's Santa Ana Dons won another conference game, cinched a top position in the league calendar, pushed Long Beach down to the second division and definitely stood out as the team to beat for the flag in the Southern California Junior College circuit. The Padres had an easy time winning, 22 to 0.

Long Beach was helpless against the determined drives of the Spaniards and the local line of veterans was impregnable when touchdowns were concerned. After the first score, a safety in the first few minutes of play, it was only a question of how many points the Cookmen would roll up. Pre-game reports had it that eight Vikings were ineligible because of deficient studies but they were miraculously "fixed" before the game for only one regular, Frank Jordan, center, was on the sidelines.

Score In Hurry

The game was only six plays old when the locals took advantage of a lucky break and scored a safety. After kicking off to Van Meter, Long Beach held the Santa Anans and forced Garlock to kick, the ball rolling to the goal line where Meyer picked it up. Two tacklers hit him hard and the ball jumped out of his hands, to be covered by both Ed Adams and Captain Herald Hylton for two points.

The first touchdown came near the middle of the second quarter as the result of a poor kick by Captain Mobley of Long Beach. Garlock booted out of bounds on the five-yard line, Long Beach was offside and Mobley was forced to kick from far behind his own goal-line. Warmer and Adams broke through and hurried the punt, which came down on the 20-yard line.

Dutton reeled off five yards and Garlock ran for two more. Dutton took the ball to the 11-yard line and then made it a first down on the 10-yard stripe. Garlock went through tackle for five yards, hit center for two yards. Dutton missed scoring by inches and Garlock slithered over the line for six points. The Cookman used an old trick to get their extra point, Dutton carrying the ball over unexpectedly while Warner was smoothing out a place to dropkick.

Rimel Goes Over

Keeping up its one score a quarter tune, the men from the Santa Ana hacienda made the count 16 to 0 in the third period. This was the result of another break when the Padres took possession on the 14-yard line, after Garlock had punted out of bounds and Mobley fumbled on the first play. Rimel crashed through for three yards, Dutton chalked up five and Rimel then whacked away two times, going over on the second attempt. Wallace put a perfect kick through the crossbars for the extra point.

S. A., PASADENA AND FULLERTON IN TRIPLE TIE

JUNIOR COLLEGE CONFERENCE

| | W. | L. | Pct. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Pasadena | 5 | 1 | .833 |
| Santa Ana | 4 | 1 | .800 |
| Fullerton | 4 | 1 | .800 |
| Compton | 3 | 2 | .600 |
| Chaffey | 3 | 2 | .600 |
| Glendale | 2 | 3 | .400 |
| Long Beach | 2 | 3 | .400 |
| Riverside | 0 | 4 | .000 |
| San Bernardino | 0 | 5 | .000 |

Saturday's Results

Santa Ana 22, Long Beach 0.
Pasadena 20, Chaffey 13.
Fullerton 55, Riverside 0.
San Bernardino forfeited to Compton.

Next Saturday's Games

Santa Ana at Glendale.
Long Beach at Compton.
Chaffey at Fullerton.
Riverside at San Bernardino.
Pasadena, bye.

Just the best of them were left in the quest for the Southern California junior college football championship today.

They were Santa Ana, Fullerton and Pasadena, with Pasadena a technical leader only by reason of having played and won one more game than the others. The Pirates draw their bye this week. Santa Ana and Fullerton already have had their open date.

Everything now points to what happens Thanksgiving Day when Santa Ana engages Fullerton at Poly field and Pasadena goes to Long Beach. The Don-Yellowjacket tussle will eliminate one or the other of the old rivals from the chase, although Fullerton will have to be at its best Saturday to handle the inconsistent Chaffey Panthers who might get "hot" and dispose of Art Nunn's upcounty squad themselves.

Coach Bill Cook will send his Padres to Glendale Saturday. Fresh from a convincing triumph over Long Beach, the Don spikker now must guard against overconfidence. Glendale hasn't an impressive record but it has made most of its games close.

Santa's Ana's win at Long Beach cost Cook the services of two of his best backs, Melvin Beatty and Jack Dutton.

Dutton injured his shoulder severely. X-ray pictures will be taken today to determine whether he suffered a broken bone. Dutton is definitely out of the Glendale contest and perhaps the Fullerton match too.

Beatty was on crutches today as the result of torn ligaments in his knee. He also will be lost to the Dons Saturday.

Sell Ducats Tuesday For Grid Classic

Approximately 1000 tickets for reserved seats to the Santa Ana-San Diego high school football game at Poly field next Saturday will go on sale here tomorrow morning.

They may be obtained at the Victor Walker sporting goods store, 219 West Fourth street, or at the high school.

The largest crowd that ever saw a football game in this city is expected to overflow the Saint bleachers, and school officials urge fans to buy their pasteboards early.

More than a thousand persons will attend from San Diego alone, it is understood.

COUNTRY CLUB FAVORITES ALL SURVIVE ROUND

It was a good week for the favorites at the Santa Ana Country club. The "big guns" all survived the first round of the organization's annual golf championship.

Ed Holmes jr., two-time winner of the title, had to "bear down" to dispose of Lester Carden but won, one up. The champion next faces W. E. Chilson who took the measure of Lawrence D. Coffing, one up.

Van Pomeroy, one of the club's youngest and best golfers, had to go 22 holes to win from Hugh Smith. He meets J. L. Ainsworth in the second round. Ainsworth eliminated J. K. McDonald, 2 and 1.

L. W. Bemis beat R. E. Graves, 2 and 1, and will go against Mark Lacy who won from Dr. G. C. Ross, one up.

F. E. (Ed) Farnsworth, former club titleholder, went into the second round by disposing of B. V. Curry, one up in 19 holes. Farnsworth's next opponent will be Jack Meiss, conqueror of G. B. Shattuck, 4 and 3.

HELPED IRISH BEAT TROJANS

CURRY MAKES HOLE-IN-ONE; NEXT GOLFER BARELY MISSES

Lightning may never strike twice in the same place but it almost did in the Santa Ana Country club yesterday.

B. V. Curry, Towner Manufacturing company official, made a hole-in-one on the 154-yard No. 17. E. T. Mateer, Santa Ana druggist, was the next player in Curry's foursome to have the honor and Mateer laid his tee shot within eight inches of the cup.

Curry used a No. 7 iron. It was a perfect ace, his drive landing on the edge of the green and rolling straight for the pin and into the cup. Mateer's pitch was almost as straight. The druggist holed out for a birdie two.

Martin Marzolf, club grounds superintendent, and George Baker, local stock salesman, were playing with Curry and Mateer and attested to the former's ace which entitles him to the National Hole-in-One club.

INTERCOLLEGIATE FOOTBALL IN STRETCH RUN NOW; NUMBER OF ELEVENS MAY GO UNDEFEATED

By DAVIS J. WALSH
(I. N. S. Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Intercollegiate football was beginning its run down the stretch today, with the wire only a few jumps ahead, and any man with a couple of eyes and the ambition to use both of them simultaneously can pick a winner at a glance.

This, as a matter of fact, seems to be the abiding problem. There are too many winners. It is a simple matter to pick the leaders. They are Notre Dame, Pittsburgh, Purdue, Tennessee, California, Tulane, Texas Christian, Utah and possibly St. Mary's, Detroit, Southern Methodist and a few others. It only begins to get difficult when you try to distinguish one from the other with the idea of arriving at some degree of relative strength.

Irish May Be Best

After its 13 to 12 victory over Southern California, nobody can claim any national titles without first consulting Notre Dame. Yet the latter isn't even undisputed champion of the state of Indiana. For Purdue was as impressive as ever before in winning the Big Ten championship by beating Iowa, 7 to 0, and if it lasts through next Saturday, its status will be beyond the eloquence of debate.

Frankly, Purdue should finish its season undefeated. So should a Pittsburgh team that was great enough to run up 21 points on an arch-rival in the first period and finally give Carnegie Tech its worst beating of recent years, 34 to 13.

It isn't likely, either, that anybody is going to stop Tennessee, Tulane, California or Utah. The Notre Dame situation isn't foolproof yet, with the Army and Northwestern coming up, and undoubtedly Texas Christian won't begin making plans for spring practice before it gets through with Southern Methodist. The rest of them may go wrong. But they probably won't.

It, therefore, seems probable that at least a half dozen teams will do what the taxi driver did on the day he didn't beat the railroad train to the crossing. They will run a dead heat, too.

Spaking of daths, two of them were died on Saturday when Cornell finished last behind Dartmouth by 18 to 1 and Texas lost to the Christians by 15 to 12. This pair of Southwest leaders went crazy early in the game but the Christians went the crazier and won. They were the first team to score on Texas this year, leaving only St. Mary's with an uncrossed goal line, so far as I know.

As for Cornell, it was eliminated from the national sweetstakes when its quarterback elected to gamble with a pass in his own territory with five minutes to play. That automatically made Cornell the worst team on the field.

Irish Victory Earned

Notre Dame's split-second victory over U. S. C. was a repetition of their 1926 game, as far as the score went. But, as far as the play went; it had no parallel. The Irish won this football game strictly on its merits, the Trojan scores coming on long-gain plays and their feared "power" attack being throttled down to nothing. Trey were out-rushed, out-passed and out-charged, according to the run of the plan. In brief, the better team won.

There wasn't any doubt that this was so in Pitt's case. Tech, in fact, did well to score. Tennessee's 13 to 0 decision over Vanderbilt was equally impressive.

Purdue had to get the benefit of two major calamities before the Big Ten title was hers, these being Northwestern's defeat by Indiana, 19 to 14, and Michigan's victory over Minnesota, 7 to 6. Both were last period victories and both were earned. But, in this, they had nothing on Purdue's win from Iowa. Twice the latter was held for downs inside the 10-yard line, while the Purdue touchdown was as legitimate as a marriage license.

It was quite a day for substi-

BABY DEMPSEY FACES HERMAN HERE TUESDAY

Baby Jack Dempsey, knockout sensation of the Orange County Athletic club, faces the keenest competition of his spectacular career tomorrow night, an opponent that promises to make the miniature Manassa Mauler work faster than he ever has worked before.

Checkie Herman, San Bernardino featherweight, is listed as Dempsey's main event rival. Herman has maturity, experience, class and almost everything else on his side of the fence. Baby Jack has youth and punch, two great assets.

They will go eight rounds on a card that offers another eight-round main event between Joe Reece and Drewry Willis, welters; a semi-windup between Luis Echeveste and Harry Perdue, featherweights, and two four-round preliminaries.

Never Knocked Out

Herman, 23 and father of three robust children, is at the peak of his career. Within the last year he has beaten Ramon Montoya, Jimmie Piela, Jimmy Black, Alkie Alkol, Kid Avelino, Trip Limbaco and California Joe Lynch. Midget Mike O'Dowd shaded Herman in his only losing bout. Herman never has been knocked out.

Baby Jack, formerly known as Wendell Long, has fought twice in Santa Ana in the last six weeks. He kayoed Pat Duncan in the first round and stopped Knockout Brown with the first punch of the fight.

The Alhambra boy looked like a champion in those two bouts although it is admitted that neither Duncan nor Brown was the stiffest of opposition. Herman, however, is far above their class. Some think he is too good to be meeting Dempsey, too.

Willis Meets Joe Reese

Bob White, well known San Bernardino manager, will bring Herman's sparring partnerr, Drewry Willis, to meet Joe Reese in the first half of the double windup.

Willis has lost only three times in 30 starts. Clarence Elliott, Donnie Dundee, Leonard Allen and Chick Peralta are among his many victims. Reese is a Santa Ana Mexican who has improved tremendously in the last three months. He has made the climb from preliminary boy to the top flight in that time, this being his first main event.

HUNTINGTON BEACH PLAYS 7 TO 7 TIE

Tying the score at the end of the eighth, the Huntington Beach Community baseball team played a 7 to 7 tie with North Long Beach over a 10-inning route at Huntington Beach yesterday. Vance and "Fus" Page toiled for the Oilers. The box score:

GAME WITH SAN DIEGO TO DECIDE CHAMPIONSHIP OF COAST PREPARATORY LOOP

Santa Ana's eight-year-old dream for a place in the gridiron sun seemed more than just a foundationless air castle today as one of its finest high school elevens, having dazzled Glendale with more football than the Dynamiters knew what to do with, rolled up its sleeves, spat on its hands and went to work for Saturday's game at Poly field with San Diego which will determine title to the 1929 Coast Preparatory league championship.

Coach "Tex" Oliver's machine bewildered Glendale here last Saturday with an assortment of offensive football that manufactured a 33 to 6 victory.

The Saints scored in every quarter, one touchdown in the first, one in the second, two in the third and one in the fourth. Harold Pangle, rugged halfback, added the extra point after three of the touchdowns.

"Blondy" Germain, a fast, smallish substitute back, scored Glendale's only points late in the second quarter when he captured a short forward pass on the Saints' 35-yard line and ran untagged to the goal-line behind some good interference.

Saints Play Conservatively

Santa Ana won, almost as it pleased, without opening its bag of tricks to the San Diego scouts at the tip of the bleachers. Coach Oliver utilized a few reverse plays and one or two spinners but for the most part was confident to employ straight power stuff that worked better anyway. The Saint mentor also had a stream of substitutes in the game part of the time although he played the gifted Al Reboin, dashing triple threat quarterback, most of the way and Pangle, his other offensive genius, the entire route.

More important, however, is the fact that the Santa Anans came out of it whole and hearty and, barring the always possible grist of injuries in practice scrimmage this week, will be able to use its strongest lineup against San Diego.

The Saints wasted no time getting the bulge on Glendale. They scored in the first five minutes.

Gain on Kick Exchange

Receiving the kickoff, Santa Ana made a first down and then "Toy" Blower kicked beautifully to Glendale's 22-yard line. Unable to gain, the Dynamiters kicked back poorly to their own 35-yard line from where the local plunged and passed to a touchdown without losing control of the ball.

Pangle hit the middle for eight yards in two attempts and Reboin circled end for a first down on the 25-yard line, Reboin contributed seven yards in two off-tackle smashes and then passed perfectly to Blower, the sophomore end, who caught the ball on Glendale's 10-yard line and ran the rest of the way for a touchdown. Pangle's dropkick for the extra point was wide.

Santa Ana soon had the Dynamiters in the hole again. Reboin intercepted a pass near midfield immediately after the kickoff and the Saints drove to the 9-yard line just as the first quarter ended. In this march they utilized among other things the age-old Statue of Liberty play on which Reboin reeled off 15 yards.

Score In Eight Plays

Santa Ana threw an incomplete pass over the goal with the first play of the second quarter and Glendale took the ball on the 20-yard stripe. Fifteen yards on a penalty gave the Dynamiters a chance to get started but they were forced to kick, the ball being grounded on Santa Ana's 44-yard line. From this point Santa Ana scored in eight plays, two triple passes with Reboin carrying the nugget making most of yardage. The second one left the ball on the 10-yard line. Reboin made four of it off tackle and circled left end behind some fine interference for the score. Pangle bucked the ball over for the extra point.

The Saints launched another determined offensive after the subsequent kickoff that took the ball well into Dynamiter territory but Germain, Glendale's outstanding player, stopped it by intercepting a pass on his own 35-yard line. Germain then caught a long pass for a first down on Santa Ana's 40-yard line and an instant later clutched a short one on the 35-yard mark and ran, unmolested, for a touchdown. The Glendale interference "ironed out" Santa Ana's secondary on this play and Germain had nothing to do but run. Glendale tried to pass for the extra point but Wuhltz's throw was inaccurate.

The half ended almost as scona-tionally on the next play, Reboin catching the kickoff on his 5-yard line. He eluded everybody but the Dynamiter safety man.

Saints Cinch Victory

Their 13 to 6 advantage none too secure, Santa Ana assured itself of victory on the first ten minutes of the second half by scoring two touchdowns.

The Saints kicked off and Glendale, passing on almost every play, wormed the ball almost to midfield before Blower intercepted a pass. Then, with big Pangle cracking the center and Reboin slanting off tackle and end, Santa Ana "powered" to the Glendale goal in short order. An eight-yard gain by Pangle through the middle was the longest run of the drive which found Santa Ana having a first down on the 3-yard line and Pangle carrying it across in two attempts. He also bucked over for the extra point, making the count 20 to 6.

Reboin's beautiful cutback produced the fourth score. The Dynamiters received the kickoff but were held and punted to Santa Ana's 44-yard line. Pangle and Reboin made a first down in three plays and Nuzum circled left end for seven, putting the sphere on

We're going to have a pretty boxing show at O.C.A.C. tomorrow night. I'm writing that first because I do not want you to miss it and you may be too busy to read this all the way through. Here's the card:

MAIN
—vs—

MAIN
Joe
REESE
—vs—
Drewry
8 rounds

Louis Echeveste vs. Harry Perdue, 6 rounds.

Tex Stennett vs. Ernie Hunt, 4 rounds.

Louie Medina vs. Edward Rubio, 4 rounds.

Now that's a nice card—double main—both of which promise to be fast and furious all the way through. Why, already other clubs are bidding to get the winners of these two main events to appear at their club to meet the best boy obtainable. Dick Dillard of San Diego has issued a challenge for his boy Raymond Montoya to meet Baby Jack Dempsey if he cleans up Checkie Herman—and do not forget they have a good club at San Diego too. Baby Jack has won both of his fights here via the kayoe route but it is a question as to whether he will meet with the same good fortune tomorrow night. Checkie Herman is smart and packs a mean punch and may upset the dope.

Fighting Joe Reese comes to the door to bigger things when he faces Drewry Willis tomorrow. It will be Reese's first showing in a main and he must deliver the goods. Willis comes here well-rated and promises to give Joe a busy evening.

In the special event Louis Echeveste will take on Harry Perdue. Tex Sennett meets Ernie Hunt in one of the prelims and Louie Medina and Edward Rubio will fight the curtain raiser. The whole card is good but these two eight round main events should be worth the price all by themselves. Popular prices, as usual.

Many Crops Thrive In Mesa Area Due To Fine Soils

HUNDREDS OF ACRES PLANTED TO TOMATOES

COSTA MESA, Nov. 18.—On what was but a few years ago a series of barley fields, bean fields and barren wastes is located a prosperous, thrifty and happy community.

Located as it is on a mesa near the sea, but back inland far enough to escape the cold fog laden winds that blow off the sea at certain times of the year, yet near enough the sea that hot inland seasons are tempered by the ocean breezes, Costa Mesa has a climate striking a more happy medium of perfection than is enjoyed by many places.

Beans, Barley Thrive

Beans and barley thrive here but she also has a climate that is good for the raising of all kinds of fruit from the apple, peach, pear, strawberry, persimmon, and other of the temperate zone fruits to the orange, lemon, avocado, and such fruits that flourish only in a tropical or semi-tropical climate.

The soil on the mesa varies from the light sandy loams to the heavier clays and gumbo, all of which are very fertile and only need water and the kind of crop suitable to the particular type of soil to raise a bumper crop.

Plenty of Water

Costa Mesa has an abundant supply of fine soft water. Having the advantages of a superior climate, a wonderful fertile variety of soils and plenty of water, many Costa Mesans are taking advantage of the same and in some cases are going into certain lines of fruit growing or gardening quite extensively. All of the garden truck, such as carrots, beets, beans, peas, and onions consumed here is raised here. A great deal is sent to the markets in the surrounding towns and also to the Los Angeles produce market.

Hundreds of acres of tomatoes are grown each year for the very early markets and along through the summer season to the late markets, when they are green packed and shipped to the mid-west and eastern markets.

Costa Mesa conditions are well adapted to the raising of peas and both lima and Kentucky Wonder beans, which are on the markets all the year except just a few weeks in the winter season. Among the fruits, the peach thrives exceptionally well and produces a very superior quality of fruit when properly cared for and is regularly taking many first prizes at various California fairs and fruit shows, besides being heard from very favorably even outside of California.

Citrus Fruit Popular

Citrus fruits have their place among the mesa products, some orange and lemon groves second to none being located here. Although being a sensitive fruit to propagate and produce, the avocado does very well if properly cared for, several of the extensive orchardists having quite a number of trees in their groves.

Going hand in hand with a thrifty plant life we have the animal life which is by no means neglected in Costa Mesa and on the outskirts of the more thickly populated districts. In the more thickly settled areas the hen has her place, some of the finest poultry yards of all Southern California being located here. Most of the poultry industry is given over to utility stock and the production of eggs for the market. However, most of the yards are stocked with well bred strains of fowl. The mesa also boasts of some of the best rabbit plants to be seen anywhere, the climate and food factors being almost perfect for the industry.

Silver Fox Farm

Among special lines Costa Mesa boasts a silver fox farm stocked with the best to be had. It also has one of the most beautiful and thoroughly stocked and equipped bird and pet animal establishments anywhere. At the Costa Mesa bird farm is to be seen canaries galore, parrots, parakeets, finches, pheasants, pigeons and many other tropical fowl, besides practically all the domestic types of monkeys and fishes of many styles and hues.

On the outskirts of the mesa are the dairies, there being some four major outfits, the largest of which is the Brown dairy at the west foot of Victoria street, which has a herd running well over the hundred mark, of which 80 to 100 of the stock are constantly producing.

TUESDAY NIGHT IS FIGHT NITE! SANTA ANA

Growing Problems Before Residents Of Mesa District

COSTA MESA, Nov. 18.—Costa Mesa, showing a population of 3500 a year ago from a careful survey made at that time, is beginning to talk and think of a fire department, sewer and garbage disposal system, beautification programs and such. What is now a part time functioning chamber of commerce will no doubt in the near future, probably the first of the year be reorganized into a stronger and more active civic body. The coming of the new high school, launching of new business enterprises, the incoming of new families and kindred things foretell this.

HANDSOME NEW BRICK BLOCK IS COMPLETED

COSTA MESA, Nov. 18.—The latest addition to the business section of Costa Mesa is the new two-story Paterson building at the corner of Newport boulevard and Broadway, at a cost to William Paterson, one of Costa Mesa's realtors, of around $80,000.

The plans were drawn by William Sibley, who was in charge of the construction work.

Eight Office Rooms

The second floor is divided into eight office rooms and a three-room apartment in the rear on the Broadway side. The upstairs floors are all finished in oak, and the walls and woodwork of the rooms are decorated and finished in keeping with an up-to-date, first-class job. The Broadway-Newport boulevard corner room on the ground floor has been leased to the Costa Mesa pharmacy. The Safeway company is occupying the second room from the corner. Lloyd Braddy's barber shop occupies the third room. The Costa Mesa pool and billiard room has leased and is now occupying the fourth ground floor room. The rear of the building has in it a roomy garage opening out onto Broadway.

Uses Old Building

Mr. Paterson has utilized his old buildings, setting them on his property just east of the new building facing on Broadway, using one of the rooms for his office and remodeling the other into a business room. The building up of the Paterson corner is a very visible indication of the signs of the times insofar as the growth of Costa Mesa is concerned.

Greener Structure

Only a few weeks before the erection of the Paterson building, Emil Greener, Costa Mesa furniture dealer and one of its cabinet workers, realizing the need of more room for his rapidly increasing business, had finished a two-story white stucco building at the southwest corner of Eighteenth street and Newport road, using the whole of the ground floor to house his business. The Modern Woodmen have a lease on the second story of the building in which they hold their meetings. They also sublet the hall for parties, dances and dinners.

Spencer Building

Dropping on back a season, Costa Mesa saw the completion of the Carl Spencer building, now housing the C. J. Lewis market No. 1 and the Flinn electric shop and Variety store.

At the present time there are but two or three openings in the block between Eighteenth street and Broadway for buildings and the owners are justly proud of their possession for it will only be a matter of a short time until they will be needed.

P. T.-A. OF MESA PRESENTS PROGRAM

COSTA MESA, Nov. 18.—The Costa Mesa P.-T. A., under the leadership of its president, Mrs. A. P. Raines, met in the school auditorium Friday night, featuring a program in keeping with fathers' night.

C. B. Baldwin, principal of the Huntington Beach grammar schools, delivered the main address, speaking on the subject, "Lads and Dads." After the address by Mr. Baldwin and several special musical numbers, the audience retired to the outer halls, where the heads of the refreshment committee, Mrs. C. M. McClintock and Mrs. N. C. Lamberton, served the assembly with punch and dainty cakes and cookies.

CIVIC WORK IS AIDED BY MESA CLUB OF LIONS

COSTA MESA, Nov. 18.—Not to be outdone by other surrounding towns in the way of service clubs, Costa Mesa has an active Lions club. When organized in 1927, Dr. C. G. Houston was made president of the organization and served until recently, when Charles Dunn was put into the president's chair. The club meets in the Woman's club house on Newport road every Tuesday at 12:10 p. m. and many fine programs are presented. Luncheon is served by the members of the Friday Afternoon club. The last meeting of the county council of Lions clubs was held with the Mesa Lions.

Troop Sponsored

During most of their time since organization the members have sponsored either a Boy Scout or a Cub Scout troop.

In the first year of their existence they also cleaned up and prepared a playground for the Costa Mesa Girls' Athletic club. In their second year they organized an indoor baseball team and equipped the ball field with lights so that games could be scheduled for evenings. This same year they also made a substantial donation to the county health camp and contributed toward making parks in town.

New Club Planned

The club is at present reaching out for new services to do and is considering the sponsoring of a Junior Lions club for the young men of the Mesa who have no club homes and as an overflow organization for the older Boy Scouts and kindred organizations.

COSTA MESA

COSTA MESA, Nov. 18.—The president of the Community church Epworth league, Lee Belding, residing on Flower street, invited the league cabinet to his home for a conference on matters pertaining to league affairs recently. The Rev. A. F. Hasse sat in with the young people for a time.

Those present were Lee Belding and wife, Robert Fuller, Wayne Flinn, Bill Bremer and Lawrence Wright, and the Misses Juanita Seeber, Margaret Seeber and Helen Willcutt.

E. L. Hicks, living on Fairview avenue near Nineteenth street, was stricken with acute indigestion Saturday morning and was hurried back to his home by his brother, George Hicks, who was with him at the time, and a doctor was summoned. Under Dr. H. Q. Willis' care he was resuscitated and at last reports was resting and in all probability is out of danger.

Charles Taylor, of Twentieth street, an employe in the Hunting Beach oil field, having been transferred to the Long Beach fields, is making preparations to move his family to Long Beach.

J. A Pearce, of Fairview avenue, is at home with his family for a few days from his business in Los Angeles.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Ranney, former residents of Costa Mesa, but now of Huntington Beach, were in attendance at the Costa Mesa P.-T. A. fathers' night meeting Friday night in the school auditorium.

Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Ferry, of Short street, with their guests, Mrs. J. H. Copeland, of Detroit, Mich., and Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Jamison, of Los Angeles, yesterday toured the coast as far south as San Clemente.

MESA COMMUNITY CHURCH IS ENJOYING RAPID GROWTH

COSTA MESA, Nov. 18. — The Community church was formed with nine members, who erected a house of worship at the corner of Balboa street and Newport road. The building was later moved to Nineteenth street. Two years ago the congregation, having outgrown the old quarters, a new building was erected under the pastorate of the Rev. Lyman R. Bayard.

The new building is a stucco and concrete structure with tile roofing. The church tower stands some 80 feet in the air and is visible from any part of the mesa. The ultimate cost of the building was around $30,000, $1000 worth of labor having been donated by local workmen.

Fine shrubbery has been planted around the building and in the setting it is a real work of art, being visited every week by admirers from many surrounding towns. Almost simultaneously with the work of building, a fine pipe organ was installed. The interior decorations and the lighting system express the last minute in their respective places. The old church was remodeled into a social hall and Sunday school rooms. Located on the back of the lot is the builder's office room, which was donated to and is now used as Boy Scout headquarters.

WOMAN'S CLUB OF COSTA MESA PROVES ACTIVE

COSTA MESA, Nov. 18.—The women of Costa Mesa are awake to the fact that women as well as men have a work to do along civic lines. The oldest of the women's organizations here is the Friday Afternoon club, now functioning under the leadership of Mrs. A. P. Nelson. The Friday Afternoon club is part of a state-wide organization.

Many activities of vital importance to woman and the home are constantly being watched and discussed by the club, as also is the matter of woman's place in the public forum. The club meets each Friday afternoon of the week in its clubhouse on Newport road. The women have a beautiful and spacious hall there with a stage that may be used for various programs. The building has had added a very fine and well equipped kitchen and a spacious dining room. In the rear of theb uilding is the gym girls' playground and the baseball diamond. The club is sponsoring a junior auxiliary, which is growing quite nicely in numbers and interest.

OUTING ARRANGED FOR MESA SCOUTS

COSTA MESA, Nov. 18.—Boy Scouts of Troop No. 6 are back into the business again for their fall and winter activities. The Costa Mesa troop is sponsored by the Community church and the newly appointed minister, the Rev. A. F. Hasse, spoke to the troop members at their last meeting, telling them some of his experiences in scouting, having been a Scoutmaster himself for several years. After the talk by their pastor the troop arranged for an all day hike to take place during the Thanksgiving holiday, the details to be worked out at their next meeting. Instruction in hiking, cooking and merit badge work will be given on this vacation trip.

After the business and social periods a weiner bake was enjoyed by the following members of the troop and applicants seeking admission into troop No. 6: Bill Greschner, Walt Arnold, J. Daley, Robert Carter, Eldon Steele, Floyd Lewis, Bill Dunn, Jean Willcutt, Hugh Davis, Leonard Collins, Albert Ogden, and Emil Mysehn. Those seeking admission were, Fred Murich, Jack Pilkington and Marcus Daley.

Rally Planned By Costa Mesa Scout Troop For Friday

COSTA MESA, Nov. 18.—The Boy Scouts of troop No. 6 are planning a rally and reorganization meeting next Friday evening under the leadership of Scoutmaster Lloyd Willcutt and Assistant Scoutmaster Emil Myrelm sr.

Permanent Waves, $4.50, $6.50 Croq. $7.50. McCoy's, 410½ N. Main.

MANY HOUSES BEING ERECTED IN COSTA MESA

COSTA MESA, Nov. 18.—Costa Mesa never has had what is commonly termed a building boom, but has experienced a healthy, steady growth from the time its first subdivision was laid out. At the present time around 800 families have their homes here and a very large percentage of them own the home that they live in.

Contrary to the experience of many new towns, Costa Mesa has very fortunately builded up with a good class of houses, very few cheap structures and shacks having been built.

At any time, one going from one part of the Mesa to another, will see houses in some stage of construction. A drive over the town today will reveal some eight or ten homes under construction, no one part of the place holding a favored spot particularly.

F. A. Daley has just completed a beautiful six-room stucco residence on Fullerton street, at a cost of approximately $6000. Mr. H. Graham, over on Newport road, has a frame house almost completed. Eighteenth street, just recently paved by the public spirited residents between Newport boulevard and Orange avenue, has a roomy, well arranged stucco house going up and nearly enclosed. Monte Vista avenue at Newport boulevard sees the outlines of a business room, dwelling and garage, under one roof now in the rough. East Monte Vista near Santa Ana avenue has the foundation in for a residence in keeping with the size of a well built up corner there. On the semi downtown secon on Newport boulevard, Joe Overman has just completed a pretty six-room blue stucco at a cost of around $4000. Mr. Overman's nephew, L. V. Weaver, and wife will occupy the place.

'THEY STRUCK OIL' SLATED FOR FRIDAY

COSTA MESA, Nov. 18.—The drama, "They Struck Oil," by Mrs. A. R. Morrison, went over so big when presented by a cast from Mrs. Grow Brown's class of Loyal Workers that they are putting it on again Friday night in the school auditorium.

Big Gain Shown In Costa Mesa's Postal Receipts

COSTA MESA, Nov. 18.—The growth of the post office is always a fair check on the growth of a community. Acording to statistics produced by Postmaster W. W. Middleton he has in the past five years, increased the number of boxes inside the office by 33 1-3 per cent and now has them all occupied and has a waiting list for boxes to rent.

There is no regular city delivery in Costa Mesa but the office has one rural route, covering practically the entire mesa and Mr. Middleton reports that the number of route boxes has increased 35 per cent within the last five years.

The sales of stamps, etc., for the quarter ending September 30, 1925, was $624.67, and for the same period in 1929, it totaled $1039.10, showing an increase of $414.49 or 66 percent.

The volume of mail handled has increased over 100 percent, the postmaster states. The office has two mails per day at present, one from the south in the morning, and one from the north in the afternoon.

BIG OIL POOL BELIEVED UNDER MESA DISTRICT

COSTA MESA, Nov. 18.—The concensus of opinion among geologists of the major oil companies is that crude oil in commercial quantities is under Costa Mesa. The upper structure, being very hard, and other prolific fields having been opened up beforehand ,the mesa has been passing through a long stage of waiting for oil development.

Wells have been drilled on the mesa that penetrated the oil strata but in every case mechanical difficulties caused the abandonment of the wells.

At one time a drilling campaign was put on and several wells were drilled into the upper tar sand and the wells were put on production, but the oil was too heavy to pipeline and the wells were closed in eventually because of a lack of sale for the grade of oil they were producing. Later on the derricks were torn down and the wells abandoned.

At the present time the industry has taken on a new life and at present two companies, the Oil Well Engineering company and the Costa Mesa Petroleum company, are striving for production. The Oil Well Engineering company, after many difficulties, placed its Seventeenth street well on the beam, but as yet has been unable to exhaust the water that has accumulated in the stratas during many days of idleness. The same capital is putting in a rig foundation on the east side of town and may erect the rig soon.

The Costa Mesa Petroleum company has top water shut off with an 11-inch water string, has the hole completed with an eight-inch combination string of casing in but is now fighting bottom water.

The Western Gulf Oil company has a portable core rig on the mesa taking samples of the top few hundred feet of formation in an effort to determine where will be the most likely spot to sink a regular hole. Some land is being leased and some is changing hands on the strength of the present findings.

MEMBERSHIP GAIN FOR SCOUT TROOP

COSTA MESA, Nov. 18.—The Community church, sensing the need of some social activities outside of the Sunday school classes for boys, since February, 1928, has been sponsoring Scout troop No. 6. The Scout committee has as its members Ralph Viele, Ed Bennett and F. A. Daley.

Lloyd Willcutt was put in as scoutmaster and the troop was organized with a membership of 10 boys.

Last summer a boat was chartered at Balboa and the troop sailed to Catalina Island for a week end. Again in the early fall they went into camp in Trabuco canyon for a two-day stay, hiking to the lookout station on top of Santiago mountain while there. The boys have presented several good programs in the Community church, have done several troop good turns, and have grown in membership to 25 members to date.

540 STUDENTS ATTEND MESA GRADE SCHOOL

COSTA MESA, Nov. 18.—The big school problem here is to keep the buildings extended, added to, and supplemented by smaller buildings to take care of the rapidly growing community. At present all class rooms are filled to capacity, there being enrolled at this time over 540 pupils, with an average daily attendance of 97 per cent of the enrollment. This attendance is an increase over last year of some 40 pupils. The school employs a faculty of 19 teachers this year.

School Is Modern

The school is run on a modern and up-to-date, strictly city school plan. It has a cafeteria functioning 100 per cent, departmental work starts with grade B6 and is carried on through to A8, and departmental grades have partial self-government. The school enjoys extra curricular activities. Weekly assemblies are enjoyed by the departmental grades. The school just recently has had a spacious auditorium added and various programs, mostly things in which the students participate, are enjoyed by the community at large.

New High School

Costa Mesa sends her high school pupils to nearby high schools at present, most of them going in to Santa Ana, but the time is near at hand when, as a part of the Costa Mesa-Newport high school district, there will be a high school at her doors. A high school board of trustees was elected November 9 to supervise the choosing of a building site and the erection of a building to house the students of high school age in the district represented by Costa Mesa, Newport Beach, Balboa, and Corona Del Mar.

The school plant is modern in every way.

MESA LIBRARY HAS BIG GAIN IN CIRCULATION

COSTA MESA, Nov. 18. — The Costa Mesa library, started here some five years ago with a few select volumes and several good magazines, now has on its shelves over 5000 volumes and is subscriber to 80 magazines.

During the month of October, 1929, 1657 books and 420 magazines were loaned. Last year, during the same period, 1318 books and 395 magazines were loaned, indicating a gain of 364 books and magazines loaned for that particular period. The week of November 17 to 23 has been set apart as Book week.

Nearly every month new books are added to the library. Among those recently received were "A Preface to Morals," by Lippman; "Life and I," by Gamaliel Bradford; "Above the Bright Blue Sky," by E. W. Springs; "These Are My Jewels," by Campbell; "Hide in the Dark," by F. N. Hart; "Dodsworth," by Sinclair Lewis; "Magic Island," by Seabrook; "Young May Moon," by Ostenso; "Martha Pedar Victorious," by O. E. Rowaag; "Cabala," by Thornton Wilder; "Bridge of San Luis Rey," by Wilder; "Major's Candlesticks," by George A. Birmingham; "All Quiet on the Western Front," by Remarque, and "Between War and Peace," by Broker.

The library has books and magazines for both adults and children and is open every day of the week from 2 until 8 p. m., except Saturdays and Sundays.

The library is located in the Apple Blossom court.

LOVE CREATES RELIGION, SAYS REV. WARMER

"The More Excellent Way" was the sermon subject as given at the First Methodist church yesterday by the Rev. George A. Warmer, pastor. The minister said in part:

"The statement of our subjects is taken verbatim from the last words of the twelfth chapter of Paul's letter to the church at Corinth In this chapter the apostle is speaking of variety of gifts concerning which there was great agitation. After detailing a statement of our subject and then tends the love chapter of the New Testament, Let us look at his suggestion for a few minutes.

"Love accepts an element of risk wherever it operates. Love is a thing of life and life is always geared to adventure, to Holy Daring. wherever the love element is to be found there is mutuality.

"Love assumes an attitude that tends to produce good character. Character not crude is at the center of the Christian religion. Jesus came not to formulate doctrines but to ennoble character. Church councils have written the involved theology of the centuries that is so easily declared as Christian fundamentals.

"The theology of Jesus was very simple. He taught first, the universal fatherhood of God; second, His ability as well as that of man to do Godlike things; third, the possibility of spiritual renewal through the forgiveness of sins; and fourth, eternal life.

Jesus is the source-power of character and the door by which we enter our proper place in the Heavenly Father's kingdom.

"Love creates in its hearer the spirit of Jesus. To carry the Spirit of Jesus is the best badge of a Christian. The spirit of Jesus is the divine made manifest.

"These days there is lots of discussion concerning the Diety of Jesus. Men discuss it from the metaphysical angle and from the standpoint of considerably involved intellectual attitudes. While it is after all a very practical fact. The argument that should be all-sufficient in our day is that Jesus can do whatever God can do here in our world. Set God any task and put Jesus to work at it and it will be done. He builds the moral inevitables wherever He is found.

In the days of His flesh when men came to him with intellectual quibbles they went away with moral problems on their hands. This is always true of Him."

Christianity Is Given Definition

J. W. Saunders, evangelist, preached in the Southside Church of Christ yesterday morning on the subject, "Why I Am a Christian?" He explained his subject as follows:

"The usual definition of a Christian is one who believes in Christ. The Bible, however, demands more than a mere belief in Him of us. To be a Christian in the Bible sense of the term involves doing what Christ says, as He says, because He says it. Everyone ought to be satisfied to be just a Christian, nothing more, nothing less.

"The Bible claims divinity for Christ. To accept Him as divine to th eextent that we are willing to be guided by Him is all that God requires of us. There is no necessity to be bound by any other creed, dogma or tradition that originated solely with man."

PRESS BLAMED FOR CRIME BY REV. HARDING

The revival meeting which opened yesterday in the Church of the Nazarene and which is to continue there until December 1, was said to be one of the most enthusiastic gatherings of the church year. The Rev. U. E. Harding, pastor, is conducting his own evangelistic campaign. He is being assisted by Earle F. Wilde, who is known as the tenor "Caruso" of sacred song. The latter favored the congregation with two solos and was assisted in a duet selection by his wife.

The Rev. Mr. Harding spoke on "Revival Fundamentals." Choosing as his text St. Mark 2:5, he said in part:

"It was noised that Jesus was in a house in Capernaum. Jesus can't be hidden. Religion is like smallpox—if you have it, it will show on you. Too many in Santa Ana haven't got it; they haven't even been exposed.

"There came four men bearing one on a cot sick of the palsey; they could not get nigh unto the house because of the press. Of course this means the crowd, but there are many who can't get to Jesus today because of the PRESS, and I mean the newspapers, the dirty yellow sheets, dripping with scandal and filth, pouring their contents into our beautiful homes. A large percentage of our crime can be laid to their charge. I don't refer to the local papers, for we have the cleanest newspapers to be found in any city in California. They co-operate with the churches and ministry of this city.

"These four men co-operated to get their friend to Jesus. Co-operation is one of the main fundamentals of a revival. I don't think these men debated over whose church the man would join for they were too anxious to get him to Jesus. We are split and splintered as fundamentalists over nonessentials, anti-this and anti-that. We never will agree on some of these minute things, but that crowd out yonder, atheistic and modernistic, is united. United to tear up the Garden of Eden, Bethlehem's cradle. To tear down the cross, and tear up the tomb.

"We can surely unite on 'Christ Our Only Hope.' I don't care what your method is, whether it is straightway down - into, or straightway up-out-of. What I want is that we go straight ever afterwards."

Tonight the pastor - evangelist will talk on "How to Kill a Revival." Tomorrow the Nazarene churches of Orange county will meet in a group meeting in the church with the Free Methodist pastors and their congregations as their guests. Services will be held at 10:30 a. m. and 2 p. m. Bishop G. W. Griffith, of the Free Methodist church, will preach in the morning and President O. J. Nease, of Pasadena college will speak in the afternoon.

Christian Science

"Mortals and Immortals" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon Sunday in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. The Golden Text consisted of Paul's inspiriting words to the Corinthians: "We that are in this tabernacle do groan, being burdened: not for that we would be unclothed, but clothed upon, that mortality might be swallowed up of life."

A Scriptural passage in the Lesson-Sermon contained John's statement: "We know that we have passed from death unto life, because we love the brethren. He that loveth not his brother abideth in death;" and another passage cited Paul's strong exhortation: "For this corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality."

A selection from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, contained these words: "Mortals must gravitate Godward, their affections and aims grow spiritual—they must near the broader interpretations of being, and gain some proper sense of the infinite—in order that sin and mortality may be put off."

Devotion To God One Of Greatest Of World's Needs

In the First United Brethren church the Rev. R. W. Harlow, pastor, spoke yesterday on the subject "The Need of the Hour." He said that one of the greatest needs of the hour is a vision of ourselves, of what we are and of our standing with God.

"Does the spirit of God bear witness with our spirit that we are the children of God? Do we know that we have passed from death unto life? Does the spirit of God dwell in, and control our life? God does not leave us in the dark concerning this all important question.

"In Romans 8:16 we have these words, 'The spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit, that we are the children of God.' We know.

"We need to ask ourselves what we are doing for God? How much of our time we are giving to Him? One-seventh of our time, and one-tenth of our money belongs to Him. Our talents all belong to Him, to be used to His glory. How many people have we personally won to God during the last 12 months? One of the greatest needs of the hour is a whole-hearted devotion to God. The Latin word for 'devoted,' means to give up one's self wholly to an object or a purpose. A spirit of devotion to God is one of the greatest blessings and the want of it, one of the greatest misfortunes which a Christian can experience."

'JESUS MASTER OF ECONOMICS,' SAYS M'PEAK

"Jesus was a Master of Economics," declared the Rev. W. H. McPeak, pastor of the United Presbyterian church, in his sermon in the church last night. "He outlined His philosophy of sound finance in those words, 'Lay not up for yourselves treasures on the earth where moth and rust consume, and where thieves break through and steal; but lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven where neither moth nor rust consume and where thieves do not break through and steal.'

"There are two depositories for the assets of life. The investor makes his choice. The one is 'on the earth.' The Master economist warns about that, for said he 'moth will eat, rust corrode and thieves will steal' investments that are made there. They used to sing 'If I had but a thousand a year, Robin Ruff; if I had but a thousand a year.' They gained it and then what will they do with it? The rich man of the parable answered, 'Soul thou hast much goods laid up for many years; take thine ease, eat drink and be merry.' It is time to retire. But his wealth was moth eaten. All the power of pleasure had gone out of it. And as for the 'rust,' well money may be rusted in the getting, holding, and the spending.

"We lift our eyes at the story of Cleopatra, [illegible] is said to have dissolved a pearl in a goblet of wine and quaffed it. Many are doing the same thing. And the 'thief,' the greatest thief of all is death. There are no pockets in a shroud. Can't take any thing along that has been deposited on the earth.

"The other depository is in heaven. The Master said that is the place to make deposit. Treasures laid up there do not become moth eaten, rust corroded and are secure against thieves. The inscription on the marble slab that marks the resting place of 'Chinese' Gordon, the British general, who lies in St. Paul's London, 'A man who at all times and everywhere gave his strength to the work, his sympathy to the suffering, his substance to the poor and his heart to God.' He laid up his treasure in heaven. Make your choice."

ARISTOCRACY IS TO SAVE WORLD, SAYS SCHROCK

That the world is to be saved by aristocracy and not by democracy was the thesis of the Rev. Perry Frederick Schrock in his sermon in the First Congregational church yesterday morning. He stated that the suggestion for the sermon came from Lippmann's book, "A Preface To Morals." In the book the author discusses "Popular religion" and "High religion." Popular religion is defined as a religion of rewards and punishments, of outward governmental control. "High religion," on the other hand, is a religion of a converted, educated, disciplined human will. This constitutes an aristocracy of the spirit and leads the author to remark that "There is an aristocratic principle in all the religions which have attained wide acceptance."

"Is this true of the religion of Jesus?" asked the Rev. Mr. Schrock. "Democracy is our modern shibboleth and we are accustomed to think of the religion of Jesus as the fountainhead of modern democracy. There is much in the teaching of Jesus that seems to support the idea of an aristocratic principle in his religion. 'Narrow is the gate and contracted the road which leads to life and few are those who find it,' said Jesus. And when one considers some of the central teachings of Jesus it becomes evident that they are possible of application only to those of a converted, educated, disciplined will and spirit. To love one's neighbor as himself; to love your enemy; to wish, honestly, not to be ministered unto but to minister; to be willing to forgive one who injures seventy times seven—surely this is possible only to the converted, educated, disciplined spirit. This is the religion of the narrow gate and the contracted road and truly they are few who find it. Those who have found this religion belong to an aristocracy of spirit.

"Such an aristocratic religion is the best possible religion. It meets the need of the individual life of today. This is an age that has cast off authority of all kinds and especially religious authority. The authority of the church, the authority of a book, the authority of a Deity who governs through rewards and punishments is very largely gone for most people. What shall we have in place of authority? It is evident that something is greatly needed. This is also a machine age. Shall man be master or slave? What is needed is something that shall build up within people that which will make external authority unnecessary and something that shall make them masters and not slaves of the machines. Only a religion of the spirit can do this. And this is the religion of the narrow gate and the contracted road. It is a religion of a superior spirit."

Piles Go Quick

Piles are caused by congestion of blood in the lower bowel. Only an internal remedy can remove the cause. That's why salves and cutting fail. Dr. Leonardt's Hem-Roid, a harmless tablet, succeeds, because it relieves this congestion and strengthens the affected parts. Hem-Roid has given quick, safe and lasting relief to thousands of Pile sufferers. It will do the same for you or money back. Schramm-Johnson, and druggists everywhere sell Hem-Roid with this guarantee. —Adv.

VALUE OF BIBLE TOLD BAPTISTS BY REV. OWINGS

"The One-Inch Book Shelf" was the subject of the Sunday morning sermon delivered in the First Baptist church by the Rev. Harry Evan Owings, pastor. The minister said in part:

"The distinguished educator, the late Charles W. Eliot, gave to the world that great collection of books called the Harvard Classics but more popularly known as the 'five-foot book shelf.' In addition to that series, however, God has also given to the world an even greater collection in much briefer compass. It is that collection of pamphlets or booklets known as the Bible. It is a one-inch bookshelf.

"Three most interesting items in connection with Dr. Eliot's book shelf are the variety shown in the selection, the purpose in suggesting them, and the challenge to use them. As regards the one-inch book shelf we find those three items just as interesting. In this collection we have books of history, of drama, of poetry, of oratory, of biography, of famous letters. Each man may find the literature that best suits his taste. The avowed purpose of the one-inch shelf is for teaching, for reproof, for correction, for discipline in righteousness, the complete character equipment of men and women. Large parts of it, to be sure, are appropriate for a certain age or time-periods only, but large sections of it are timeless, appropriate and challenging for any and every age.

"The challenge of the five-foot book shelf is that the use of it from one-half hour to an hour each day will give a man a liberal education. The challenge of the one-inch book shelf is that the use of it for a similar period of time each day will give character, abundant life, salvation as it brings us into communion with its great spirits, especially the supreme one, Jesus Christ. Strong Christian living is constantly waiting for men and women who will accept this challenge and build strong life by the assimilation of the valuable food-stuff of the one-inch book shelf."

'KEEP YOUNG' IS SECRET OF SUCCESS FOR PASTOR'S WIFE, ASSERTS MRS. W. S. BUCHANAN

Just 27 years ago Mrs. Nora Kinslaer Buchanan became the wife of the Rev. Walter Scott Buchanan, pastor of the First Christian church of Santa Ana, and just one year ago yesterday the Rev. and Mrs. Buchanan came to minister in this city. The privilege of being a "minister's wife" is a constant blessing, in the opinion of the prominent church woman. Soon after her preacher husband was graduated from the University of Kentucky they were married.

"I am blessed with a husband admired and loved by many friends of our own congregation, plus the friends of the city and community, even the world through the radio. He has shared their joys, sorrows and successes in life, and through such ministering my children have received respect in the school and social life of the various cities in which we have resided. I know other children of the clergy also have received this blessing."

Continuing her explanation of the blessings of a minister's wife, Mrs. Buchanan said she is blessed with having to be kind, sympathetic, tactful, cheerful, humble and smiling to each one with whom she comes in contact, no matter how many unnecessary duties, complaints and burdens are crowding her heart.

"Responsibility is a great blessing if we are intelligent enough to admit its virtues. From experience I have learned this, for the minister's wife always is an example, not from choice, but from position. I have, through this feeling of responsibility, learned to use my life and have received much in return."

Mrs. Buchanan is willing to admit that the discipline given a minister's wife is one of her greatest blessings. The matters of discipline she refers to are those necessary to develop the qualities of leadership.

"The average minister's wife literally is thrust to the front," Mrs. Buchanan declared. "As the result of such experiences I have learned that one must keep young, dress well, keep any sensitiveness, jealousy, temper or personal desires submerged, understand people, keep an open mind, keep up with the world and youth and be sympathetic with all whom I serve. If a person could achieve such a state, then could not one be thankful for the blessing of such discipline? I do not say that I have achieved, but I have striven somewhat toward such goals."

One of the principal reasons for the renewal of the contract between Herbert L. Miller, Inc., distributor of Diamond Tires, and the Haw's Super-Service Station at Anaheim, according to a statement made today by Mr. Haws, was the decided increase in his tire business due to the satisfaction of his customers using Diamond Tires, and the efficient service of Herbert L. Miller, Inc.

Another factor in the case is that Diamond Tires being made in Los Angeles retain their freshness and elasticity which, according to tire experts, is oftentimes partially lost due to cross-country transportation in over-heated or under-heated cars.

Mr. Haws is more than gratified with the repeat business from satisfied Diamond Tire users. Interviewed yesterday by a representative of The Register Mr. Haws stated that he anticipated, at a conservative estimate, at least a 50% increase in business due to the new in-line tire which includes a tailored white sidewall with a decided appeal to the fastidious car owner who demands the best in all equipment, more particularly tires.

The bride has taught home economics in the Anaheim junior high school for the past four years and she is a graduate of the Fresno Teachers' college. She is affiliated with Delta Kappa sorority.

Turner-Dearth Nuptials Occur in Church Of Messiah

Beautiful in its simplicity was the wedding of Miss Louise Turner, attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Turner of 719 East Walnut street, and Don Dearth, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Dearth of 1318 North Parton street, which took place late yesterday afternoon in the Church of the Messiah.

The altar of the church was lighted by tall white candles which cast a soft glow over bouquets of great golden chrysanthemums. Graceful palm fronds and baskets of lovely autumn flowers were arranged about the church and in the vestibule where the bride and groom greeted their friends following the ceremony.

Preceding the wedding Madame De Whytmer of Los Angeles, sang "At Dawning" by Cadman, Carrie Jacobs Bond's "I Love You Truly" and "O Promise Me" from "Robin Hood." She was accompanied at the organ by Alan Revill who played the wedding march from "Lohengrin" as the bride and groom entered the church and proceeded down the aisle together.

The bride was gowned in green velvet which fell in graceful folds around her ankles and she wore a cloth of gold turban. Her flowers were yellow rosebuds.

The beautiful service of the Episcopal church was read by the Rev. W. L. H. Benton, rector of the Church of St. Luke of the Mountains at La Crescenta. The Rev. Mr. Benton was formerly rector of the Church of the Messiah.

After the wedding, relatives of the bride and groom were guests at a reception given at the home of the bride's parents which was decorated with chrysanthemums in tones of yellow. Tall white candles in golden candle sticks completed the appointments.

After the wedding cake had been cut by the bride she donned a becoming ensemble in tones of brown for a short honeymoon at the Mission Inn in Riverside. From Riverside Mr. and Mrs. Dearth will go to Los Angeles where they will be at home at 2019 Orchard street.

Both of the young people attended the Santa Ana high school and after their graduation Miss Turner attended the University of California at Berkeley. At present Mr. Dearth is in the display department of the Western Auto Supply company in Los Angeles.

Congregational Pastor Officiates at Quiet Morning Wedding

Although a quiet simplicity was observed in the wedding yesterday morning of Mrs. Mary Harless and Archie G. Nelson, it was nevertheless a very impressive and charming ceremony held in the home of the Rev. Perry Frederick Schrock, pastor of the First Congregational church, and witnessed by a little group of close friends.

Mrs. Harless had chosen a blue velvet ensemble costume especially well-suited to her blonde type. With all dress accessories to harmonize and an arm cluster of pale pink rosebuds she was a very attractive bride indeed. Attending her as honor maid was Miss Marcella Boyd whose costume in autumnal shades, was completed by a cluster of yellow roses.

Mr. Nelson was assisted by John Johnson, a Canadian friend who came to take part in the ceremony.

Guests included Joseph Harless of this city, and Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Lynes of Long Beach, son, son-in-law and daughter of the bride; her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Ryan, Mrs. Minnie Thompson and son, Leonard, and Mrs. Mary Armstrong, of this city; Mr. and Mrs. C. Y. Lynes and Mrs. Ida Kratzer of Long Beach. Mrs. Armstrong and Mrs. Kratzer are aunts of Mr Nelson and Mrs. Thompson is his sister. Mrs. Minnie Ketner, Miss Hazel Taylor, Mrs. Meta Wierner, Mr. and Mrs. Johnson, of Nipawin, Canada; Donald Stapp and Frank McClung of Longmont, Colo., completed the guest list.

Mr. Nelson and his bride left immediately after the ceremony for a short automobile honeymoon, deferring their longer trip until after the holidays when they will sail for Honolulu. They will return before Thanksgiving in order to attend the wedding of Mrs. Nelson's son, Joseph Harless, to Miss Martha Johnson of Longmont, Colo. He will leave next Saturday for Longmont.

Mr. Nelson is a ranch owner of Nipawin, Canada, but spends much of his time in Santa Ana with his sister, Mrs. Minnie Thompson, of the Parsons apartments. His bride has made her home here for the past half dozen years. They will reside at 1003 West Fifth street until their new home is completed.

An Ailing CHILD

Are you prepared to render first aid and quick comfort the moment your youngster has an upset of any sort? Could you do the right thing—immediately—though the emergency came without warning—perhaps tonight? Castoria is a mother's standby at such times. There is nothing like it in emergencies, and nothing better for everyday use. For a sudden attack of colic, or the gentle relief of constipation; to allay a feverish condition, or to soothe a fretful baby that can't sleep. This pure vegetable preparation is always ready to ease an ailing youngster. It is just as harmless as the recipe on the wrapper reads. If you see Chas. H. Fletcher's signature, it is genuine Castoria. It is harmless to the smallest infant; doctors will tell you so.
You can tell from the recipe on the wrapper how mild it is, and how good for little systems. But continue with Castoria until a child is grown.

The WOMAN'S DAY
by ALLENE SUMNER

A happy home, according to the old standard, was one where peace and happiness reigned, where the husband and wife were one in thought and deed, and the children obeyed their parents, and company could come in any time and not have to dodge plates.

There are two slants on this kind of happy home in John Erskine's new book, "Sincerity," which I cannot resist quoting.

"If a woman feels that some of her capacities for growth are unexercised, she will resent it, even if it is her husband's love or her love for him which keeps her life sheltered and tranquil. After all, we are in this world to grow. Who has the right to say that any stage in our growth is perfect and complete?

"The husband, therefore, who provides a comfortable home for a woman, keeps from her all his worries, sees to it that she knows less than nothing of the problems which beset people less fortunate than herself, conceals from her those tragedies which result from a too adventurous thirst for experience, is perhaps, not so kind a husband as he intends to be. Why should he know more of life than she? If the thought once takes hold of her that he wishes her to remain ignorant, the canker is at the heart of their happiness."

TIES THAT BIND MEN

And here is something on the husband's side:

"Men also suffer from the unintended limitations of what we call a happy home. Of few of them it is safe to say that their lives are complete. And this frustration, like that of women, is the ironic result, more often than not, of genuine affection. They learn what their wives like, and loving their wives, they confine themselves to those habits, those ideas, those remarks.

"If they are tempted to live a little more widely, to explore at least, in thought, the mysteries of this rich span of days through which we pass too quickly, they usually keep the impulse hidden and brood in solitude over what ought to be of legitimate interest to their women as well as themselves.

"I never see a respectable, middle-aged man, head of his house and pillar of society, threatened by baldness and overweight, adored by his grateful spouse, without asking myself—in order to reach this complacent conclusion, what spirited thoughts did he refuse to think?"

I advise you not to check up on your own conduct, and see how little real sincerity you grant yourself or others.

Sincerity is a delightful ideal, but most difficult to practice.

Besides completely upsetting you and deflating your ego, you will lose what friends and contacts you have already built up. Resist that impulse.

Winter Beauty and Fragrance

Getting the garden into order for winter is no small task if you have a border full of bulbs. They should be dug immediately, dried, sorted, tagged and put away in an even cool temperature, where mice and rats cannot reach them.

Put the sorted bulbs in heavy paper sacks, tied securely and hung to the cellar ceiling, and that worry is off your hands!

Now, let's talk about flowers for winter. No home need be without lovely flowers through the winter if a little forethought is used now. Narcissi offer beauty and fragrance with the least expense of time and money.

Put the bulbs in shallow glass bowls with sand and a few small rocks, fill with water and keep in a dark, cool spot for six weeks. This allows time for fine root growth, heavy flower stalks and stocky short leaves.

Hyacinths do better when planted in earth, but the same rule for root growth in a dark, cool spot holds good with them. Water is added as needed while root growth is under way.

Don't plant all your pulbs at one time. Have sufficient well screened earth put in the cellar to allow for potting at will, then fill a few pots each week for six weeks and keep the flowers coming along until spring is with us again.

TODAY'S RECIPE

Egg Gems

2 cups chopped cooked meat
2 cups fine soft beradcrumbs
2 tablespoons melted butter
1 cup milk
Salt and pepper
6 eggs
2 crackers, rolled fine
2 tablespoons grated cheese

Scraps of left-over roast are agreeably utilized in this recipe. It calls for baking in gem pans, but this is not a good way to bake it—just try and get one out of a gem pan intact! I like to use a large pyrex plate or individual shallow ramekins of earthenware.

Put the meat through the coarse knife of the foot chopper, add a tiny bit of minced onion if you wish, then the bread crumbs, scooped from the middle of a stale loaf, salt and papper, and the milk and butter heated together.

Mix smoothly, heat in saucepan and drop loosely over the baking dish, smooth the top without packing the mixture and break the eggs over the meat. Roll the crackers fine, mix with grated cheese and sprinkle over the eggs, dot with butter. Bake in a moderate oven until the eggs are set to your liking.

There are 2550 calories in this recipe. The portions are 4 or 6, to suit the family appetite. With proteins so greatly in excess plenty of leafy cooked vegetables should be served.

The leaflet for this week, ROAST DINNERS, gives suggestions for what to serve with roast of beef, leg of lamb, pork roast and veal. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for a free copy.

Tomorrow the recipe will tell you how to make a gorgeous Marshmallow Pudding.

'DYNAMITE' FEATURE IN FOX-WEST COAST

"Dynamite," Cecil M. DeMille's first all-talking picture, starring Kay Johnson and Conrad Nagle, opened a five-day engagement in the Fox West Coast theater today.

A picture that carries the "De Mille touch throughout, "Dynamite" probably is the most sensational film of the year in many ways. It is the story of high society, in which a girl buys her husband from a prison death house, a short time before he is to be led to the electric chair, in order to inherit a fortune.

She is in love with another man, but he is married, and she expects to take the money she inherits to buy his freedom from his wife, who also is in love with another man, but who refuses to free her husband until the question of allmony is settled.

The strange prison wedding takes place, but soon afterward the real murderer confesses and the husband is freed. He seeks his wife and finds her in the arms of another man. The scenes then shift to the coal mines, where the husband was employed before he went to prison and where he returns. It is here that the startling scenes of the picture are shot and where the unusual climax occurs.

'MARIANNE' OPENS IN FOX BROADWAY

"Marianne," Marion Davies' latest starring vehicle and the latest Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer all-talking picture, opened a four-day engagement in the Fox-Broadway theater today.

A pig plays one of the prominent parts in "Marianne," for it is around the porker that the plot is built and it is the pig that causes all the trouble Marianne finds herself in.

The story concerns a French girl, who mothers all the troops who come to her obscure hamlet. At the close of the war, American troops stop there and she falls in love with a doughboy. Her love is returned, she finds out, but they are parted when the soldier is sent home just after Marianne's old time sweetheart returns from the front blinded.

There is much good comedy in the picture and the acting of Miss Davies is better than ever.

Lawrence Gray has the leading malo role in the picture, while Clifford Edwards and Benny Rubin furnish many of the laughs.

Is Southwest Still Wild?

Sometimes I Think It Is --BUT-- Sometimes I Think It Isn't

By Velva G. Darling

An inch high news item in a San Antonio paper the other morning tersely recounted the facts regarding an episode in the southwest. A well-known rancher was found still astride his horse on the desert a few miles from his home, both horse and rider wilted to the ground dead, and the only mark to be found was a small black burn on the back of the man's neck—where lightning had struck him. That's one thing that makes me think the southwest is still wild. Another is Gene Howe—the wild Texas editor who calls Mary Garden an old lady and labels every person who leaves Texas for his own home, "a quitter." Then, of course, there is the cactus and sand which you've seen plenty of examples of in the movies; and "gyp" water, which you don't see in the movies but which unsuspecting motorists drink and have a terrible time on account of! And the traffic situation in El Paso, Texas, without a signal in sight and every automobile going practically where it pleases! Dorance Roderick proved himself a bright young Texan when he quipped, "We believe in the survival of the quickest out here!" I tried to keep my knees from twitching as I replied, laughingly, "It certainly looks that way, Mr. Roderick." Even writers have to be polite to editors.

But on the other hand, nowhere in the United States have I been able to drive six hours a day and make an average of 50 miles an hour—which you have to do just in order to keep up with the other fellow in the great southwest. The roads are gorgeous—in the summertime. Also, if cities are any sign of advanced civilization, of progressiveness and modernity, Houston and San Antonio, Texas, are the ultra-ultra. Hollywood it its hey-dey never looked any newer and more intriguing than Houston does today. Stanford University is not more collegiate, its buildings more picturesque and its grounds lovelier than those of the newly created Rice Institute on the edge of Houston. San Antonio, once the home of the famous Senator Breckenridge of Texas, has 46 parks, and the smartness of its women I haven't seen excelled even in New York, which is an unparalleled combination! Skyscrapers that would make the famous ones in Los Angeles and Chicago stretch nervously for a handicap are being built in these towns as well as in Fort Worth and Dallas and in Tulsa, Oklahoma. Oklahoma's an interesting place—500 people there claim to be relatives of Will Rogers. Very prolific, Will.

Sometimes I think the southwest isn't as wild as Hollywood Blvd. —not half. Certainly it has enough pep to put Mr. Kellogg out of business. But on the other hand, when it comes to electric storms and cactus, to traffic and speed laws, the southwest is a he-man's land. No wonder Texas Guinan seems wild in New York! And she is really just acting natural!

Why Noted Scientist Places Sugar and Sugary Foods in the Daily Diet

A noted scientist reminds us that the many tasteful foods in which this country abounds may be classified into: (1) Vegetables and fruits. (2) Protein foods as meat, milk and eggs. (3) Cereals. (4) Sugar and sugary foods. (5) Fats and fat foods.

He reminds us that these five groups may serve as a guide in the selection of foods and the planning of meals. He points out that sugar and sugary foods have been charged from time to time with a variety of supposedly undesirable functions. Usually, on mere hearsay evidence, it has been said that sugar is fattening, or sugar harms the teeth, or sugar cloys the appetite.

As a matter of fact, however, he goes on to say, every physiologist knows that the essential principles in our food are, for the most part, devoid of taste. Sugars alone, of the carbohydrates, have a sweet and agreeable taste. With this exception, our essential foodstuffs, when pure, would soon pall on the palate.

In order that everyone may enjoy proper foods, use a dash of sugar in the cooking of vegetables to develop their freshness and flavor. Use a sprinkling of sugar to make grapefruit and other tart, fresh fruits delicious. Use sugar to enable everyone to enjoy the needed cereals. Use sugar in the making of delicious fruit and milk desserts. Most foods are more delicious and nourishing with sugar. The Sugar Institute.

Rule by Five Men
OR
Rule by the People?
Where Will It End?

The proposed Santa Ana Boulevard is an unnecessary duplication of an existing highway. But that is not the important thing about it.

It would hurt established business and rental values the whole of Main street. But that is not the most important thing.

It would be a direct, permanent affront against our neighboring city of Orange. That, too, is relatively of minor importance.

The cost would be $375,000 or more, with probably $150,000 more a few years later for new concrete bridge across the river, and meanwhile possible large damage suits against the city in case of flood. But even that is not the one big important thing about it.

The one big, vital, all-important question about the controversy is this: SHALL WE PERMIT ANY FIVE MEN TO USURP THE PEOPLE'S RIGHTS TO ISSUE BONDS AGAINST THEIR PROPERTY, WITHOUT THEIR CONSENT AND IN SPITE OF THEIR PROTESTS?

And also, if the five Santa Ana city trustees get away with it, where will it end? Will not they do it again and again? And will not the city trustees of other cities try it? And will not the county supervisors adopt the same policy if it proves successful in the cities?

If a czaristic movement like this once gets going, and the people stand for it, isn't it logical that it should grow and grow, until at last the people have nothing to say about ANY bonds? Just let the city trustees, the library trustees, the school trustees, the park trustees, and the supervisors, vote ALL the bonds!

We, the people, would be saved the bother of voting in bond elections, but who would own all the property! Surely property owners would be few and far between if all their rights as property owners are to be taken away from them.

Our opposition to the Santa Ana Boulevard program, with the recall of the present board of city trustees as the only effective procedure to stop this kind of high-handed business, is the only American thing we can do, the only patriotic thing, if we are to maintain our rights as citizens, voters, and owners of real property.

Every property owner in the state of California, and everyone who ever hopes to own property, is concerned in the outcome. Whether your land is inside or outside any city, you are interested, for other governing bodies will follow the lead of Santa Ana if they get away with it here; and will hesitate, if the people of Santa Ana put an effective to this kind of business right at the start.

So, wherever you are, we deserve your moral and financial support in this compaign to preserve the people's rights. If you are a Santa Ana voter, you can help by circulating petitions among your friends for their signatures. If you are outside of Santa Ana, you can help only by a monetary contribution to our campaign fund.

The need is vital and urgent. RIGHT NOW is the time, and we can stop use of the vicious Mattoon act which permits this high-handed program if everybody will help. This week is when the battle will be lost or won, so DO IT NOW! Shall the people rule, as a Democracy, or shall five men rule, as an Autocracy? . . . . .

If you can help, mail or bring contributions to 506 North Main street, or report there to start circulating petitions. IT MUST BE DONE THIS WEEK!

THE TINYMITES

WORDS BY HAL COCHRAN — PICTURES BY KNICK

REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

The Tinymites were quite surprised! They suddenly all realized that they were sailing through the air and rising very fast. They sat upon a sled of bark, and Scouty said, "My, what a lark! I wonder where we're going and how long this trip will last."

"Well, as for me," wee Clowny cried, "I only know we're on a ride. It happened all so suddenly I nearly lost my breath. Our friend the big man made this sled. He tossed us into the air and said, 'Hang on there, Tinies.' Gee, but I was almost scared to death."

"Oh, well," said Scouty. "Up we go! The big man's still way down below. I see him waving at us. He is standing on the ground. Let's wave good-bye with all our might. We'll soon be sailing out of sight. I only wish he'd told us just exactly where we're bound.

"Now, when you wave, don't lean too far or you will not stay where you are. Instead you'll lose your balance and go dropping through the air. We've had enough of scares, I guess. Don't get into another mess. As long as we can stay right here, well, none of us should care."

So, all the bunch looked cautiously until the big man they could see. And then they waved. He waved right back and cried, with all his might, "Good-bye, you Tinies, here good luck. Don't lose your nerve. Keep up your pluck. If you will all be careful, everything will be all right."

He faded then and soon the crowd looked up and saw a great big cloud. "We're going to hit it," Coppy cried. "Oh, my, what can we do?" Just then they sailed right into it and not a one was hurt a bit. 'Twas misty for a moment. Then the sled slid right on through.

Lawrence Tibbett To Present GMC's Program Tonight

Lawrence Tibbett, the California baritone, who was engaged by the Metropolitan Opera company after only a few years' experience as a church, concert and light opera singer and who since has become nationally famous, will be the guest artist on the General Motors Family party during the coast-to-coast NBC system broadcast from 6:30 to 7:30 tonight.

During the same program, Giuseppe Bamboschek, for 16 years an orchestral director at the Metropolitan and a noted coach of singers, will conduct a symphonic orchestra.

Tibbett was born in Bakersfield, Calif. After his father's death his mother moved the family to Los Angeles, where Lawrence attended school. His histrionic talents were discovered during his school years. Afterward, he played in stock companies and other dramatic productions and sang in church choirs and light opera. During the World war he served in the navy. Following the war he went to New York to study and to sing in concerts. Within six months he signed a contract with the Metropolitan.

This General Motors Family party will be heard through NBC system stations KGO, Oakland; KHQ, Spokane; KOMO, Seattle; KGW, Portland, and KFI, Los Angeles, on the Pacific coast.

K'S DISTRICT AUDITION TO BE HELD TONIGHT

Twenty young men and women, the pick of the amateur singers in nine western states, will compete in the Atwater-Kent western district audition between 10 and 12, Pacific standard time, tonight, during a broadcast through the NBC system stations on the Pacific coast, including KFI.

Singing in the studios of KPO, San Francisco, the score of contestants will strive to win the honor of representing the west in the national finals, which will take place in New York City next month.

The 10 men and 10 women who will participate in the district audition have been selected from among scores of entrants in local and state contests in Washington, Oregon, northern and Southern California, Nevada, Idaho, Wyoming, Montana and Arizona. The successful singers in this audition will share in the $25,000 in cash and the music scholarships which will be awarded the national winners by the Atwater Kent Foundation.

During the district audition each singer will be identified by number only. As in the state competition, the vote of the radio audience for the contestants will count 60 per cent and that of a group of official judges will count 40 per cent in deciding the winners.

on mankind as Paul, and no teacher except the Christ has been as successful and as forceful.

"The trouble with Paul's enemies was that they did not understand him nor what he was teaching. They did not listen to his message. Many attacked him because they felt that his teachings would ruin their business. He stirred up the Jewish nation and the Roman empire as well, and it took a really great man to do that. In all his troubles his character stood forth as a mighty power. His friends all loved him intensely. Wherever he went they flocked to him and gave expressions of their affection."

The annual Father and Son banquet of the class will be held at 6:30 tomorrow night in the First Christian church. A fine program has been prepared by the committee in charge and an evening of entertainment and fellowship is anticipated by members of the class. Dinner will be prepared by a committee of men under the direction of Lynn Crasher and T. P. Kingrey. Music will be furnished by two quartets and Ingham's orchestra. Earle Wilde, who sang at the service yesterday morning, will be in attendance and will sing.

considers to be the most important motto for ministers' wives is that which was given her when she became the wife of a minister, "Keep Young." She has tried always to keep that thought before her and has enjoyed the youth of their congregations. She has refused to mingle entirely with adults, especially those who are without the spirit of youth. Mrs. Buchanan has one daughter, with whom she has kept young.

"If we would have success and blessings as ministers' wives," she concluded, "we must believe in ourselves, believe in humanity, believe in the success of our undertakings, love our work, then work, hope and trust and keep in touch with today."

CARDS, BEARS MEET ON GRID SATURDAY

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 18.—California, only undefeated team in the Pacific Coast conference, kept its record clean by virtue of its hard earned 7 to 0 victory over Washington Saturday, while Stanford fell a victim to the bucks of Santa Clara's Broncos, 13 to 7.

Despite the Stanford upset, the teams from California and Stanford will start their "Big Game" next Saturday on almost even terms, for Stanford also holds a one touchdown win over Washington, while the Santa Clara game is discounted because of the Stanford second team bearing the brunt of the attack, and because the Cardinals were obviously "pointed" for California.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—At the request of its women's committee, the United States Golf association has awarded the 1930 women's national golf championship to Los Angeles Country club, Los Angeles, Calif.

SAINTS DEFEAT GLENDALE HIGH GRIDMEN, 33-6

Pangle Intercepts Pass

Several exchanges of kicks followed before Pangle intercepted a forward pass and carried the ball to Glendale's 15-yard line. Beboin made it a first down in two plays and Pangle smacked it over in two more. Pangle also kicked goal.

There was no more scoring, Oliver making a host of substitutions after the fifth touchdown, but there was a little excitement when Germain, hiding out along the sidelines, caught a long forward pass and took the ball to Santa Ana's 22-yard line. Two more passes to the same towheaded back gave Glendale a first down on the 3-yard line but Santa Ana's forward wall, composed almost entirely of substitutes, stiffened and turned back four successive thrusts at center. Stultz fumbled on the fourth play and Meisinger, an end, recovered for the Saints on the 4-yard line just before the game came to a close.

In some respects the Santa Ana squad looked better than it has in any game this year. Running behind a low-charging line that gave them plenty of holes, Pangle and Reboin were able to gain consistently although the two backfield aces again showed plenty of speed and power in booming through the middle or off-tackle. Vance, at center; Captain Bruce Tarver, the Saints' fine captain and running guard, and Winfield Martin at the same position were especially conspicuous in the Santa Ana line on offense.

Donahue In Starting Lineup

Bill Donahue started at tackle instead of the injured Hartman and played a strong defensive game as did the reliable Harry Clayton at the other tackle. Hartman played creditably when he got in the lineup in the second half.

Blower's pass-catching was outstanding. This big fellow can go up in the air and get 'em with any end in the conference. Meisinger and Herren both played well at end also.

Lloyd Nuzum played most of the game in the backfield. His work was well above average and Oliver may decide to use him there the rest of the season, allowing Herren, Blower, Meisinger and Higashi to take care of the flanks.

Fredericks, favoring a neck with a boil, turned in his usual hard game.

| Santa Ana (33) | | (6) Glendale |
|---|---|---|

canto, Long Beach lost the ball on downs and the Don march started. Manderscheid made four yards over tackle, five more at guard, and two over tackle for a first down. Natland careened over a pile of men for two yards after which Manderscheid picked his way first 10 yards and then 11, to put the ball on the Long Beach 48-yard line.

Redhead Runs 41 Yards

Garlock and Sweetnam made six and one yards, respectively, and then Manderscheid took the ball on the 41-yard line. Starting through center, the redhead eluded three tacklers, swept toward the sidelines, reversed his field, was tackled four times and finally emerged at full speed from a pile of players. He outdistanced all opposition and was unmolested in the last 20 yards. Warner's kick was wide, leaving the final count, 22 to 0.

Santa Ana made 301 yards from scrimmage to 110 and 13 first downs to two for Long Beach. The score might have been slightly different, for the Norsemen did make one touchdown on a forward pass but this was disallowed because three backs were in motion. This fourth quarter scare came right in the middle of a wild aerial attack, the Viking backs throwing 13 passes, 10 being knocked down, two completed and one intercepted.

Another Don tally nearly found its way to the scoreboard in the first quarter when the locals advanced to the 10-yard line, only to fumble. The drive started on the Padre 43-yard line and was helped considerably by a 22-yard jaunt around end by Garlock. Rimel, Beatty and Garlock all pushed through for gains, followed by a nice pass from Garlock to Beatty, who rambled on down to the 10-yard line before being outside. A ballup in signals cut short all scoring hopes, however, and the Scandinavians soon booted the ball back to midfield. The rest of the first canto was all Santa Ana with Captain Hylton throwing the opposition for losses every time it got hold of the ball. He was aided by Warmer and Adams, ends.

Don Kickers in Form

The whole game was filled with towering kicks from the feet of Bill Crawford, Garlock, Warmer and Manderscheid for Santa Ana and Captain Mobley and Forbes for Long Beach. Crawford and Garlock got the best results although Mobley got off some nice boots as well as some bad ones. In the third section, Warmer broke through and partially blocked one of Mobley's efforts but after taking possession of the ball, Santa Ana was unable to get very far.

Although the Santa Ana backs made vast yardage all day, it was the work of the veteran Don line, the finest in the conference, that stood out above everything. Time and again, Mobley, Meyer, Davis, Hermann, Forbes and the other Boatmen backs were thrown for losses or bumped into a stone-wall. On offense, the Vikings were taken out of plays with a vengeance, leaving wide open lanes for the backs to use. Al Kluthe, who backed up the line, was a demon on tackling and used his height to advantage in knocking down passes. His kickoffs were good, also, carrying nearly 50 yards each trip.

Linesmen Brilliant

Big Bill Crawford played a steller game at guard, effectually plugging up his side of the line. He put several punts outside at the most strategic points and always sailed 'em high, wide and handsome in the pinches. Ernie Stump and Tim Wallace, tackles, both put up a nice game while Warmer, signal-caller, and Adams, both ends, were going at a great pace. Hal Dunham, reserve end, played about half the game in fine style.

Honors were more evenly divided in the backfield, with Manderscheid, Garlock and Rimel perhaps taking a little more glory because of their ball carrying. Be that as it may, Jack Dutton, Baxter Geeting, Jack Sweetman, Franklin Van Meter, Leonard Natland, Gene Olsen and a few others were highly responsible for the local win.

Natland showed class while he was in the fray and Olsen intercepted a couple of passes and made two or three nice runs. Sweetnam, Franklin Van Meter, away from the big Viking ends on passes so frequently it was a standing joke and John Keeler, another little fellow, was right up with him in this respect. Cook used a lot of reserves at the end and gave many of his boys a chance to show their wares.

Santa Ana tackles Glendale at Glendale next Saturday in a semi-breather but takes a real assignment against the tough Fullerton Yellowjackets in a feature spot on Poly field Thanksgiving day. This will be the last game of the year.

The lineup:

| Adams | REL | Painter |

Football Season Nears End; Few Teams Unbeaten

tute heroism, one McLennon of Yale, beating Princeton, 13 to 0, while it was Ross, of Indiana, who ran for the winning touchdowns, with Northwestern leading, 14 to 6, and only 10 minutes to play. Wilson, another substitute, was the lad who carried Michigan's attack through a last-period drive to beat the Gophers, too.

These latter were two of the day's great upsets. The third was Stanford's 13 to 7 defeat by Santa Clara, which repeated its victory of two years ago, even to the score. This one was earned, too, Santa Clara coming back with a successful march to the goal after the Cardinals had tied the score.

This affair seems to send California in as the probable conference champion, although the Bears looked as though they were saving up a lot of trouble for the Stanford game. They only beat Washington 7 to 0, on two passes by Lom, aggregating 64 yards. However, the Huskies are getting rapidly no worse as the season progresses.

Southern Methodist and Utah, of course, breezed with Baylor and Wyoming, respectively. Not so Tulane with Sewanee. The former was held to a scoreless first half in the mud but then marched 93 yards to its first score and ultimately won, 18 to 0.

WASTE BASKETS

Every room should have its waste basket. They are time-savers and aids to keeping things picked up. Colorful woven baskets are gay and now.

REGISTER'S EXPEDITION TO LAND OF SANTA CLAUS IS FORCED DOWN BUT RESCUED

Captain Kleinschmidt and his party of explorers, bound for the North Pole in search of Santa Claus, were reported missing last night but today they had been found.

The first news of their recovery came from the steamer "Sea Lions," which reported to a radio station having seen two plans floating on Hudson bay, near Fort Severn.

Several more wireless messages told of receiving short flashes of SOS calls, supposedly from the missing planes.

A searching party was dispatched, led by the steamer "Sea Lion," and the two planes were found with all occupants well and in good health.

""We shall proceed with our expedition just as planned," said Captain Kleinschimdt, after his rescue. "The kiddies of Santa Ana and community shall not be disappointed. I intend to push on and on into the frozen North until Santa Claus is discovered."

Express Great Joy

Other members of the party expressed great joy at their good fortune.

"For awhile I thought The Register and the kiddies were going to be disappointed," said "Red" Garland, aboard the steamer. "Now I'm happy that we can go ahead."

In a wireless message to The Register today, Captain Kleinschmidt expressed his confidence of success in his undertaking.

"After bucking heavy snow and rain storms, the wind died down. We ran into fog and sleet formed on our wings and we were losing altitude. Then sleet formed on the propellers when it became so heavy that the centrifugal force would throw it off one blade the vibrations became so bad that the engine was endangered until the sleet from the other blade was thrown off also. The leading edge of the wings, and the wings themselves became so coated with ice they lost their lifting capacity and we were forced to land in the water.

Send Out SOS Calls

"We sent out SOS calls which brought us the sealing schooner "Sea Lions," a Hudson Bay company boat especially built for combatting the icy waters of Hudson Bay. We were mighty glad to get into a warm cabine and get a warm meal—the second one since leaving New York.

"Though delayed somewhat by this mishap we will renew our energies towards reaching our goal. Was down about 12 hours but all escaped unharmed. This looks like Providence is on our side. We are continuing to Cape Churchill. From there we will have the most difficult part of our airplane flight to Victoria Land, a distance of 950 miles and across an uninhabited inhospitable country without any landmarks, dotted with innumerable nameless lakes. It will be instrument flying all the way until we reach Coronation gulf."

WILL REVAMP CONSERVATION RESOLUTIONS

Revamping of resolutions on a new water conservation program acceptable to the Associated Chambers of Commerce of Orange County is the problem that will face the chambers' special committee on conservation when it convenes in the farm bureau office here at 7:30 p. m., Thursday, under a call issued by E. E. Campbell, chairman.

Objection was made at the Huntington Beach meeting of the county body last month to certain wording of recommendations of the special committee and the report was referred back to the committee or a new resolution.

The committee is expected to submit a resolution recommending that the supervisors employ engineers to reinvestigate site possibilities for a dam on the Santa Ana river to prevent flood damage by that stream in years of extreme rainfall.

SANTA ANA BOULEVARD

Editor Register:—I often think of Abraham Lincoln standing in Independence Hall and speaking of the principle that brought on the Revolutionary war. It was that principle which gave hope to all mankind that in due time some of their burdens would be lifted.

The government in England had passed a law which took hope from their hearts, and the famous Boston tea party and the Revolutionary war was the result.

Now our Santa Ana city trustees propose to put through an alleged improvement under a similar act—five men usurping the right of the people of Santa Ana to decide for themselves whether they wish to bond themselves for $370,000 or more, or not. We elected them to operate the city government, but not to vote our bond issues for us.

I have been told that I am foolish to oppose this new boulevard and the way in which the city trustees are attempting to "put it over," as I would get damages more than my property was worth, and I considered such a statement an insult to my honor.

Last Monday we honored the boys who fought in France. They fought, were maimed, and many died, for a principle—for democracy. Are we in Santa Ana going to sell out on them by letting five men take away our rights, or are we going to stand up like men for the American principle that voters and property owners' rights must be preserved?

Right now we need the moral and financial support of all who believe in the American form of government BY THE PEOPLE. Either the people rule, or they don't, and this boulevard bonding plan—with a recall left as the only alternative—puts a choice up to every resident of Santa Ana.

If you are with us, please come to headquarters at 506 North Main street and enlist in this battle to save our rights and guard our honor.

(Signed)
T. G. GOWDY,

CAPTURE YOUTH WHO ESCAPED FROM WHITTIER

A 15-year-old Santa Ana boy, who escaped from the Whittier School for Boys several days ago, was arrested by Sid Smithwick, assistant chief of police, late Saturday and returned to the school, after the boy is believed to have broken into three Santa Ana places Friday and Saturday nights.

The home of P. Adams, 915 North Parton street, was entered some time Saturday night and an automatic shotgun and $1.26 in change reported stolen. O. A. Snider, of 843 North Van Ness street, reported his home entered and ransacked early Saturday night. Nothing was reported missing from the household, but all drawers were pulled out and the house ransacked, it was reported.

In both these robberies, entrances were made through rear windows which had been opened with the aid of a screw driver, officers reported.

The Standard Auto Service store, at Fourth and Van Ness streets, was entered Friday night through a rear window and a three-tube radio set, four radio tubes and 10 sacks of smoking tobacco was stolen.

Officers said they had recovered most of the loot from the boy.

At the time of his arrest the boy was said by officers to be living in a tree in the Santa Ana river bed, west of the bridge on Seventeenth street.

After escaping from Whittier, the youth is reported to have stolen a bicycle in La Habra and ridden it into Santa Ana, peddling all the way while dressed only in a night gown. He obtained more clothes after reaching Santa Ana, it was said. He was with two other boys, hunting in the river bed, when Smithwick found him, it was said.

FIVE SLIGHTLY INJURED IN SIX AUTO MISHAPS

Week-end automobile accidents in Orange county all were of minor nature, the five persons reported hurt escaping with slight injuries, according to reports received from hospitals and police.

There were six automobile accidents reported, most of which occurred in Santa Ana. One man was arrested as the result of an accident.

Mrs. S. F. Shiffler, wife of the Rev. Mr. Shiffler, of Tustin, received several broken ribs and cuts and bruses at 6:30 last night, when the automobile in which she was riding when her husband crashed into the rear of a machine driven by V. Gasman, of Los Alamitos, on Lincoln boulevard, three miles west of Anaheim.

The Gasman machine was said to have been parked in the road without lights. This morning, in Justice Kenneth Morrison's court, Gasman was sentenced to serve 31 days in the county jail, his operator's license was suspended and a 60-day additional jail sentence was suspended. He was charged with operating a car without a license.

Gasman was arrested at the scene of the accident by Ole Buer, member of the state highway patrol.

Nick Somers, 21, of 407 Terminal street, Santa Ana, was treated in the Orange County hospital yesterday for cuts about the face, suffered in a automobile accident near Santa Fe Springs.

Raymond Rathbun, of 419 East Fourth street, Santa Ana, was cut and bruised at 2:30 yesterday afternoon when the motorcycle on which he was riding collided with a machine driven by Roy K. Bishop, of Orange, route No. 2. The accident occurred at Birch street and Fairhaven avenue.

A small daughter of C. Gonsalez, of Santa Ana, was slightly injured at Fourth and Broadway, yesterday afternoon, when the car in which she was riding with her father collided with a machine driven by William F. Gullen, of 1416 Durant street, according to a report filed at the police station.

When automobiles driven by Raymond Trendle, of Fullerton, route No. 1, and Ray Jackson, of 810 South Garnsey street, Santa Ana, collided at Highland avenue and South Broadway at 3 p. m., yesterday, Trendle was reported injured about the legs and cut on the face.

No one was reported injured when an automobile owned by Daniel W. Deeble, operator of a soft drink stand next to 314 West Fourth street, jumped the curbing and crashed through the front window of the Radio Den, at 313 West Fourth street. The car was said to have been in gear when Deeble cranked it.

Next week the high sixth class is going to have a parade called "The Parade of Books." Each person is to dress up like some character in a book. We are then going to march around to every room and have the pupils vote for the one they think is the best illustrated. The one that is thought the best gets a prize, which is a book. Every one is going to try to win.

—Paul Echols.

Mrs. Ranney's high two class is studying about Indians and Indian symbols. In connection with this the children have made a sand-table representing Indian life. All of the articles in the sand table were brought from home. There are some most interesting ones.

—Alfred Wright.

In the geography room the low four class is studying about Alaska. It is a very interesting country. The Eskimos eat seal most of the time in the winter. In the summer they eat deer, fowl and berries. In the winter they live in snow houses, while in the summer they live in tents made of skins. They also wear suits made of skins. I should not like to live in Alaska.

—Mildren Sinsley.

In Mrs. Stark's low one class those who were not absent or tardy for a month get an all-day sucker. The class is very proud that many have not been absent or tardy.

They also have a freight and passenger train. Those who can read well are on the passenger train, while those who do not read so well have to ride on the freight train.

The latest meeting of the high sixth club was held Tuesday. The club members are now wearing orange and white hats. Some of the boys and girls have put the McKinley school sign on them. The teachers are very nice, for the first day they let us wear them most of the day. They look very nice on us.

—Cleo Belle Cameron.

In the arithmetic room the sixth grade classes have been having tests in drill books. The high sixth is trying its best to win over the low sixth. The high sixth first average was 89 and now the average has gone up to around 94. We certainly hope we win.

—Mollie Holzknecht.

In Miss Hasty's room the high fourth class is studying about the fruit products of the United States. Each person is supposed to choose a fruit and tell how and where it is grown. We also have to make books about fruit.

—Wallace Jennings.

TALBERT

TALBERT, Nov. 18.—Bob Harper, local business man, had a new water tank and tower erected Friday to take the place of the tank and tower wrecked in the windstorm last week. The tank is 3000 gallons capacity, the same as the other. It was installed at a heighth of 18 feet above the ground for the sake of added pressure.

The water system furnishes a number of houses in the vicinity with water.

An all day meeting of the missionary society of the Talbert and Greenville societies is scheduled for next Thursday and is to be held in the Greenville church. A program is planned for the morning and there will be a covered dish luncheon served at noon and another program for the afternoon. The meeting is to observe the week of prayer and praise which is an annual event with the missionary societies. Everyone is invited.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lacabanne spent the day at Huntington Beach in company with Mr. and Mrs. Herman Lemke, friends from Olive, who were their dinner guests in the evening. Mr. and Mrs. Charles George, of Garden Grove, joined them in the evening.

Two death messages were received this week in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Folkert. One came from Holland telling of the death of Mr. Folkert's brother, Claude Folkert, who died following an illness of two weeks. The other message was from Rock Rapids, Iowa., and told of the death of Mrs. Folkert's grandmother, who was ill five weeks before her death.

Mr. and Mrs. Raine of near Bolsa have moved into the Roscoe Wade home in the Minnecks tract.

CHICAGO BD. OF TRADE

CHICAGO, Nov. 18—(UP)—A slighter decrease in thev isible supply than theb ulls had expected and a reactionary tendency in stocks brought prices down below Saturday's close on the Board of Trade here today. The early high figures brought out more wheat than the market could easily digest and prices eased more and more duirng tehd ay. Bull reports continued to come from Argnetina during the late session, but had only a slight retarding effect. Corn and oats eased with wheat.

At the close wheat was ⅞ to 1c lower, corn was ½ to ⅝c lower, and oats was ⅛ to ⅛c lower. Provisions were weak.

PREVENT BURN

If you put a little pan of water into the oven when you make fruit cake or pie that has to make a long time, it will keep the food from burning and from getting too hard around the edges.

SOCIALISM IN PRACTICE

Russia is passing through a tremendous experience. There are a great many things that Russia is doing, which, according to our way of thinking, are subject to condemnation. As far as we can observe, there are some points of the experience which indicate complete failure.

Socialism as carried on in Russia, greatly indicates that it cannot be put into successful operation except through the autocratic power of the majority, in a very different sense than in a democracy. Socialism must exercise force over the minority to make them conform in their economic and social action. This is the very place wherein it must differ in its operation from any economic system where individualism and private ownership are recognized. There must be a complete surrender of personal liberty of action in regard to social and business affairs to the end which the majority deems the common good.

There is one standard, however, that the Soviets are insisting upon with which we have a keen desire to agree. This is their insistence that inefficiency in official life is ground for elimination from office and even for expulsion from their organization. Their criterion in this respect is the accomplishing of the work; the delivering of the goods. This alone determines as to whether an official is making good, it is not the number of friends he makes; not his ability to shake hands; not his power of pull, but as in one particular instance, did he move the quantity of cement which he was detailed to take care of in the proper time, and at proper expense?

And a second thing which they are insisting upon is a government free from graft. This is a more serious offense than that of inefficiency, but it is practically eliminated.

The main hue and cry against socialism in theory has always been "inefficiency." In this respect, it seems, that the theorists have been wrong. Socialism as being practiced in Russia tends to deny the rights of the minority, individual freedom and initiative, and uses force in so doing.

REMOVE TEMPTATIONS

A fraternity house was raided at the University of Illinois Law School yesterday. Some fifteen gallons of liquor were seized. According to the reports of the officers who searched the premises, there was liquor in nearly every room. It appears that the bootlegging part of the "fraternity" were purchasing it at twelve dollars a gallon and selling it for thirty-two.

At a meeting of the fraternity group, it was agreed that there were a certain three men who owned the liquor. These men were arrested and jailed. The Dean of Men of the University was present at this particular fraternity meeting, and he said he had nothing to say of the affair.

At about the same time, ten men of the University of Detroit were jailed, and are facing trial on various charges relating to intoxicating liquor,—that of driving when intoxicated, the possession of liquor, and of disorderly conduct.

The reports of university heads have been general that there is less liquor drinking in the universities today than there was during the days when liquor selling and buying were legal. We believe there will be a general demand, not only by those who are emphasizing the enforcement of the prohibition law, but by parents and citizens generally, that our higher institutions of learning, to which the young people are sent, be so conducted as to reduce the temptations to men and the consequent defeat of the purposes of education. The bringing of such matters to light where they can be corrected is the first necessary step toward their correction.

By the way, what ever happened to that fellow who started out in spring with the avowed intention of curing his slice?

SOME PROGRESS

Mexico yesterday had its national election. As was expected, Pascual Ortiz Rubio was elected president. He had the support of the present administration. There were approximately 800,000 votes cast for Rubio, while about 100,000 voters favored Vasconcelos. There were outbreaks in various sections of Mexico, and nearly a score of people were reported to have been killed.

The election, from an American point of view, indicates a condition far from being ideal, and yet it was an election that went through the forms, and there was no revolution. It bodes of better conditions. There is a great deal more granted to the opposition than there has been in years gone by. As time goes on, greater liberty will be enjoyed, and even under present conditions, it is better than a [illegible]. Mexico is progressing toward or-

T. P. O'CONNOR

The death of T. P. O'Connor, member of Parliament since 1880 (and for that reason called "the father of the House of Commons") marks the passing of the last original founder of the Irish Nationalist party. He was an Irishman sitting for the Scotland Division of the English City of Liverpool.

"Tay Pay" O'Connor as he was called, witnessed many important changes in English government. He saw the broadening of the franchise, the rise of the Labor party, the establishment of the Irish Free State, the creation of South Africa and the rise to power, challenge to the world, and the collapse of the German Empire.

T. P. O'Connor was acknowledged to be the dean of journalism. His early fame was founded in the '70's on his bitter attack upon Disraeli which marked him for a political career. His fame as a journalist was accentuated by his literary productions, the most recent of which was: "Memories of an Old Parliamentarian," in two volumes published this last spring which comprises a history of the struggle of the Irish Nationalist party and the outstanding personality of its founder Charles Steward Parnell.

P. W. Wilson, reviewing these two volumes in the New York Times, said: ". . . the fact that an octogenarian should be able to offer volumes so gracefully written as these, with not a word misplaced and not a word superfluous, is indeed an evidence that the older journalism, when exhibited by the master of the pen, has something in it which compels attention and respect."

T. P. O'Connor was well-liked, even beloved by his fellow Parliamentarians. On his seventy-fifth birthday two hundred M. P's. tendered him a dinner and on every birthday since then he has been acclaimed.

He loved life; had hoped to live to be one hundred. A short time ago he said, to the youth of England: "Life is a great adventure. Live every hour of it. Don't be buried until you are dead."

He himself lived as fully, up to the end, as his increasing physical weakness permitted. In three channels he achieved renown; as a Parliamentarian, as a journalist (he was a publisher of several newspapers which he founded) and as a literary man. He was author of "Lord Beaconsfield—a Biography," "The Parnell Movement," "Gladstone's House of Commons," "Old Love Stories," "Napoleon," "The Phantom Millions," and the Memoirs already referred to.

With his death, the mantle of the "father of the House of Commons" falls upon David Lloyd George.

PASCUAL ORTIZ RUBIO ELECTED

The newly elected president of Mexico, Pascual Ortiz Rubio, it is expected, will carry out the general policies of his predecessors, General Obregon and General Calles.

He is an engineer by profession, and has combined with that the study and practice of politics and military work, which stand him in good stead in the position which he will now occupy. He will be inaugurated on February 5th.

He has been tried and tested from the standpoint of his friends, for he was arrested as a revolutionist and imprisoned for a time in the latter part of the regime of Porfirio Diaz. He has carried on his profession as engineer, particularly in the army; has held numerous political offices, such as Governor of Michochan; was Ambassador to Germany under Obregon and to Brazil under Calles.

He is an author of engineering works, and it is generally believed he will prove himself able and winning as a chief executive.

It is interesting to note that the President of the United States and the President of Mexico are both engineers, the former having specialized in the mining and the latter giving his attention to the civil divisions of the general subject. The road to preferment is not now so zealously guarded by the legal profession.

SENATOR EDGE TO FRANCE

The Senate this week will probably confirm the appointment of Senator Walter E. Edge as Ambassador to France. Senator Edge has a number of qualifications which undoubtedly made their appeal to the President causing his selection.

But incidentally we are impressed that President Hoover will be able to carry out his policies of law enforcement with a great deal more power and more definitely with Senator Edge in Paris than if he were in the Senate. We have a growing conviction that President Hoover, as an efficient executive, knows the places men are best fitted to fill.

Thirty Million In School

Riverside Daily Press

How many people go to school?

The vast service of the school will reach thirty million in the United States during 1929-30, according to the estimates of the research division of the National Education association. In round numbers 24,000,000 of these will be in elementary schools; 5,000,000 in the high schools; and more than 1,000,000 in the colleges.

The latest available figures issued by the bureau of education are for 1926. They show for 1926, 2,984,002 pupils enrolled in public, and 2,143,100 in private elementary schools including kindergartens; 3,786,071 in public, and 346,054 in private secondary schools; 252,907 in public, and 17,269 in private teacher-training institutions; 280,437 in public, and 486,704 in private colleges and universities excluding preparatory students. This made a total of 28,296,484 pupils in such schools in the United States.

"Tails I Win; Heads You Lose!"

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

HELPLESS IGNORANCE

I find that my trust is too often misplaced
In the blurbs of a publisher's ad;
I also discovered my personal taste
In books is decidedly bad.
Yet freely for fiction my money I spend
For I read under expert direction
And for guidance in novels always depend
On the Book of the Day Club's selection.

But it happens today that I need a new car,
And I'm plunged in a terrible plight.
No groups of mechanical pundits there are
To guide my decision aright.
Though salesmen by dozens talk loudly and long
In attempts to persuade or dissuade me,
I am perfectly sure that my choice will be wrong
With no Car of the Year Club to aid me.

Moreover at luncheon I'm often distressed,
My mind being wholly inert,
When it comes to the choosing of what would be best
To take as a spot of desert.
I can learn where to go for the movies at night
By consulting a cinema play club,
But no thick slab of pie shall my palate delight
For there isn't a Pie of the Day Club.

As for bad, lawless fellows, who sometimes imbibe
At bars back in alley ways hidden,
What mentor have they who knows how to prescribe
The nectar now sternly forbidden?
What mixture to choose from the bottle lined shelves
When the thirst for red liquor impels them
To hoist one aboard, they must learn by themselves;
No Drink of the Hour Club tells them!

Jack Dullboy's Aim In Life

By WILLIAM TRUFANT FOSTER and WADDILL CATCHINGS

Suppose Jack works forty years and saves his money—like a good boy—and then goes to his bank and says: "I'm sick of saving. I'm sick of working. I have no dependents. I have saved enough money to last me. Please let me have it all. Now I want to play."

Picture the dismay on the face behind the brass grill!

"For twenty years," says Professor Bennett in the Yale Review," "the bank might have been telling me that saving was for my children, or lacking these, for my old age; yet now, when I took it at its word, the establishment would have a collective apoplexy.

"Why?" Not merely because it would lose some money that it might have invested with profit to itself, but chiefly because to a banker the idea of spending money for enjoyment is a sort of sacrilege.

"Money, in his philosophy, is not to be spent, but to be saved. Capital is to breed interest; interest is to be added to capital, which is in turn to produce more interest, and so on, and so on.

"Far away on the horizon of progress he sees a perfect Everest of capital soaring into the inane. Sublime spectacle!

"Yes, but what will he do with it?

"The ideal of a banker is Work. Mine is Enjoyment. If I save, it is in order that I may spend; if I work, it is in order that I may enjoy the fruits of my labor."

"The ideal of work for work's sake seems to me to be stupid, inhuman, and, above all, dull."

Thanks be! Here is a professor ANY ONE can understand.

Virtue may be its own reward, but thrift isn't. What is the use of piling up savings, if it is always going to be ahead to enjoy them?

Little Benny's Note Book by Lee Pape

Ma was laying on the sofer breething sighs to herself, and she started to reed her book about 3 times and put it down agen every time, saying, O, Im just bored to deth, theres nuthing to do and I dont feel like doing it anyway, Ive tried to berry myself in this book half a duzzen times and it duzzent seem like anything but a meer continuation of werds. Reely, sometimes life hardly seems werth living, O deer, she sed.

And I sed, Hay ma, do you know how to make a Maltese cross?

That reminds me, Ive been meening to speek to you about crossing the street on your skates, ma sed. Ive seen you do it 2 or 3 times now, indangering your life and limb with your arms and legs at all the angles of the rainbow, and if you tant skate in an orderly manner up and down your own sidewawk Im going to take your skates away from you, do you understand? she sed.

Yes mam, step on its tale, I sed.

Whats that, are you being impertinent? ma sed, and I sed, G, no mam, thats the anser to the riddle, I asked you if you knew how to make a Maltese cross and a Maltese is a cat, thats the joke. Heres another one, ma, what gets heavier and heavier the more holes there is in it?

Holes, youve got 3 in your stockings rite now, although how you get them so quickly is like one of the 7 wonders of the pyramids, I declare a woman could spend her whole life darning and there would still be holes to mock her efforts like a bottomless well, ma sed, and I sed, A sponge.

What, what sponge? ma sed, and I sed, G wizzickers, thats what gets heavier and heavier the more holes there is in it, dident you hear me ask you, ma?

I sippose I wasent paying attention, run up and get me that pile of stockings you'll find in my baskit, I wont have any piece of mind while theyre on it, ma sed.

Wich I did, and she spent the rest of the afternoon darning holes out of them.

Proving as long as you have anything to worry you at least you wont be bored.

Thoughts On Modern Life

SHORT-TIME SCHOOLING

We center so much of our attention upon what our sons and daughters bring to the business of living and making a living when they are graduated from our schools that we sometimes forget the myriad thousands who drop out of school before they are graduated.

These, too, enter into the making of the nation.

It has been estimated that the rate at which students drop out of school from grade to grade runs about as follows:

One thousand, let us say, enter the first grade.

Thirty of these will drop out between the first and second grades—970 entering the second grade.

Thirty more will drop out between the second and third grades—940 entering the third grade.

Thirty-five more will drop out between the third and fourth grades—905 entering the fourth grade.

Seventy-five more will drop out between the fourth and fifth grades—830 entering the fifth grade.

Ninety-five more will drop out between the fifth and sixth grades—735 entering the sixth grade.

One hundred and five more will drop out between the sixth and seventh grades—630 entering the seventh grade.

One hundred and forty more will drop out between the seventh and eighth grades — 490 entering the eighth grade.

Two hundred and sixty more will drop out between the eighth grade and high school—230 entering high school.

Sixty more will drop out between the beginning of the first year of high school and the end of the third year—120 finishing the third year of high school.

Twenty-five more will drop out between the end of the third and the end of the fourth year—only 95 finishing high school.

Forty-five more will drop out between the end of high school and the beginning of college—only 50 entering the first year of college.

Ten more will drop out between the beginning of the first and the end of the second year—only 40 finishing the second year of college.

Twenty more will drop out between the end of the second and the end of the third year—only 20 finishing the third year of college.

Ten more will drop out between the end of the third and the end of the fourth year—and only 10 out of the 1000 who entered the first grade will finish college.

This is by no means an entirely regrettable picture. There are multiplied thousands attending colleges and universities who could spend their time and energy and money to better advantage. There is a vast amount of blind worship of degrees that is ignorance and waste; but something of the blame for this slump from 1000 to 10 rests upon the schools; and the progressive educator is scratching his head about it.

OUR CHILDREN

ORDER

The seeds of many a virtue are laid in the soul of a child before it is born. I am quite certain of that. And I believe that one of these deeply seeded virtues is order. Children love order and resent disorder.

One of the early occupations of childhood is the sorting of things into little heaps. All stones go in a little heap. All papers go in another. By and by stones of one size, of one color, of one shape, are sorted and placed and the classification, the orderly way of thinking and doing is well started. The trouble is we stop it half way.

Of course we do not mean to stop the child in his pursuit of rhythm and order in his life but he has so many things to do and to learn that the day is all too short. He is hurried from this to that before he has time to set his house in orderly array and by and by all idea of that is wiped out.

You see I believe that physical habits are the expression of a strong thought. When a child sets his toy shelf in order he has a strong thought of order. That thought colors the quality of his thinking. The more good color that goes into that thinking, the finer the quality of the thinking, the more power the child can wield.

Then let us cherish this impulse to orderly ways. Help the little child to put his things in order and in their places. As he grows increase the space he is allowed and the field he covers. By the time he goes to high school he should have imbibed this orderly idea so that it influences his daily work and play.

This means he wastes no time looking for things. He knows where they are. He loses no time in idle gestures for, being trained in orderly ways he knows where to begin, how to go on, and when to stop. There will be no left out lesson; no period skipped; no back work.

I have seen children search half an hour for a lead pencil only to find the butt end of one when it was time to go to bed. I have known children who could not find certain text books after the first week's use. They did not "turn up" until spring housecleaning time. I have known children who failed in a term's work because they skipped periods, left out lessons, attended school irregularly. Disorderly thinking, all of it.

The time to teach order is from babyhood on. Surround the child with order. Keep his day free from clutter and fuss and noise. There is no harmony in disorder and children do not thrive in discord. They grow in intelligence in a harmonious atmosphere and that is always the result of orderly planning, orderly working and orderly thinking.

The children's bureau drawers? Their book shelves? Their collections? Their note books? Their routine of work and play? Are they orderly? They can be and they ought to be.

"ATLANTA TO THE SEA"

On November 16, 1864, Major General William Tecumseh Sherman's army started on its famous march from Atlanta to the sea.

The army stretched out at times for a length of 60 miles. The country along the march was almost devastated. Sherman reached Savannah on December 11 and it was surrendered on December 21.

In February, Sherman resumed his march, turning northward through South Carolina with his army of nearly 100,000 men, and on February 17, 1865, entered Columbia.

On the same day, the Confederates evacuated Charleston, which was occupied the following day by the Federals. He then pushed on into North Carolina, repulsing various attempts by General Joseph E. Johnston to check him.

On April 18, Sherman received the surrender of Johnston at Durham's Station.
